

Lower adult age may cost city colleges $40 million

By RALPH HINMAN JR.
Education Editor

The recently enacted California law granting legal adulthood to 18, 19 and 20-year-olds could cause the state's 93 community colleges to lose $40 million next year in state funds for the education of minors.

When the legislation becomes effective March 4, the new crop of voters will possess almost every legal right of adulthood except drinking. For community colleges, it may mean a fiscal nightmare.

Long Beach City College alone could drop between $600,000 and $1 million-plus in state income during 1972-73, Bennett A. Long, vice president for educational services-business, estimates.

He foresees no local changes in funding patterns this spring since LBCC operates on a semester plan. But schools on the four-quarter system could be hurt sooner.

Financially unaffected by the voting-age change are state colleges and the University of California.

A spokesman for Community College Chancellor Sydney Brossman's Sacramento office says the lower age limit could hit the colleges in one or more areas:

—State aid for students legally defined as adults is $200-plus less for each than the amount given for minors. With fewer minors enrolled, this factor statewide could cut $25 million from operating budgets next year.

LBCC would be hardest hit by this category, says Long. Because of dollar changes wrought by the number of nonadult students enrolling in less than 10 credit hours of classes, and other complex legal factors, it was impossible for him to offer more than a "ballpark loss estimate" — ranging from a low of $600,000 to something over $1 million. "If worst comes to worst."

—Another $8 million could be lost since new adults from other states could establish immediate California residency, thus avoiding paying out-of-state tuition fees.

—Colleges could lose still another $4 million because old interdistrict transfer agreements no longer would be valid. In the past, one district reimbursed another for students educated elsewhere than in the home district.

—Finally, Brossman's spokesman said $2 million in state aid to physically handicapped 18-to-20-year-olds would disappear because they no longer could be classified as minors.

When signing the voting age bill into law last month, Gov. Reagan declared it acknowledges "the basic concept that those who enjoy the privileges of voting also should be expected to accept full responsibilities of full citizenship."

Several legislators, however, question whether this concept should financially punish the state's community colleges, now attended by a growing number of lower-division students.

Democrats Sen. Alfred Alquist of San Jose and Assemblyman Leroy Greene of Sacramento, along with Republican Senate leader Fred Marler of Redding, have introduced bills exempting colleges from the side effects of adult-age law.

That statute has created "havoc" among administrators and

Rail tank car blast rips wide area; 176 hurt

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill. (AP) — A railroad tank car containing 30,000 gallons of liquid petroleum gas exploded Saturday, shattering windows eight miles away and sending at least 176 persons to hospitals.

No fatalities were reported and only 19 of those injured, most of whom were cut by flying glass, were admitted at the hospitals for further treatment.

Mayor James E. Williams estimated municipal damage at $7.5 million, most of it to the residential property. The blast damaged 688 buildings, officials said. In addition to this railroad officials estimated damage to their facilities alone at $6 to $8 million.

The blast at dawn occurred at a switching yard of the Alton and Southern Railway on the south end of town.

A spokesman for the rail yard said freight cars and four tank cars containing the liquid gas were being pushed over a hump to provide momentum as they were rolled onto a side track during a sorting process.

Retarders on one of the tank cars failed to slow it down, he said, and the tank car crashed into a freight car and ruptured.

The damaged tank car burst into flames following the explosion, felt as far away as Edwardsville to the north and Troy to the northeast, both 20 miles from the scene.

"I thought the world was coming to an end," said Ollie Jefferson, whose home nearby was severely damaged.

"Glass, the ceiling, everything was torn up."

Glass was broken in St. Louis, five miles from the yard across the Mississippi River, and in Collinsville to the east and Belleville eight

New York Times Service

BRUSSELS — Ten nations of Western Europe joined in the Treaty of Brussels Saturday to create a larger and more powerful European Economic Community.

An elaborate ceremony marked what the sponsors hope will be seen in history as a great step toward the dream of a United Europe. Millions of Europeans watched on television as politicians and diplomats signed the treaty.

The new members must still ratify the agreement, and that will present difficulties. In Britain there will be a long struggle in the House of Commons. Ireland, Denmark and Norway will seek popular approval in referendum.

But the treaty does bring near a successful conclusion of the long struggle to enlarge the EEC, the Common Market, from its original membership of six—France, Germany, The Netherlands, Italy, Belgium and Luxembourg. The negotiations started more than 10 years ago.

The enlarged community is to be formed on Jan. 1, 1973. It will be one of the world's great economic powers—though still hobbled by lack of political unity or effective centralized institutions.

40 die of poison at wedding feast

NEW DELHI (AP) — More than 40 people, including some women, died early Sunday from drinking poisonous alcohol at a marriage party, police reported.

The report said some died almost immediately after drinking the spirits, several who started to walk home were found dead by the roadside and others died in hospitals or after returning to their shanty dwellings.

Hospital authorities said postmortems showed the alcohol had "eaten away intestines." The sellers of the alcohol disappeared, police said.

Reds overrun key Laos town, cut road links

Combined News Services

SAIGON, Sunday — The U.S. Command disclosed today the loss of two more helicopters to enemy ground fire amid heavy fighting throughout much of Indochina that could, commanders said, be the prelude to a widespread Communist offensive.

In Laos over the weekend, Communist troops backed by tanks, overran a key junction town, severing road communications between Vientiane and the royal capital of Luang Prabang and jeopardizing remaining government positions in the northern part of the country.

Loss of the Sala Poukhout junction and heavy equipment and manpower losses to the "most serious North Vietnamese military campaign in Northern Laos in recent years" has created a "grave situation," Laotian Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma said Saturday.

In South Vietnam, U.S. helicopter losses rose to at least six during the past week. Four Americans were killed and at least 10 wounded in the copter crashes.

On the ground, U.S. commanders were putting their units on higher degrees of alert in anticipation of a Communist offensive in mid-February to coincide with the Vietnamese new year and President Nixon's visit to China.

In Washington, meanwhile, Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield said Saturday that both Laos and Cambodia are "there for the grabbing" by determined Communist forces, but he "doubted" that Congress would see this as grounds for re-escalation of the U.S. war effort or additional funds.

SOUVANNA, echoing Mansfield's conclusions, said in Vientiane that the Communist dry-weather offensive this year has been more serious than last year.

He said if peaceful methods to solve the problem of Laos fail — he still is hoping to reach an understanding with the Pathet Lao — he will ask more U.S. military assistance.

The most serious ground fighting in Vietnam was in the coastal province of Binh Dinh, long considered a Viet Cong stronghold. Binh Dinh and surrounding provinces have recently seen an upsurge in terror attacks, most aimed at the government's militia forces and pacification program.

GIGANTIC INDIANS

Primitive Brazil tribe found

SAO PAULO (UPI) — The afternoon newspaper Jornal da Tarde published a report Saturday that the Brazilian air force had located a mysterious tribe of gigantic Amazon Indians who have never before had contact with civilization.

The newspaper published photographs taken from the air force plane showing the Kranchocore Indians shooting arrows at the aircraft as it flew low over their village.

Teamster official jailed on embezzling charge

WASHINGTON (AP) — A vice president of the International Teamsters Union was arrested Saturday in Kansas City after being indicted on a charge of embezzling $16,000 in union funds, the Justice Department said.

Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell identified him as Roy Lee Williams, 58, president of Kansas City Teamsters Local 41 and Joint Council 58 and a vice president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters.

Mitchell said in a statement that the single-count indictment was returned Thursday by a U.S. District Court in Kansas City and unsealed Saturday when Williams was arrested by FBI agents.

Williams was freed on $5,000 bond, the statement said.

The indictment charged that in January 1967 Williams had a check made out to him from the local for $16,000 for his own use and without the necessary authorization of the local, the statement said.

Williams could face a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine if convicted, the Justice Department said.

Mitchell said the indictment resulted from an investigation started by the Labor Department.

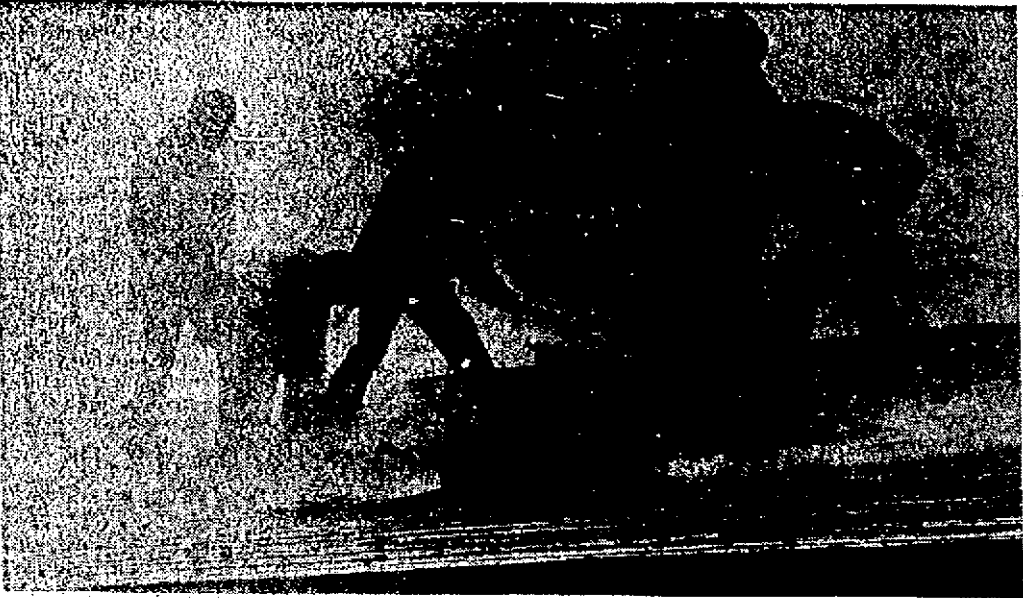

TV relay to China in orbit

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — A new international communications satellite rocketed into a successful preliminary orbit Saturday night en route to a stationary outpost high above the Pacific. Among its first assignments will be relay of television pictures of the winter Olympics in Japan and of President Nixon's trip to mainland China.

An Atlas-Centaur rocket thundered away from Cape Kennedy at 7:12 p.m. EST (4:12 p.m. PST) and 30 minutes later the National Aeronautics and Space Administration reported the booster had thrust the Intelsat 4 payload into a wide elliptical orbit ranging from about 350 to 22,300 miles high.

The newspaper reported the air force plane, commanded by Capt. Marcos Montenegro, had previously located the village but that the Indians had not on that occasion shot arrows at the investigators.

The village occupied by the Kranchocores is near a stretch of jungle that will be opened by construction teams carving out part of the "transamazonic" highway from Culaba to Santarem.

Fire guts CAP headquarters

Fire destroyed the Civil Air Patrol headquarters building at Long Beach Airport Saturday just hours before CAP members could empty it in preparation for a move to new headquarters.

Five Long Beach Fire Department units and two Douglas Aircraft Co. fire vehicles responded to the 2 p.m. blaze and brought it under control in about 30 minutes. There were no injuries.

Cause of the fire has not been determined, but Bitt. Chief E. O. Jones said the fire apparently began high in the one-story frame building and an electrical problem could not be ruled out.

The 45- by 180-foot building, located about one block east of Redondo Avenue on Spring Street, served as headquarters for Group 7 of the Civil Air Patrol.

Group 7 members were in the process of emptying the building, which housed classrooms, offices and a shop, and had removed most of the equipment when the fire broke out.

The building was leased by CAP from the Army Corps of Engineers at Fort MacArthur. Officials there have not yet made an estimate of the damage.

SAFEGUARD FOR CLIENTS

Lawyers fear disbarment

By TODD FINEBERG
Staff Writer

A judge took a bribe from a convicted stock swindler who was trying to wriggle out of serving a sentence.

A lawyer dipped into his client's escrow fund and wrote personal checks on the money he had no right to touch.

Another lawyer was charged with stealing $6,400 his client entrusted to him.

These men faced the same professional fate: disbarment.

Disbarment is a legal proceeding taken against a lawyer only in extreme cases. It cannot be used to take him to task for losing a case or carelessness, according to state law.

"A main reason for disbarment is stealing money from a client," said attorney Harry J. Simon, the outgoing president of the Long Beach Bar Association.

HE SAID a lawyer is required to follow a code of ethics, and breaches of ethics could lead to discipline and possible disbarment.

Under California law, any corruption, immoral or dishonest conduct by a lawyer on or off the job can be the basis for his disbarment.

A lawyer who commits a crime involving a moral wrong, such as stealing, murder, arson or rape, is automatically subject to disbarment. In such cases the law says that the record of the conviction alone is enough grounds to disbar.

Embezzlement of a client's funds or mixing the client's money with personal funds of an attorney are common grounds for disbarment, said Simon.

BUT attorneys rarely are disbarred. Simon said he remembers only two cases since 1950 in which Long Beach attorneys were ordered out of the bar. Both cases were based on embezzlement charges.

And the number of lawyers in the Long Beach Bar Association is about 430, he added.

During 1971 seven of the state's approximately 36,000 attorneys were disbarred, 17 were suspended temporarily from practice and nine were publicly reprimanded, according to the State Bar Association.

In Los Angeles County four lawyers were disbarred each year in 1970 and 1971 and about 10 lawyers were suspended each year, State Bar statistics indicate. More than 13,000 lawyers practice in the county.

A LAWYER has to be careful to follow the profession's ethical code, Simon stressed. For example, lawyers are not permitted to give out any confidential information about their clients' cases.

"But what happens if an FBI agent comes into my office and demands information about a client?" Simon asked. "What if I go ahead and tell him?" He said it would be a mistake that could lead to discipline and even disbarment.

The disbarment procedure is one that attorneys enforce themselves with the final decisions made by the California Supreme Court.

Most disbarment cases originate when clients complain about their lawyers to a local bar association.

SOME cases are settled locally, but cases that have merit are sent on to the State Bar office in Los Angeles for a thorough investigation, said Simon.

Finally a committee of lawyers conduct a formal hearing against the attorney charged with misconduct. The proceeding is similar to trial of a case in court.

A committee member prosecutes the case by presenting the bar's evidence against the attorney.

"I prosecute those cases just as hard as I would prosecute any other case," said Simon who serves on the State Bar disciplinary committee.

After the hearing, the committee recommends whether to disbar the lawyer, suspend him for a limited period or merely reprimand him.

The State Supreme Court receives the recommendation and has the power to make a disbarment order.

"LAWYERS" can be very tough in the committee hearings," said Simon, "but sometimes the Supreme Court changes the committee decision, knowing they're dealing with a guy's livelihood and his family."

After a lawyer is forced to leave the profession or receives a disciplinary order, he faces the ignominy of having his name published in the State Bar Journal under the ominous heading, "Discipline Imposed."

The listed names boxed in with black ink lines are a stark reminder to the thousands of state attorneys who read the journal to watch their step.

Is disbarment an adequate punishment to protect clients from their lawyers? "No," Simon admitted gravely, "it's not."

BUT HE added lawyers are meeting their responsibilities to the public with a newly devised client security fund which pays up to $25,000 per case. The plan is to compensate clients

Brother held in Carson slaying

A Carson man was jailed Saturday on suspicion of shooting his younger brother after an argument about living arrangements, sheriff's deputies said.

Phillip M. Hull, 34, of 22713 S. Frigate Ave., Carson, was booked on suspicion of murder after his brother, Kirk, 22, was shot in the head with a high-powered rifle.

The younger man also lived at the Frigate Avenue residence, deputies said.

AIP convention set

TOLEDO, Ohio (UPI) — The presidential nominating convention of the American Independent Party will be held here in late July, party officials said Saturday.

who are hurt by their attorneys' wrongs.

Disbarment is a drastic remedy, but it only gets into motion after the harm has been done, he said. Clients aren't directly helped by having their lawyers disbarred, except the bar's self-policing system is designed to create a warning to keep lawyers honest.

Facts You Should Know About Diamonds

By Arch Shinder

We have now examined the color of a diamond and the clarity of a diamond. Today it is the cutting of a diamond, as excerpted from the publication "Facts You Should Know About Jewelry" distributed by the Better Business Bureau Educational Division. On page 7:

3. Cutting. In the rough, a diamond is usually very homely. Only by highly skilled and laborious work are its glorious color and brilliance revealed. A properly cut diamond catches every passing ray of light, breaks it into all the colors of the spectrum and reflects it back through the top of the stone, while at the same time light is reflected from the outer faces in a surface luster unequalled by any other substance. To cut a diamond so that it will return the greatest possible amount of light requires a fine craftsman with an exquisite nicety of observation and touch. The full-cut round diamond (illustrated) has at least 58 facets, (including "culet," point) all in proper relation to one another, giving the stone scientifically calculated proportions. It may take as much as a month to finish a stone of one carat. Some special or novelty cuts have more than 58 facets, but it is very difficult to measure an increased brilliancy claimed for such diamonds. There are also diamonds of various shapes and lesser facets than 58, but they should be described as they are.

The terms "perfect cut" and "perfectly cut" are misleading. Copies of this booklet are obtained free of charge at Lawson's Jewelers, 250 Pine Ave., Downtown Long Beach only.

3 charged with drug smuggling

Three Orange County men have been indicted by a Portland, Ore., grand jury on charges of illegally importing 1,330 pounds of hashish in a foreign-made pickup truck unloaded in Portland Jan. 13.

Named in the three-count indictment were Blake Bidwell, Garden Grove; Brian K. McAdams, Laguna Beach, and David M. Reddy, Laguna Niguel.

Bidwell is accused of shipping the pickup truck from Los Angeles to Karachi, Pakistan, last June and shipping the same pickup from Bombay, India, back to the U.S. in September.

The truck was unloaded in Portland after the three suspects were told it could not be unloaded in Vancouver, B.C.

The three were nabbed by federal agents the day the truck was taken off the ship. Bidwell was driving the vehicle and Adams and Reddy were arrested while waiting on the dock in a rented car.

At the time of the arrests, federal agents said it was one of the largest caches of hashish ever seized in the U.S.

Santa Ana suit names Irvine Co.

Still pursuing its claim that 638 acres of industrial land should have been Santa Ana's instead of becoming part of the new City of Irvine, Santa Ana now wants $15 million damages from the Irvine Co.

The suit in Santa Ana Superior Court, holds that the Irvine Co., whose agricultural empire has been expanded to business, commerce and industry, could have prevented the tax-rich industrial district from joining the new city.

Santa Ana is depending on an eight-year-old agreement which it says guaranteed that the Irvine industrial acreage would become part of Santa Ana.

The suit, filed Friday, demands general damages of $7.5 million for loss of income which Santa Ana could "reasonably" have expected from the land by way of business taxes, sales taxes and other income. It also demands $7.5 million punitive damages. Santa Ana charges breach of contract.

Decision of Santa Ana to file for damages against the Irvine Co. came as something of a surprise, since it had earlier been given leave to amend another action challenging the recent City of Irvine incorporation.

Santa Ana previously had lost in court when it pressed its claim that the eight-year-old agreement was binding. Judge Raymond H. Thompson said it was invalid because it purported to bind successive city councils to a prior agreement.

When he invalidated the pact, Judge Thompson had suggested that Santa Ana might seek damages.

Pan Am faces criminal counts

Pan American World Airways has been accused in a four-count criminal information with violating government regulations governing transport of wild animals, U.S. Atty. William D. Keller announced in Los Angeles Saturday.

Two of the counts involved the transport of endangered animal species, Keller said.

Conviction on all four counts could subject the airline to $21,000 in fines and its officials to up to three years in jail.

Demos told to woo noncollege youths

Associated Press

A young trade unionist told the California Convention of the National Youth Caucus Saturday that the Democratic Party must give fair representation to noncollege youth.

"Politicians, by surrounding themselves with a few student body presidents, have sought to give the impression of universal youth support," Jim Wood.

Gov. Reagan Saturday said it was true that the majority of new voters under 21 were aligning themselves with the Democratic Party because they look upon the GOP as the "establishment."

"But we might remind them that out of the last 40 years, there have been only 11 years so far of Republican presidents," Reagan said.

Reagan spoke at a meeting of the Los Angeles Police Academy in Elysian Park.

The governor also spoke of the claim of the Democrats that they were the party of the "little man" and the "working man."

"Oh, yes," he said. "We just had a great example of that recently on the vote on the SST."

"Then they said they would vote the same amount of money as a welfare fund to help those who lost their jobs because of this," he said.

Stock fee changes approved

Brokers to base charges on cost

NEW YORK (AP) — The Cost of Living Council has OK'd a new fee schedule for brokers on the New York Stock Exchange — the first commission change since 1938, an exchange spokesman said. The new schedule would be implemented in a couple of weeks, he said.

The council approval, granted Saturday, came after the Securities and Exchange Commission certified that "the fees are consistent with the goals of the economic stabilization program."

The new fee schedule was proposed by the exchange in June and approved by the SEC, with certain conditions, in September.

One immediate effect of implementation of the new fee schedule will be elimination of a temporary $15 surcharge that had been imposed on all transactions involving less than 1,000 shares of stock. The SEC had approved the surcharge in 1970 following a decline in the volume of business in 1969. It listed termination of the surcharge as one of the conditions for approval of the new schedule.

AT THE TIME it presented the new schedule, the exchange said the proposal was aimed partially at giving the small investor greater access to the stock market by providing incentives for brokerage houses to deal with him.

The exchange system said Saturday the new schedule would produce total revenues slightly below those realized from the original commission rate plus the surcharge.

Basically, the new schedule works on the amount of money involved in a stock transaction, in contrast to the old schedule which was determined by the number of shares in the deal.

Thus, under the new schedule, the commission percentage would scale downward as the amount of dollars increased, the exchange said. In the old schedule, the commission percentage remained constant from 100 through 1,000 shares for a stock of a given price.

GENERALLY, the new schedule would provide lower rates for the smallest orders — those involving less than $800 — than the old schedule plus the surcharge.

In the middle range of transactions, the new schedule would reduce a mixture of increases or decreases from the old rates, depending on the price of the securities and the number of shares.

In announcing its decision, the Cost of Living Council said the fees that securities dealers charge for other services would remain under price controls and added that brokerage fees would remain subject to SEC review.

The exchange spokesman said, "The exchange is gratified that its new commission schedule... has been approved. The first step toward implementation will be for our board of governors to set a date when the new rates will become effective. This is expected to take several weeks."

Chief of home builder unit hits lumber price

HOUSTON (UPI) — The president of the National Association of Home Builders said Saturday he was alarmed about recent increases in lumber prices and said the hikes are reflected in soaring prices in the nation's new homes.

John Stastney of Berwyn, Ill., said lumber represents 20 per cent of the construction costs of the average single-family dwelling.

"At a time when housing production has achieved new heights and is the

REP. JOHN E. MOSS OPPOSES SECRECY MORE DISCLOSURE

Rep. Moss wants less classification

WASHINGTON (AP) — A longtime congressional critic of governmental secrecy says he will try to clarify and strengthen the Freedom of Information Act this year.

Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., a leader in the 11-year campaign to enact the right-to-know law which took effect on Independence Day 1967, says recent disputes over publication of classified documents have intensified public interest in the issues.

"I think everything ought to be public and the burden ought to be on the proposer of withholding," Moss said in an interview with The Associated Press. "Classification should be applied only if there is a clear and present national interest that would be damaged."

"OBVIOUSLY in the case of the Pentagon papers that was not so. The disclosure did not impair any of the functions of this nation. It did not lessen in any sense the security of this nation."

"The same is true of the disclosures of Jack Anderson on high-level administration policy talks on the India-Pakistan war. There, again, the evidence upon reviewing of the highly classified material was that the content did not justify classification."

Asked about indications by Pentagon officials that findings of the Army's investigation of the My Lai incident may never be made public, Moss said it would be "a form of bureaucratic arrogance to say that it isn't going to be made available."

Moss said that in his judgment, "the investigative report of the My Lai massacre is already subject to release under the information act. A report, when it is final — and this report is now final — and has become the basis for action, at that point that report moves into the public domain. I know that the military is going to argue against this."

The Freedom of Information Act, provides that any citizen may see a government document in the files, but lists nine categories of material which are exempt from this stipulation — ranging from defense secrets to inter-agency memos and files which if made public would invade individual's privacy.

Thus far, Moss said, courts have been "most reluctant to examine the content" of questioned documents to determine whether there was a need for classification.

"UNLESS there's a court case setting forth clearly the right of the court to do this, I think we're going to have to make it clear that the review power is comprehensive, that no action can be covered through classification and be beyond the reach of the court in reviewing it," he said.

He added there should be consideration of a penalty for "consistent patterns of overclassification."

Moss said the value of the Pentagon papers case "was to acquaint the American public with the fact that routine abuse of classification, the affixing of secret classifications on material of little consequence, was the common practice in our government... and that all it succeeded in doing was keeping the American public in ignorance."

U.S. charges 70 firms with price violations

New York Times Service WASHINGTON — The government has filed law suits charging at least 70 retail establishments around the country with violations of Phase 2-price-posting requirements, it was announced Saturday.

A spokesman for the Cost of Living Council said the cases, brought in U.S. District Courts beginning Wednesday, were the first arising from a major enforcement campaign mounted by the Internal Revenue Service.

The surge of legal action produced in three days more than 13 times as many cases as had been filed previously in Phase 2. Since the 90-day freeze ended, the government had gone to court only five times.

The defendants named last week include supermarkets, clothing outlets, automobile dealers, drug-gists, liquor stores, service stations, pet shops, bakeries and lumber dealers.

UNITS OF nationally known chain enterprises were involved. The government sued an F. W. Woolworth company outlet in Newton, Mass., a Thom McAn shoe store in Washington, and an S. S. Kresge K-Mart in Charlotte, N.C.

Civil suits were brought against all 70 defendants, the Cost of Living Council said. These call for fines of up to $2,500 for each violation and could produce injunctions forcing compliance with the federal requirements.

The council reported that the cases were based on investigations by about 1,000 Revenue Service agents who, through Thursday, had visited 20,076 stores and had found 1,500, or 11 per cent, in apparent violation.

All those sued last week were accused of displaying no price lists at all, the council said, rather than posting them incorrectly. All the defendants had also been warned of the requirements at least once.

The Price Commission regulations apply to retailers with sales of $200,000 a year or more. On food items covered during Phase 2 (raw agricultural products, for example, are exempt), they must list the highest amounts charged during the freeze.

On nonfood items, merchants have the option of displaying freeze prices either on the 40 items with the highest volume of sales in each department or on those items that account for 50 per cent of sales in each department, whichever is less.

Some of the 1,500 alleged violations turned up by the IRS agents presumably involved incorrect posting, displaying lists in areas not readily accessible to customers, and raising prices illegally.

These more complicated cases will apparently remain under study by the Revenue Service and by Justice Department officials in Washington. They could generate more civil suits and some criminal charges, which carry $5,000 penalties.

Roommates Bureau
helps with budget

By ROBERT STRAND

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Problem: You are single, live in a crowded city, have a job but can't afford the sort of place you'd like to live in and need a roommate to share the rent.

Where, if you have scruples about whom you live with, do you find that rent sharer?

To help with that problem — and it can be a tough one — this city has the San Francisco Roommates Bureau.

For a $20 fee, the bureau will interview you, check its files and suggest some compatible candidates. If the bureau doesn't produce results in 30 days, you will get half your money back.

Cynthia Spinoia, manager of the service, says most, but not all, clients are under 30, and most are college graduates holding white collar jobs.

Some are newcomers to the city, but many are well-established — such as the girl whose apartment mate gets married. The girl left behind needs someone to start helping with the rent, right away.

"I think our clients' prime concern is safety," Miss Spinoia said in an interview. "Either they, or their friends, have had bad experiences with heavy drinkers, or knobs, or stereotypes and clothing that vanish with disappearing roommates."

After safety, Miss Spinoia said, clients are motivated by a desire for truly compatible people with whom to live. The application asks about people's hobbies and personal preferences.

One question is, "would it annoy you if your roommate had a friend of the opposite sex spend the night?" Miss Spinoia said none of the men reply yes, and very few of the women do.

"Many people request a roommate of the opposite sex, but we won't do it," she said. "Some of the women say sharing with a man works better, and that men are easier to get along with."

The roommates bureau, owned by two young businessmen who founded it four years ago, is cheap to operate. It shares an office and telephone service with other activities, and its sole advertising is a daily listing in the classifieds.

"Our main problem is getting more and more listings," Miss Spinoia said. "The more people who come in, the more people we can help, and the quicker we can help."

Miss Spinoia thinks every big city should have a roommate-bureau.

U.S. considers new Navy ports

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration is considering assigning ships of the U.S. Navy to home ports in Greece, Italian and other Mediterranean ports in an effort to improve Navy morale, it was learned Saturday.

Such a move also would make it easier for the United States to maintain its present Naval commitments around the globe at a time when the American fleet is shrinking in size. The fleet has declined in the past two years from 934 ships to 857, as of last Jan. 1.

By ROBERT E. SWEET

SEATTLE (UPI) — Although militant women's liberationists might not fully approve, a new game called "sexism" has been created by a housewife here.

The game, which comes in a bright yellow and black box, is intended mainly for adults. In fact, it carries and "R" rating, meaning any player "under 17 must be accompanied by an adult."

"The game brings out the humor in the women's liberation movement and, at the same time, sensitizes peoples so they realize what sexism means, both for men and women," said Carolyn Hoyer, creator of the game.

She got the idea about a year ago when her daughter came home after playing a game of old maid, and said, "wouldn't it be terrible to be an old maid?"

Mrs. Hoyer then began thinking about the subtle pressures that would make a four-year-old female begin worrying about finding a husband. She concluded that a game could portray the subtleties in a form palatable to even the most chauvinist of males, and be "fun at the same time."

With help from her brother, Martin McCaw of Walla Walla, she designed a cartoon-illustrated board and colored cards (blue for female, pink for male) with instructions for the players. The object of the game is to make it from the doll house to the white house. If the woman wins it is proclaimed: "You are now a person, and must be treated as such for 24 hours. Non-winners may be treated as usual."

If the man wins, he is rewarded with a cartoon of a woman under a large, masculine thumb with the inscription: "Congratulations, you've won. Or have you?"

To begin play, a card is drawn. A woman might draw a chance card reading: "Go back two steps because you're a woman. You'd just as well get used to this." Or:

"You're all for women's liberation, but nobody's going to catch you going to a woman doctor. Go back one step."

A man might draw: "I staunchly defend motherhood, God and country. I'm against giving more money to AFDC mothers for each extra child. I'm against abortions. I'm against women earning as much as men. I'm against paying taxes for free child care centers. Go ahead three steps."

Or, a role card may be drawn instead of a chance card. The person must act as if he was, for example, a sexist and portray a typical sexist reaction to an event. Then the other players try to guess his role.

Mrs. Hoyer recommends switching sex roles so that partners can appreciate what it's like from the other's viewpoint. "Husband often find it perplexing and amusing to be ordered to the kitchen or maternally told to allow the wife to climb the ladder of success," she said.

The game is not intended to be "anti-male," but to make the point that members of both sexes should be treated as "people," she said. "And, of course, a woman can be sexist just as well as a man, by reinforcing sexism."

She said the game also is intended to reach many people who otherwise would try to avoid the subject. "A lot of ideas connected with women's liberation wouldn't be so fearsome to so many people if they (women's libbers) approached them with a sense of humor," she said.

The game costs $5 and so far has been sold only in a few Seattle stores and by mail nationally through the National Organization for Women.

Fire Dept. calls many, picks few

There are only 36 openings on the Los Angeles County Fire Department, but it said Saturday it was giving 3,400 tests at three college campuses for the openings.

The exact number who took the test won't be known until Monday, said James Harrigan, deputy county personnel director.

If significantly more than 500 pass the test, the county will hold a lottery to narrow to 500 those to interview for the jobs.

LANDMARK FIRING

'Maoist' prof at Stanford ousted

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Stanford University fired a tenured professor for the first time in 70 years Saturday, ordering radical English instructor, H. Bruce Franklin dismissed immediately for fomenting violence on campus last winter.

As Franklin and 100 supporters marched and chanted in a drizzling rain outside, the private university's Board of Trustees voted 20-2 to adopt the recommendations of a faculty panel and President Richard Lyman to fire the 37-year-old self-proclaimed "Maoist."

FRANKLIN said he "really didn't know" what his next step would be, although he previously threatened to fight the dismissal in the courts. He told newsmen he probably would return to Stanford Monday for rallies on his behalf as a court injunction banning him from the campus expired when he was dismissed.

The trustees fired Franklin at a special two-hour meeting after reviewing the recommendations of Lyman and the faculty advisory board and the professor's written attack on his "kangaroo hearing."

"The essence of the case is that neither you nor your administration nor

35 arrested in foothill drug raid

AUBURN (AP) — Law enforcement officers swooped down on residences in several Placer County towns Saturday, arresting 18 adults and 17 juveniles on a variety of drug-related charges.

The arrests began at 7 a.m. in the High Sierra foothill communities of Auburn, Roseville, Rocklin, Lincoln and Colfax.

About 30 policemen and sheriff's deputies took part in the raid, which was planned after secret indictments were returned last week by a Placer County grand jury.

Sheriff's Lt. Arthur Ables said, "Most of the ones we're arresting are being booked for sale of dangerous drugs." He said some were also being booked for investigation of possession of drugs.

"The county's not different than any other place," Ables said. "Drugs are on the increase here just like everywhere else."

Sailor gets 30 days as war foe

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A young sailor from Detroit, Mich., was sentenced to 30 days in the brig Saturday after taking "sanctuary" in a church to protest the Indochina war.

Richard R. Larson, 19, also forfeited $192 in pay and was reduced in rating from fireman apprentice to fireman recruit. The sentencing followed a summary court-martial aboard his ship, the carrier Midway, at the Hunters Point Naval Shipyard.

Larson was convicted of unauthorized absence from Jan. 8 to Friday when he surrendered to authorities at St. Anne's Roman Catholic Church in Palo Alto just south of here.

A Navy spokesman said the sailor would be given "time and assistance" in applying for discharge as a conscientious objector.

Larson was transferred from the carrier to the brig at Treasure Island in San Francisco Bay.

Larson left the carrier, he said, because the vessel was involved in the fighting in Southeast Asia.

Homemade rocket blast kills boy, 14

SAN BERNARDINO (UPI) — A 14-year-old boy was killed Saturday when a homemade rocket exploded in his hand.

Charles Sklac died on the scene when the explosion tore off his left arm and shrapnel severed the carotid artery of his neck.

Authorities said the youth and another 14-year-old boy were constructing a mortar-like rocket by filling an empty CO2 cartridge from an air rifle with gunpowder.

the majority of the faculty you hire wish to permit a Communist revolutionary to teach in your university," wrote Franklin, who was not permitted to appear before the board.

Lyman called the firing "a landmark in a difficult but essential effort for higher education" to protect itself from those who would destroy American universities.

THE BOARD'S seven-line resolution said it concurred with a faculty panel which found Franklin guilty of inciting violence on three occasions last winter and which, on a split 5-2 vote, recommended his dismissal.

The trustees directed that his salary through Aug. 31 be paid in a lump sum. Franklin was suspended from his teaching duties and barred from campus by Lyman, but remained on full pay.

The board heard no witnesses in its two-hour session, but spent the time considering a 168-page report from the faculty committee and the concurring recommendation by Lyman.

Dock issues except annual wage settled; talks resume

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Under strong government pressure, West Coast dock strike negotiations resume this week with virtually all issues settled except a $5.2 million guaranteed annual wage.

The strike, renewed last Monday, was in its 106th day Saturday with President Nixon pressing for congressional action to end it.

In Washington, Labor Secretary J. D. Hodgson accused Harry Bridges, president of the Longshoremen's union, of "defiance" of both Nixon and Congress.

Bridges said Nixon's proposal "will not settle the strike," but did agree to meet with management negotiators as early as this week rather than Jan. 31, the tentative date.

"In what appears to be a gesture of defiance directed at both the President and Congress, Mr. Bridges has been quoted as saying that legislation will not settle the strike," Hodgson said.

"It would be strange indeed if this challenge to federal action to be taken in the public interest should deter Congress from acting swiftly and decisively any more than it has deterred the administration from moving forcefully."

Hodgson said the Nixon administration believed in the collective bargaining process and had waited patiently through "15 fruitless months of talks."

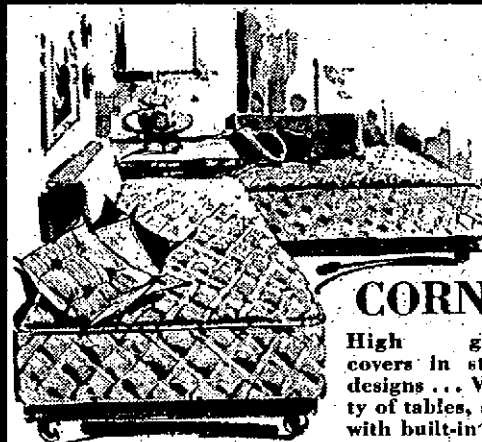

He said Nixon now had no choice but to ask Congress to act "on behalf of the public interest."

Intensive negotiations last week, including one meeting that ran 22 hours, made significant progress.

The Long Beach Heart Assn.'s 1972 "kick-off" luncheon Friday will feature television stars James MacArthur of "Hawaii Five-O" and Don Mitchell of "Ironside," and a flower show by the Long Beach Garden Club, Inc.

The luncheon in the Queen Mary's Grand Salon is to alert the community to the February "Heart Month" fund drive.

The association announced that support through donations is essential if all its current programs of research, education and community service are to be continued and expanded.

Cost of the luncheon is $4 per person and the public is invited. Reservations are required and may be obtained by calling or writing the Long Beach Heart Assn., 2242 Long Beach Blvd., Long Beach, 90806.

Sign up for spring
at LBCC

Registration continues this week at Long Beach City College for an estimated 29,000 students enrolling for courses at the college's 53 classroom locations. The spring semester starts February 3.

Enrollment in day classes will continue by appointment through February 2 and for college extension classes at local high schools registration may be completed on the first class night beginning February 3.

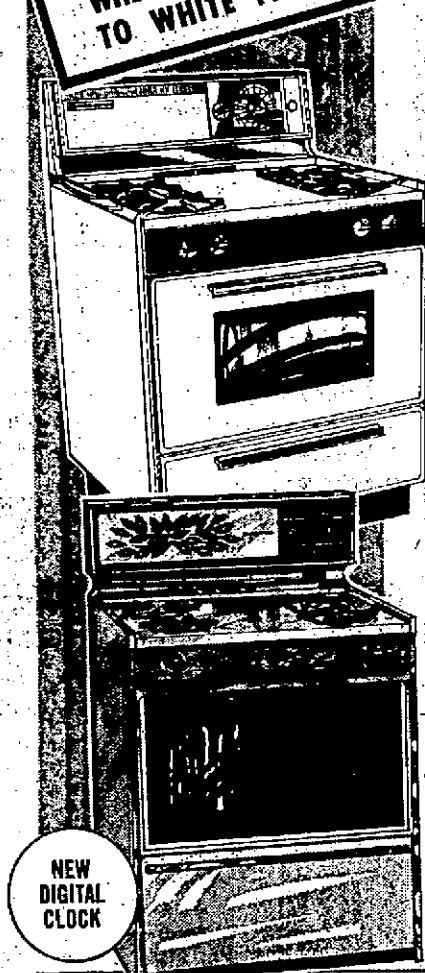

A highlight of the varied tuition-free curriculum in 1972 will be two programs at the Business and Technology Campus, 1305 East Pacific Coast Highway.

A teacher assistant program, designed to qualify students for teaching jobs and produce transfer credits for teaching credentials, will begin a second semester. A special program will be open to the educationally handicapped — mental or physical — 18 years of age and older.

For the second semester, electronics and electricity courses will be taught in the new technical building at the Liberal Arts Campus, 4901 East Carson Street.

Student registrants must bring Social Security numbers for enrollment and new students must follow regular procedures including entrance tests, grade transcripts, and counseling appointments for registration.

The current semester ends Friday. Spring semester lasts 19 weeks and ends June 16.

Presidential voting process already begun

Convention cities get U.S. funds

By ED ZUCKERMAN
From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — Miami Beach and San Diego — the sites for this year's presidential nominating conventions — are getting financial assistance from the federal government which, in effect defrays part of the expense of hosting the political gatherings.

The money is being funneled to police departments in the two cities through the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration whose administrator, Jerris Leonard, justifies the allocations as "beneficial to the entire nation."

"THE ORDERLY functioning of national political conventions is an integral part of the democracy," Leonard said when he recently announced a $395,424 grant to the Miami Beach police department.

The San Diego police department has requested a $20,000 grant to beef up its convention services — an amount that will be reduced substantially before it wins approval.

The idea for seeking LEAA funds originated with Miami Beach Police Chief Rocky Pomerantz, according to a department spokesman who said the grant "was not adequate to do the job but all right for openers."

He said the project is not designed to carry on services but to "support training, research, purchase special equipment and to finance a post-convention evaluation for the benefit of all police departments in the country."

An examination of the applications submitted for LEAA funds by the two cities offers a clue to the approach police plan to utilize in promoting an orderly convention.

SURPRISINGLY similar, they seek special training courses with a variety of subjects such as "Constitutional rights of dissenters" and "Philosophy of crowd control." They also included detailed lists of surveillance, communications and weaponry required to accomplish their objectives.

The overall thrust of the applications suggest an "iron fist concealed in a velvet glove" approach to preventing civil disorder.

However, spokesmen in the two cities tend to describe the envisioned programs as more "velvet glove" than "iron fist."

By DON McLEOD

WASHINGTON — The first votes in the difficult process of electing the next president of the United States are already being cast in the selection of delegates to the national nominating conventions.

Although these caucuses and conventions don't attract the attention given to the state primaries, they are drawing a share of the electioneering contenders and may be more decisive in the long run.

And reforms imposed or suggested by both major parties are making the whole thing more interesting if sometimes more complicated. In many states the once closed process is being shifted from the smoke-filled room to the public arena.

The selection started Saturday in Mississippi with Democratic precinct meetings where delegates were picked to the congressional district and state conventions which will name the national delegates.

Iowa does the same Monday, and Arizona follows next weekend. The process ends for the Democrats with the June Arkansas primary and for the Republicans probably in July.

DURING that time the Democrats will pick 3,016 delegates to their July 10 convention in Miami Beach and Republicans will line up 1,346 for theirs in San Diego Aug. 21.

Although no delegates are actually named in these early meetings going on now, the kind of delegation a state will send to the national conventions can be judged somewhat by the kind of people it selects to pick the delegates.

The Mississippi meeting held Saturday named delegates to the county conventions which will be held Feb. 12. The county meetings will elect delegates to the Feb. 26 state convention.

Continuing in the stair-step pattern, becoming more or less standard in nonprimary states, the delegates elected at the state convention will meet in congressional district caucuses on Feb. 19 and pick, by district, 75 per cent of the state's delegation to the Democratic National Convention. They will choose the rest at large when they meet in state convention.

Two factions of the Democratic party held separate meetings in Mississippi, with the possibility that two separate delegations from the state will fight for seating at the national convention.

The regular Democratic party, headed by Gov. Bill Waller, held its precinct conventions in the morning with indications that few blacks participated. The Loyalist Democrats, a biracial group, scheduled night meetings.

BUT THE first actual national convention delegates will be named in Arizona Feb. 12 when Democrats elected this Saturday held their state convention.

Saturday, Arizona Democrats hold legislative district conventions. From 2 p.m. to 7 p.m. polls will be open in the 30 districts, and any registered Democrat may vote.

The 500 delegates elected at the district level will meet in Phoenix Feb. 12 to select the 25 national convention delegates. In congressional district caucuses they will pick six delegates from each district, then in state convention they will pick seven at-large delegates.

A similar situation prevails in Iowa where Democratic precinct caucuses will be held Monday. Delegates will be chosen for Feb. 26 county conventions which will pick congressional district and state delegates.

At March 25 congressional district caucuses, 75 per cent of the national delegation will be elected. At the May 20 state convention, the rest will be elected at large.

By the time the first primary-picked delegates are known in New Hampshire March 7, Mississippi, Arizona, Iowa, South Carolina, Nevada and Minnesota will have at least started putting together their delegations.

IN OTHER political developments, Saturday: — Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota, a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, told a Tampa, Fla., news conference that Republican National Chairman Robert Dole told "an unmitigated lie" in representing McGovern's stance on the Vietnam war.

"He included me in the list of Democrats who, during the last two administrations, backed the war up to the hilt to the tune of 55,000 young Americans lives," McGovern said, dating his advocacy of a peace settlement to September 1963.

In Lexington, Ky., Gov. Wendell Ford endorsed Maine Sen. Edmund S. Muskie for the Democratic presidential nomination.

And in Jamesburg, N.J., Muskie picked up the endorsement of U.S. Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J., who told the 21 county Democratic chairmen from New Jersey that Muskie "represents our best candidate" to defeat President Nixon in 1972.

Minnesota Sen. Humphrey made two appearances in Raleigh, N.C., where he attacked President Nixon's veto of the Child Development Act, which would have established federally financed day-care centers, and charged that the administration "has not been willing to respond to the voices of dissent."

LYNDON B. JOHNSON
To Unveil Papers

Education high point for LBJ

By CRAGG HINES

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Thousands of papers on education accumulated during the presidency of Lyndon B. Johnson — a man who learned the ABC's from wooden blocks and didn't want to go to college — will be unveiled Tuesday.

Some of the papers will tell the story of the development of the first act that put federal funds into the elementary and secondary schools of the nation. It was one of 60 education bills passed by Congress in the five years Johnson, who taught school before entering politics, was in the White House.

The 250,000 documents will also contain minutiae that will find its way into doctoral dissertations for years to come.

HISTORIANS hope the collection will open to view the area of Johnson's term which the former President himself views as a high point — especially when compared to the disension over Vietnam that scarred his last days in office.

"I take great pride in the fact that I was referred to, when people tried to be generous, as the 'education President,'" Johnson said in December when announcing the papers would be opened to scholars and researchers.

They will be the first group of papers in the Johnson Library on the University of Texas campus to be made public since the building was opened last May.

The opening of the papers, expected shortly after noon Tuesday, will be commemorated by a two-day seminar on "Educating a Nation: The Changing American Commitment." A speech by Johnson will close the meeting.

THE SESSION will attract many of the key education personnel from his administration, including former secretaries of Health, Education and Welfare John W. Gardner and Wilbur J. Cohen and former commissioners of education Harold Howe II and Francis Koppell. The present commissioner, Sidney P. Maryland, is also on the program.

In addition to the pomp-and-ceremony items, such as three pages from the original 1965 Education Act, there will be memos from a presidential aide on the expected number of votes and little speech cards Johnson used at the bill-signing ceremony.

Treatment

A friend of mine recently had several fingers cut off by a lawn mower. He was taken by ambulance to Long Beach Community Hospital but a clerk would not admit him because he didn't have any insurance or any money on him, he was given a pain reliever and placed on a stretcher and there he waited for two hours until another ambulance took him to Harbor General Hospital where he had surgery. A doctor told him he probably wouldn't have lost two fingers if he had had surgery right away. What's wrong with the United States if a seriously injured man can't get into a hospital? J.M., Long Beach.

All hospitals must give emergency treatment, but they do not have to admit a patient for further treatment if he can't qualify financially and if his condition is such that he can wait to be transferred to a county hospital. In the case of your friend, the bleeding had stopped by the time he arrived at the hospital. After consulting an orthopedic surgeon, the emergency room staff gave the patient a pain reliever and a tranquilizer and prepared his injuries for surgery, according to a hospital spokesman. He added that since the accident occurred on New Year's Day, the hospital staff was lucky to get another ambulance for your friend in only two hours.

Frozen asset?

Can ACTION LINE help settle an argument? My neighbor says she never would let her children drink milk that's been frozen. I say it's just as good as fresh. Am I doing wrong by freezing it, then giving it to my child? J.J.D., Long Beach.

No. "Fresh, whole, pasteurized and homogenized milk can safely be frozen for as long as six weeks," according to a spokesman for the California Dairy Council. She said freezing does not alter the milk's food value, but may detract from its taste and appearance. Milk that has been frozen might appear curdled, but there is nothing wrong with it, she said. Make sure the milk is fresh when you freeze it and the freezer container is clean, well-sealed and large enough to provide for expansion of the liquid which occurs during freezing. The freezer temperature should be kept below zero at all times.

On the carpet

I bought a $1000 shag carpet from Bamber Carpets, 16706 Lakewood Blvd., Bellflower a year ago. I ordered one carpet and got another, not as good a grade. I have had three carpet cleaners come out and none of them would touch it, saying it would fall apart if they did. Is there anything you can do to help me get the rug taken care of? R.S., Carson.

Bamber General Manager Ed Vincent denied the carpet is substandard but has offered to refund 20 percent of the price or give you a 30 percent discount on new carpet in the interests of good customer relations. He said both he and a representative had checked the carpet and found nothing abnormal about it. He said that polyester shag sheds, elongates and gets thinner with use and looks like it is wearing out. The manufacturer uses a fire retardant black backing on the carpet to comply with the Federal Trade Commission regulations. As the rug gets thinner, it can show through, Vincent said. "Now they have neutral color backing which helps some," he said.

Rolling in dough

My father operates a small candy business in Oregon. Most transactions are small and he must roll large numbers of coins. For some time now he has been looking for a small, inexpensive coin tray that holds in separate slots just the right number of coins of each kind. When the slot is filled, the coins are ready to be rolled. I have looked but have been unable to find anything like this. Can ACTION LINE help me find one to give to my dad? T.P., Long Beach.

ACTION LINE has forwarded to you a catalog and order blanks from Block and Company Inc., 1111 S. Wheeling Road, Wheeling, Ill. 60090, manufacturers of bank and cashier equipment. They have available several styles of change trays like the one you describe, a very simple one selling for about $1.

the share of the U.S., the U.S.S.R. and Japan combined.

Britain is both the political and the economic key to the hopes for the greater Common Market. Her prime minister, Edward Heath, was therefore, inevitably, the central figure in Saturday's ceremony.

There was an unexpected melodrama that focused even more attention on Heath than expected. As he walked up the grand marble

MOSCOW (A) — The Soviet Union said Saturday that by signing the Common Market treaty the British government "ignored the profound dissatisfaction that this step evokes among the majority of the country's population."

Tass said opinion polls showed a majority of the British public was against joining the market and that it will mean a "drastic growth of the cost of living in Britain."

Heath retired to a private room and waited there for fresh clothes. The whole ceremony was postponed for 45 minutes while rumors spread among the foreign ministers and prime ministers who filled the large room along with their aides and guests and journalists.

The woman who threw the ink was a 31-year-old German, Maria-Louise Kwiatkowski. She uses an English pen-name, Karen Cooper, but lives in Sweden. She was carrying a camera and had got into the palace by obtaining credentials as a newspaper photographer.

Miss Kwiatkowski said she was protesting the "theft" by London authorities of some plans that she and colleagues had made for the redevelopment of Covent Garden, the London produce market that is scheduled to move to the outskirts of the city shortly. She was arrested and held by the Belgian police.

The Belgian premier, Gaston Eyskens, in a welcoming speech to the guests, apologized for "a stupid incident that we all regret." He went on to pay a tribute to Heath that might have been there anyway.

"We are aware, Mr. Prime Minister," Eyskens said, "how much today is due to your personal effort, your determination and your faith in Europe."

As lord privy seal in the conservative government of Harold Macmillan 11 years ago, Heath was in charge of the unsuccessful first effort to bring Britain into the community. Just nine years ago, less a week, he walked dejectedly out of the negotiations after President DeGaulle of France had announced his first veto.

As a symbol of the long struggle, Heath had invited Macmillan — now much more elderly but with the familiar Edwardian look — to sit with the British delegation Saturday. Also in the room as honored guests were Jean Monnet, who inspired the original plan for European unification and Paul-Henri Spaak, who as Belgian prime minister played a large part in creating the Common Market.

miles to the southeast. Police sealed off Collinsville Avenue, the city's main street, to prevent looting.

About 30 additional freight cars in the yard caught fire following the explosion, with other cars derailing. The yard's general office building, a four-floor structure, and a diesel repair shop were both extensively damaged.

Christian Welfare Hospital treated 79 persons, St. Mary's Hospital handled 78 and 19 more were treated at Centerville Township Hospital.

Two investigators of the National Transportation Safety Board headed for the scene, where fire burned for more than four hours.

"It looks like a case of over-speed impact," said Jack H. Witthauer, a Federal Railroad Administration safety inspector from St. Louis.

Irving 'certain' Hughes book true; dispute grows

New York Times Service

NEW YORK — Clifford Irving, the novelist who contends he has compiled an authorized biography of Howard R. Hughes, said through his attorney Saturday that he continued to believe his material was "authentic."

Irving, who left New York for his home on the Spanish island of Ibiza on Friday evening, also said in a statement that he had "no doubt" he had met with Mr. Howard R. Hughes, the billionaire industrialist.

The statement was issued by Martin Ackerman, Irving's attorney, in the wake of a telephone interview Friday in which the lawyer said he was "leaning" to a theory that the novelist had been a victim of a hoax by a "gang of six to eight people."

LATER FRIDAY night, Ackerman retreated from that position and said instead that he had come to "lean" to the theory that a "loyal servant" of Hughes had opened a mysterious account in a Swiss bank.

The account, which was opened last May by a German-speaking blonde woman using a forged Swiss passport, was the eventual repository for three checks totaling $650,000 that were paid to "H. R. Hughes" by McGraw-Hill Inc. in payment for the autobiographical material.

The money was later withdrawn from the account, banking sources in Zurich said. It is not yet known who received the funds.

The Swiss Credit Bank, in the transcript of a letter telephoned to Hughes' attorneys in New York said the checks had not been cashed by "Mr. Howard R. Hughes" and had not been credited to an "account of Mr. H. R. Hughes at our bank."

HUGHES HAS denied ever meeting Irving or giving him any autobiographical material.

Saturday Ackerman issued the following statement:

"Mr. Irving has authorized me to clarify his position concerning the various theories offered in explanation of the opening of the Zurich bank account in the name of H. R. Hughes."

"Mr. Irving believes that such account was opened by a loyal servant, agent or some other person associated with Mr. Howard R. Hughes, the owner of the Hughes Tool Co."

"HE HAS no doubt that he in fact met with Mr. Howard R. Hughes, the billionaire industrialist, and that the material in the autobiography was given to him by the same Mr. Hughes and that such material is authentic."

Both McGraw-Hill and Time Inc., the parent organization of Life magazine, in which three excerpts from the purported autobiography were to have been printed, have said they would defer publication until an investigation into the Swiss bank account was completed.

Aides of Hughes, meanwhile, were not available Saturday to comment on a published report that the reclusive industrialist was planning to meet face-to-face with newsmen in the Bahamas sometime before March.

Quentin cons cease fasting

SAN QUENTIN (UPI) — The majority of the 22 inmates of the San Quentin Adjustment Center Saturday broke their fast in its sixth day.

However, Lee Debord, the officer of the day, said he was not sure the inmates who had some breakfast or lunch would continue eating more meals.

"It could go two ways," he said. "Either the fast is breaking up, or they will eat a few meals and go back to fasting for a few days."

The fast was by inmates housed at the site of the fatal shooting last August of three guards and three prisoners. Participants included Russell Magee, codetendant of Angela Davis, and the two surviving Soledad Brothers. Officials did not indicate whether Magee was still fasting.

Seven demands were raised by the protesting inmates, including requests for better food and access to the exercise yard.

But the demands were rejected by officials for security reasons. They regard inmates of the Adjustment Center as the most dangerous in the state prison system.

Debord said 15 of the 22 involved accepted breakfast Saturday.

Northwest drenched; Fla. twister trees trailers

United Press International

Rain drenched the flood-ravaged Pacific Northwest Saturday where at least four persons have died and property damage is in the millions of dollars.

In northeast Florida a tornado hit a trailer park injuring four persons.

The crest of the Chehalis River in Washington moved downstream and other flooded rivers began to subside as authorities predicted the worst had passed.

Three persons were killed in traffic accidents related to the floods and at least one person drowned. Hundreds of persons were evacuated from their homes.

Gale warnings were posted along the Northwest coast. Rain was expected to turn to snow in the higher elevations.

Police said a twister touched down near South Green Cove Springs, Fla., destroying several mobile homes and injuring four members of a family.

"Most of the trailers are in the trees," a policeman said. Power lines were downed and a house also was damaged during the storm.

A warm Gulf air mass sent drizzle and fog over much of the nation's midsection accompanied by temperatures in the 50s and 60s.

Lower adult age may be costly to city colleges budget planners who don't know how much state aid their districts can expect, Alquist said.

His bill was designed specifically to guarantee $17 million to the colleges, while Greene's places the sum at 22 million. Sen. Marler is sponsoring a bill reportedly requested by Brossman that presently contains no sum but would later be amended to include a total figure.

The statewide community college organization was brought into being by the Legislature late in the 1960s to serve as the two-year schools' voice in the councils of higher education and the Capitol. Although much autonomy remains with local districts, the Sacramento-based agency helps plan educational programs and fixes standards for college instructors.

During last year's debate over the proposed adult-age law, Chancellor Brossman and other officials remained "neutral," his spokesman said, neither supporting nor opposing it.

No recommendations for signing or vetoing the measure were given Reagan "because we weren't asked," added the spokesman. "If you're representing the kids and the teachers, you couldn't oppose that bill."

Proxmire raps new sub arms

By GEORGE CRILE
From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — The Senate's leading defense critic Saturday called into question President Nixon's $900-million budget request for a crash program to develop a new class of missile firing submarines.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., warned against committing the country's future sea-based deterrent to a system which he said may be obsolescent by the time it is introduced.

THE WISCONSIN Democrat maintained that a Russian antisubmarine warfare (ASW) capability sufficient to threaten our present Polaris and Poseidon missile-carrying submarines, is not foreseeable until the 1980s. Consequently this country's missile-carrying submarines of the 1960s need not and should not be committed to a design until the nature of the ASW threat can be identified and technology developed to counter it, he said.

Proxmire offered as an alternative to Nixon's proposed program for development of the ULMS (underwater long-range missile system) submarines, a new long range missile which could be used by existing submarines and adapted for use in the submarines of the future.

"The development of such a missile system would ensure the survivability of our Polaris submarines well into the 1980s," Proxmire said.

About $300 million is provided for such a missile — the ULMS 1 in Navy terminology in the administration's budget request. But the bulk of the money asked for would go to work now on a new submarine program.

According to Proxmire "That program would be the most expensive single program ever undertaken by the United States government. The 30 to 40 submarines presently envisaged would run to more than $1 billion each."

The idea behind ULMS is to build bigger and quieter submarines, each carrying 20 to 30 missiles with a range of about 5,000 miles. The current U.S. Poseidon subs carry 16 missiles able to hit targets about 2,800 miles away.

The longer range missiles would allow the subs to stay further away from their potential targets and thus vastly increase the area Soviet sub hunters would have to search.

The President's $900-million request represents a nine-fold increase in funding to the Navy for development work on ULMS. The ULMS push is seen as a response to the Russian refusal to include missile firing submarines in the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) underway in Helsinki.

The proposal has been interpreted by defense analysts as a warning to the Soviets that the U.S. will resume submarine production with bigger and more powerful vessels if the Soviets continue their production of Polaris style submarines.

THE RUSSIANS now have 42 missile submarines in operation or under construction. This is one more than the 41 Polaris and Poseidon-carrying subs the United States has had since 1967. The American missile firing subs, although older than their Soviet counterparts are considered technically superior.

"If administration plans are followed, the detailed design for ULMS, incorporating minor improvement only over the Polaris hull design, will be frozen within another year," Proxmire warned. "We can do far more to insure our national defense by keeping our options open somewhat longer."

Russ challenge to U.S. industry told

WASHINGTON — The Aerospace Industries Association (AIA) said Saturday the United States is in danger of losing technical superiority in the fields of space and national security to the Soviet Union within less than 10 years.

The industry organization based its conclusion on a new survey by the AIA Aerospace Research Center of international trends and policies in research and development.

"A matter of particular concern is the indicated erosion of American stature in the commercial aviation market, an area of world trade long dominated by the United States," the report said.

IN MOST of the nations studied, the governments are supporting vigorous (R&D) research and development programs that are growing annually in funding and scope.

"By contrast, the growth rate of U.S. government-financed R&D is almost stagnant and the overall rate — federal plus private financing — is among the lowest of major nations."

Karl Harr, AIA president, told newsmen that since 1968 U.S. outlays for research and development have remained at about the same level. Because of inflation and increasingly higher costs of advanced technology, this actually represents a declining effect, he said.

The report showed that since 1968 the growth rate of U.S. government R&D funding has plummeted from 9 per cent to less than 1 per cent.

"While the level of effort for R&D remains static in the United States, France is experiencing an annual growth rate of about 13 per cent, Japan's growth rate is almost 25 per cent, and the Federal Republic of Germany's growth rate in R&D is between 30 and 40 per cent," the report said.

THE STUDY said that productivity growth tends to parallel the level of research and development investment.

For the 60 years preceding 1950 the U.S. productivity growth rate exceeded that of Europe by 60 per cent and that of Japan by 70 per cent, but since 1965 the U.S. has trailed Europe by 35 per cent and Japan by 60 per cent, it said.

"This situation does much to explain the fact that the U.S. no longer is the world's largest exporter of manufactured goods," the report said. "That position was ceded to West Germany in 1970."

work in various departments is evaluated.

"WE BELIEVE this type of balanced program is the way to go," Maddelein said.

ROTC has been around since 1819 when Norwich University in Vermont began military instruction.

During the next several decades, the growth spread gradually, with the South coming up with two blue ribbon schools at Virginia Military Institute and The Citadel.

But today one can go to either and not be in the military phase.

When the Civil War created a need for trained officers, Congress adopted legislation providing for public land and money grants to those colleges and universities that included military training in their curricula.

The Land Grant Act of 1862, more well-known as the "Morrill Act," after sponsor Sen. Justin Morrill of Vermont, became the foundation on which ROTC is built.

IN 1916 the Military Defense Act formalized instruction in civilian institutions by creating the Reserve Officers Training Corps program. It made the program available to all colleges and universities where formerly it was limited to the land grant schools where military training was compulsory for all male students.

Then in 1964 further revisions were made in ROTC with the program given more flexibility and modernized to meet present requirements.

The basic program for today's 517 ROTC units is the four-year curriculum. However, there are a number of institutions that also offer a two-year program.

MOST ROTC courses are accredited and the student can accrue credits for them as in any other college course.

STEVE CASE

Almost all schools have dropped the mandatory requirement that all males must take ROTC for their first two years. Junior and senior participation is voluntary, but the services are selective in determining whom to accept.

The two-year program is intended for undergraduates transferring from junior colleges; students who previously attended four-year schools with no ROTC and a limited number of graduate students who missed the opportunity to be in a ROTC program.

A preliminary requirement for admission is successful completion of at least six weeks of summer training.

EACH SERVICE offers some scholarships beginning in the freshman year and a student can compete also for a scholarship up to his last year.

What is the importance of ROTC?

ROTC still is the principal source of officers for the armed forces and will continue to be.

However, the heavy attack by its critics during the past four years with units being disestablished and acts of violence against facilities peaking with Cambodia and Kent State, did hurt the output.

The Department of Defense says ROTC has 517 units on 374 campuses with each of the services showing expansion. Requests for establishment of new units are more than counterbalancing the schools that have withdrawn.

The recruitment of officers from this source is the practical application of the ingrained American tradition of civilian influence within the military.

OFFICERS are molded in the mainstream of American life with a background of discipline, resourcefulness and skill. These attributes, coupled with academic studies and exposure to the free exchange of ideas, have produced officers well suited for leadership in citizen-manned armed forces.

Discussion with the Long Beach middies brought out these views:

Hill — "I wanted college badly. I saw this opportunity and here I am, but after my commitment I have a choice."

The senior will start as an ensign drawing $687 monthly and termed it "good" for a job today right out of college.

Maddelein — "I started early as a Sea Cadet and in Wilson High's Junior Navy unit. When I'm asked 'why' I'm in, I just say for the money."

HOROWITT thought Annapolis was "to harsh with the middies locked in there."

"I believe I'll be a better officer by being in ROTC in this free-type environment," Horowitz added.

The trio reported their parents had no objections when they chose ROTC.

Skipper of the USC detachment is Capt. Francis P. Koval, who served on the Long Beach carrier USS Kearsarge in 1967-68. His executive officer is Marine Lt. Col. David McMillan.

CAPT. KOVAL said attrition factors involve grades, aptitude and some middies deciding they did not want the four-year service commitment.

"We have a lot more applications for this fall's fourth class than we will be able to fill, but we probably will be over a 136 total unit because of the overall increase ordered for ROTC scholarships," he said.

SAN MATEO WELCOMES PARATROOP COMPANY

SAN MATEO (UPI) — A company of "Screaming Eagle" paratroopers arrived Saturday from Vietnam for the kind of civic welcome and celebration by the home folks rarely seen since World War II.

Fourteen beauty queens, citizens and the mayor clustered around buses bringing home the veterans the day after their U.S. 101st Airborne Division was ordered to strike its colors in Vietnam.

The paratroopers, members of Company A, 327th Infantry Battalion, were put up at civic expense for two nights in 20-rooms of a downtown motel. Many festivities are planned.

The "adoption" of Company A by San Mateo began in 1968 when a local youth, later killed in action, wrote home that his friends received little mail.

Marines wary of ecology in Maine beach 'invasion'

GEORGETOWN, Maine (AP) — Three Marine rifle companies on a training exercise "invaded" a state-owned beach Saturday, keeping clear of sand dunes and salt marshes that environmentalists had claimed might be damaged.

Carrying battle packs and snowshoes to the near snowless beach, one assault company emerged from amphibious tractors, then broke into squads and headed into nearby woods to seize mock military objectives.

The other rifleman arrived at Reid State Park aboard helicopters based on the carrier Guadalcanal, part of the 33-ship Navy flotilla taking part in Operation Snowy Beach which is designed to test the Navy's ability to operate in cold weather.

Marines participating in the initial landing stayed away from the dunes and marshes which were the chief areas of concern among environmentalists who went to court in an unsuccessful attempt to block the simulated invasion.

Woman dies as husband fights S.F. home fire

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Mrs. Frances LaBerge, 57, died early Saturday when fire erupted in her bedroom where she was sleeping. The two-alarm blaze caused $25,000 damage to her home and a neighbor's.

Mrs. LaBerge's husband, Philip, 60, said he was awakened by smoke and pulled his wife from her bedroom into a hallway where he told her to get out.

Then he threw the burning mattress out the window and attempted to beat out flames in the bedroom — thinking his wife had escaped.

Her body was found crumpled in the hallway. LaBerge was treated for shock and second-degree burns.

KISSINGER KIDNAP PLOT

Berrigan, 6 others face trial Monday

By LEE LINDER

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — The Rev. Philip Berrigan goes on trial Monday with six others on federal charges of plotting to vandalize draft boards and kidnap presidential adviser Henry Kissinger.

The seven also are accused of conspiring to blow up tunnels that carry heat into federal buildings in Washington, D.C.

THE ALLEGED scheme first was revealed by FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover two months before anyone was indicted. He linked the plan to what he called "an anarchist group" known as the East Coast Conspiracy to Save Lives.

Hoover asserted that Kissinger, who counsels President Nixon on foreign affairs and arranged the upcoming presidential trip to Red China, was to have been seized and held until American bombing ended in Southeast Asia.

These are the defendants:

—Father Berrigan, 40, Roman Catholic priest now serving six years in jail for draft board raids in Catonsville, Md., and Baltimore where records were destroyed by napalm fire and splattered with human blood. He describes himself as a "priest revolutionary."

—Sister Elizabeth McAlister, 32, on leave as professor of art history at Marymount College, Tarrytown, N.Y.

—Dr. Eghal Ahmad, 41, a Pakistani citizen now studying at the University of Chicago's Adlai Stevenson Institute of International Affairs. He was one of the originators of the peace teach-ins after President Lyndon B. Johnson began escalating American involvement in Vietnam after 1965.

—The Revs. Neil McLaughlin, 31, and Joseph Wenderoth, 36, Baltimore priests, temporarily relieved of parish duties. They have admitted participating in draft board raids in Philadelphia and New York.

—Anthony Scoblick, 31, a former Josephite priest whose father once was a Pennsylvania congressman, and his wife, Mary Cain Scoblick, 33, a former nun. They claim they helped destroy draft files in Boston.

An eighth defendant — John Theodore Glick, 22, Lancaster, Pa., was severed from the present action after he insisted on acting as his own lawyer. He will get a separate trial later.

Critics claim the Justice Department's handling of the case displayed undue haste and confusion, possibly to cover up embarrassment over Hoover's unorthodox disclosure to a Senate subcommittee that brought fire from Congress.

REV. PHILIP BERRIGAN

HOOPER claimed "the principal leaders" of the alleged plot were Philip Berrigan and his priest brother, Daniel, also in jail for burning draft files.

The special grand jury handed down two indictments. The first, a year ago, named six defendants with the top penalty of life imprisonment. It also listed Daniel Berrigan as a conspirator.

Last April a revised indictment added two new defendants, eliminated all mention of Daniel, concentrated on the planned acts of antiwar vandalism, and reduced the maximum punishment to five years in jail.

It also named four conspirators, three of them nuns and the fourth a Haverford College physics professor. None was indicted.

CONCERNING the plan to commit "depredations against property of the United States," the second indictment identified the targets as draft boards in Philadelphia; Wilmington, Dover and Georgetown in Delaware; Rochester, N.Y. "as well as other parts of the United States."

All of those named were vandalized in 1970. The indictment said the conspirators agreed to "surface" and publicize their participation in the raids which some of the defendants acknowledged they had done.

To the first indictment all six had pleaded innocent. At the second arraignment, however, the eight stood mute and the judge intoned "not guilty" for each.

Starlings driven off; disease feared

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Nearly all the 180,000 starlings that roosted in a residential area of Radford have been driven off, but a wildlife specialist said Saturday that they may have left diseases which can infect humans, sometimes fatally.

Virginia Polytechnic Institute wildlife expert Glen Dudderar, who with five associates drove the birds off Friday night, said in a telephone interview from Blacksburg that the birds could have left salmonella — food poisoning — and histoplasmosis, both of which can in some cases be fatal to humans.

"The one we worry about the most is histoplasmosis," which he described as a fungus disease that develops from accumulated bird droppings maturing in the soil.

The matured growths can ripen, be picked up by the wind, inhaled by humans and "produce symptoms similar to tuberculosis," he said.

For the young and those in good health, the symptoms seem like a cough, he said, but for others, particularly those with lung ailments, the disease can be fatal.

And he "noticed that rats from adjoining neighborhoods were coming into the roost and feeding on birds that had died," then returning to their old neighborhoods.

The Radford City Council voted last week to have the birds driven off because they were destroying grain, threatened to spread disease and were making a stench.

Dudderar and his associates used noise — aerial bombs fired from shotguns and recorded cries of starlings in distress — to roost 140,000 of the birds from the roost Friday night.

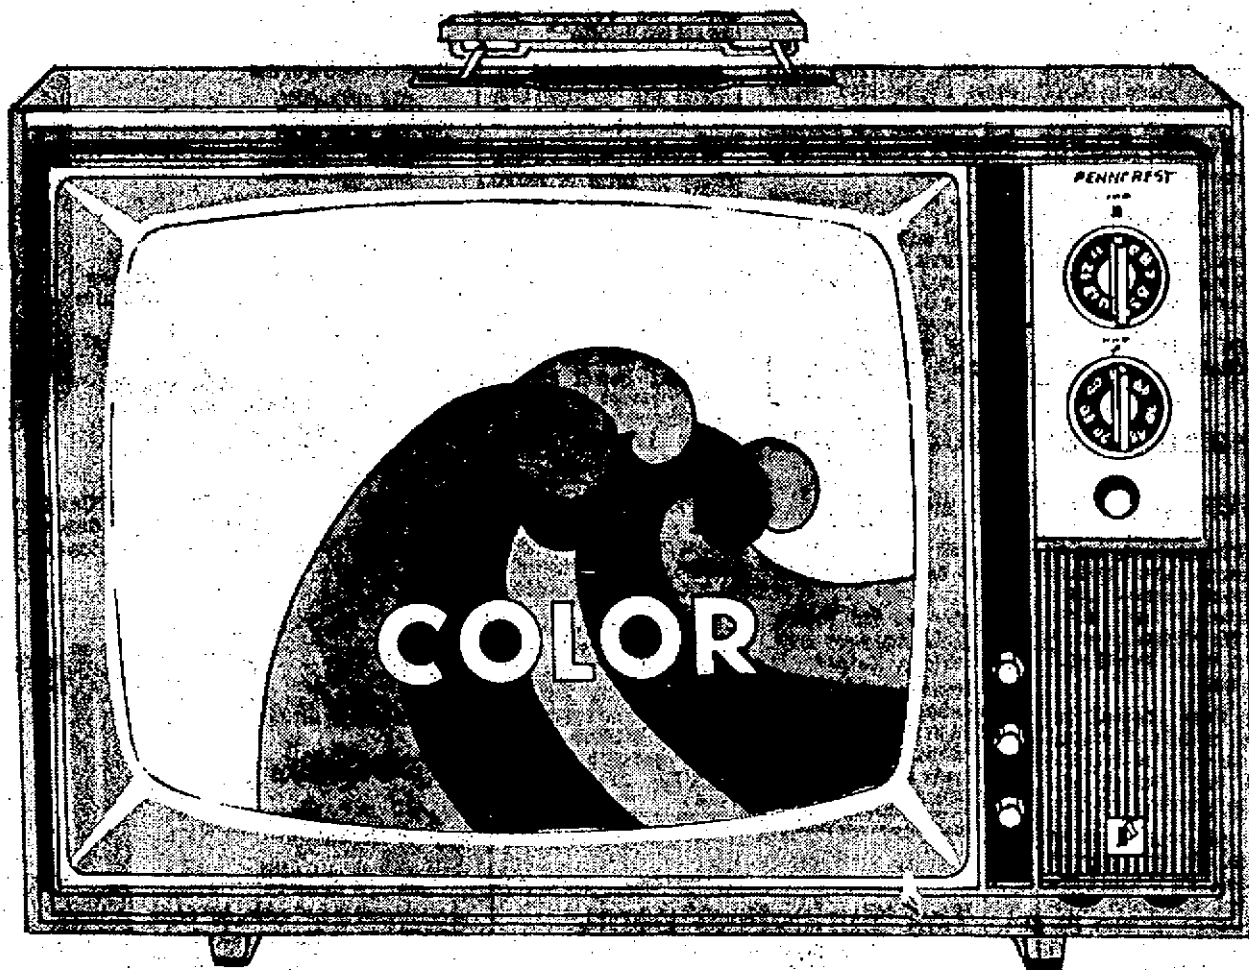

"There are maybe 10,000 birds in the roost now," he said. "That means 90 per cent are gone."

He said he would return for further efforts if need be. He also said that a technique that failed Thursday night might still work. The birds were sprayed with detergent then, but Friday was warm and the treatment had no effect. There was rain Saturday in Radford, though, and Dudderar noted that "as long as you have the soap in their feathers," within 48 hours after a rainfall "you can still have a kill."

The detergent removes protective oils from the feathers, which keeps the bird from flying and causes death by exposure to the elements.

Bomb threats fail to halt Rusk talk

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Former Secretary of State Dean Rusk, apparently unruffled by bomb threats and the shouts of a few dissenters, told about 1,300 persons here Saturday a "definite solution" to the world's serious problems must be found if mankind is to survive.

He spoke in the Men's Gym at the University of Arkansas.

The Northwest Arkansas Times here received an unsigned note Friday stating that if Rusk appeared as scheduled bombs would explode in Little Rock, Fort Smith and Fayetteville.

NO SPECIAL security precautions were evident at the university.

Dr. David W. Mullins, university president, introduced Rusk as the secretary of state "during a particularly difficult and turbulent time."

Rusk served under presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson during increasing U.S. involvement in the Vietnam war.

However, Mullins told the assembly, Rusk "speaks to us today as a member of the academic community." Rusk is professor of international law at the University of Georgia at Athens.

About six young people, sitting in the center of the audience, shouted numerous times during Rusk's talk. Occasionally they chanted, "Stop the war. Stop the lies." Most of their comments were drowned out by Rusk's voice over the sound amplification system. He took note of them only once, saying, "It is to be my privilege to meet after lunch with some of those who disagree with what I have done."

HE HAD AGREED to talk at a church youth center on campus with a group called Vietnam Veterans against the War.

Rusk listed the nation's main problems as being in the fields of environment, population control, race relations, economics and the quest for peace.

He said that he had seen public policy grown and change in dealing with environment and population control.

"I could not imagine 10 years ago that the Congress could pass a bill requiring auto manufacturers to clean up their engines in five years, yet it has been done," Rusk said. Rusk also said that when he joined the Cabinet in 1961, "if a person had talked about family planning, his ears would have been boxed," but since then family planning legislation has been approved.

PROFIT

LONDON (UPI) — Alf Long bought a round of drinks at his local pub for $2.60 and got a coin worth $50 in his change.

The coin, a two-pence (5.2 cents) piece, was made of silver instead of bronze because of an error at the royal mint.

"There are no hard feelings," pub manager Reg Denny said. "Maybe he'll spend some of his profit here."

DYERSBURG, Tenn. (AP) — Richard E. Donner of Dyersburg in West Tennessee has received a Christmas card from Emil Dörner of Duisburg, West Germany.

Actually, Dörner just forwarded it.

The card was mailed from Bloomfield, N.J. addressed to Donner in Dyersburg — but arrived at the home of Dörner in Duisburg.

Donner said in a note that the postal service must have made an error.

KENDALLVILLE, Ind. (AP) — Jean Harrod, the Kendallville city judge, fined her husband $5 plus $23 court cost.

Nelson Harrod was brought before his wife this week on a charge of violating the city's vehicle inspection law.

LIB COOL

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — Judy Heffner, 18, scored one for women's lib when she became the first woman ever hired by the city as an emergency snow shoveler. The job, which pays $2.50 per hour, was previously restricted to men. Asked whether she enjoyed being in the front lines of the liberation movement, Miss Heffner only smiled. Let's just say that now I have my job to keep me warm," she answered.

BAD NAME

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Six years ago this resort spent about $15,000 to get rid of its pigeons. Now it has more than 5,000 of the birds as paying guests.

The guests, in cages, are owned by members of the National Pigeon Association, which is holding its annual championship exhibition.

The pigeon fanciers don't like the street birds, either.

"They give all pigeons a bad name," said Frank H. Hollmann of Warrenton, Mo., first president of the 52-year-old association.

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The Wisconsin Senate approved a bill barring sex discrimination in assignment of public school teachers, but one senator had some second thoughts.

One of the bill's sponsors replied, "We've come a long, long way, but..."

Gromyko in Japan to counter Nixon China visit

By HEDRICK SMITH
New York Times Service

MOSCOW — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko flew to Tokyo Saturday night as a major Soviet countermove to President Nixon's forthcoming visit to China.

In a week's trip to Japan, Gromyko is expected not only to try to draw Japanese leaders closer to the Soviet Union, but also to dissuade them from following the dramatic American shift in relations with Peking.

On the first high-level Soviet official visit to Japan in nearly six years, he is expected to offer Tokyo a peace treaty formally ending World War II, long sought by the Japanese, and to urge the Tokyo government to extend more than $1 billion of credits to the Soviet Union to help develop vast oil and coal resources in Siberia, eyed by Japanese industry.

But preliminary Soviet-Japanese talks indicate that the current intensity of the Sino-Soviet rivalry makes Communist China and its relations to Washington and Tokyo Gromyko's major concern. His delegation includes Mikhail S. Kapitsa, the foreign ministry's top specialist on Chinese affairs, as well as officials specifically in charge of relations with Japan.

The Gromyko visit — considered three years overdue by the Japanese — is the most important step taken so far by Moscow to woo the Japanese since the announcement last summer of Nixon's plans to visit Peking.

In a dispatch from Tokyo three days ago, Pravda, the authoritative Communist Party daily, commented that it was time for Japan to think about its policies for the next decade after "a series of shocks felt by officials and business circles because of Washington's unexpected political and economic actions."

Having sensed an opportunity to exploit Japanese disenchantment with Washington both over the Peking trip and Nixon's tough stand on economic matters with Tokyo, the Kremlin has been moving for the past four months to improve relations with the Japanese.

Propaganda that used to depict Japan as an aggressive militarist state allied with the U.S. was sharply muted and replaced by more flattering references to Japan's economic resurgence and her importance as Moscow's largest free world trading partner.

Visiting Japanese parliamentary delegations were given increasingly warm treatment, culminating last week with the visit of Kenzo Kono, speaker of the Japanese parliament, who was received by President Nikolai V. Podgorny.

NATO TALKS DOUBTFUL Russ sidestep of force cuts likely

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Soviet Union is expected next week to renew its call for a European security conference while sidestepping the possibility of immediate, preliminary talks with a NATO envoy on force reductions in Europe, Communist diplomats said Saturday.

These sources said Moscow had decided against inviting Manlio Brosio, the NATO "explorer," for exploratory discussions in the Soviet capital. Officially, however, the Soviet Union has not informed the United States of this decision, saying only that it is considering the question of a visit by Brosio.

Top Soviet leaders and their East European allies are to meet next week in Prague, Czechoslovakia, for a summit level meeting of the Warsaw Pact, the Communist equivalent of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

COMMUNIST diplomats said the conference was expected to call for the early acceptance of an invitation by the Finnish government for representatives of European nations, the United States and Canada to assemble in Helsinki to prepare for a Soviet-sponsored European security conference.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers said in a speech Dec. 1 that the United States would be ready for such preparatory discussions only after the protocol of the four-power Berlin Agreement is signed, subject to agreement on final details by East and West Germany.

The United States wants any European security conference to focus on such substantive issues as mutual force reductions by the Communist powers, the United States and its allies.

THE COMMUNIST diplomats here report that the Soviet Union is opposed to "bloc-to-bloc" negotiations on mutual, balanced force reductions which the United States favors. But, they say, the Soviets might soon suggest a compromise for exploring ways of dealing with possible negotiations on troop reductions.

This compromise might involve creation of a commission made up of the United States and the Soviet Union, with two allies from each side.

Communist sources have suggested that West Germany and Belgium might join on the U.S. side and that Poland and Czechoslovakia side with the Soviets.

The diplomats see this commission as replacing the NATO proposal that Brosio go to Moscow, and paving the way for negotiations by a European security conference in 1973 or later.

Ban on hippies

SPELL WORKS MOST OF TIME

Finding stray husbands long suit of sorcerer

By SUMALEE PHITHAYAKORN

BANGKOK (UPI) — Pruiab Thosakul, 62, has been a practicing sorcerer for 30 years and claims his spells work about 80 per cent of the time.

One of his specialties is putting a spell on a wayward husband to bring him back to the arms of his wife. He explained how he goes about this:

"Say a wife comes to me asking for help because her husband has taken a mistress. I ask her to bring me an article of her clothing and something her husband wears. Underwear works fine. I also like to have photographs of the couple."

"Then I make three dolls of wax. One represents the wife, another the husband and the third, the mistress."

Prajuab demonstrated how he then ties the husband doll and the wife doll together.

"They are tied face to face, as if they are embracing. Then the mistress doll is tied back-to-back to the husband doll."

Prajuab said he then wraps the clothing worn by the married couple carefully around the husband doll and the wife doll. Then the three dolls are placed in a clay pot and buried in a ceremony in which he makes an offering of shrimp, fish, liquor, cigarettes and betel nut.

"After 15 days the husband leaves his mistress and returns to his wife," Prajuab said. Always? "Almost, always," said the sorcerer.

Prajuab said he also can drive off ghosts or spirits that inhabit people. To do this he uses blessed water and a set of magic knives.

"I point a knife at the person inhabited by the evil spirit," he explained. "The person trembles for a few minutes and the ghost leaves."

Prajuab said he studied sorcery for 10 years with a mystic who "looked like an Indian." He earns quite well by Thai standards. His fees range from about 50 cents U.S. for a simple bit of sorcery to $5 and up. It can cost more for a complicated situation. He said he averages about 2,000 baht ($100) a month.

Hot line to Peking expected

By HELEN THOMAS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A decision to install a hot line between Washington and Peking may emerge from President Nixon's historic journey to mainland China next month.

The White House has such high speed communications with Moscow and is preparing to set up a similar link with Tokyo.

Nixon has said repeatedly that his trip to Peking is primarily aimed at "opening lines of communication" with 800 million people who have been largely isolated from the rest of the world for 22 years.

A hot line with Chinese officials would be another diplomatic move to communicate with a fellow nuclear power in times of crisis. In the case of Moscow and Peking, it is a question of contacting old adversaries in times of stress.

TOKYO, AN ALLY, sought the hot line so it could be assured of future consultation before receiving any more "Nixon shocks." The President's failure to inform the Japanese government of his plans to travel to Peking and his new economic restrictions in advance of his public announcements shook the Japanese government.

Nixon sounded a bit wistful in his State of the Union message to Congress when he noted that his summit sessions during the Yule holiday season did not grab many headlines.

GENERALS, ADMIRALS GALORE

Italy top heavy with top brass

By CHARLES W. BELL

ROME (UPI) — There isn't another army in the world that has as many generals per man as the Italian Army. Or air force. Or as many admirals as Italy's Navy.

Italy in fact has more generals and admirals than all of Latin America (with under 1,000) and Africa (about 200) combined.

The Army has roughly 1,200 generals (it's hard to keep exact count) to command 295,000 troops and 76,000 Carabinieri (national police under army command.) The Italian Navy is something else. There are more admirals than ships, submarines and all other sea craft combined. The Air Force has 228 generals and 426 planes.

When 19 Army officers won stars in December, an official at the government's fiscal watchdog agency, the court of accounts, reacted with one word: "Madness."

Officials estimate that only about one-half of the generals actually have duties. The ministry of defense permits the rest to stay home while they draw full pay and exercise all the rights of their rank.

In contrast, the Soviet Union has 300 generals to command an Army of 2 million men. The United States has an Army of just over 1 million and 513 generals command them. Mainland China has about 2.8 million men under arms—and technically no generals at all. It did away with such titles in 1965.

So why so much Italian brass? The official answer is that the modern military machine is so complex and comprehensive that Rome must promote enough officer experts to handle all its various command demands.

"For example," a defense ministry official said, "We have a surgeon general for the men and a veterinarian general for the animals."

The unofficial answer is a little more complicated.

Many officers receive stars before retirement to boost their pensions. For historical, military and social reasons, the military life is not one many Italians choose and for this reason, Italy has a draftee army.

Moreover, military pay is generally low. Privates earn 15,000 lire ($25.00) a month and a two-star general a maximum of 395,833 lire ($680.83).

"A star makes a man feel more important," a defense ministry official said. "It does not hurt to help keep a good man in uniform by making him feel more useful."

One of the benefits enjoyed by generals disappeared last year when defense minister Mario Tanassi did away with a regulation allowing generals to use as many as seven privates each as valets, chauffeurs, waiters and gardeners.

Now they make do with one.

Spanish industrialist, seized by rebels, freed

BILBAO, Spain (AP) — Lorenzo Zabala, Spanish industrialist kidnaped four days ago by leftist Basque guerrillas, was released near here Saturday, the newspaper La Gaceta del Norte reported.

His release had been expected after his company agreed early Friday to most of the kidnappers' terms. Zabala, 44, was seized Wednesday by four armed men who threatened to kill him Monday unless 183 dismissed workers were reinstated by his firm.

The note was signed by ETA, the Basque group that kidnaped a West German diplomat last year and held him for ransom of 16 of the group's members tried by court martial. ETA stands for Basque Country Free.

Navy's young Mod Squad sets a style to be followed

By HARRY NASH

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The Navy's Mod Squad — seven destroyers run by younger-than-usual officers — was such a success in its initial deployment that the concept of giving larger responsibility to the young soon may be extended to men in the enlisted ranks.

Organized a year ago, the Mod Squad — nickname of Destroyer Squadron 26 — was a brainchild of the chief of naval operations, Adm. Elmo R. Zumwalt. It began operations under its young officers last June, and in July sailed for the Mediterranean for a five-month deployment with the 6th Fleet.

THERE, IT "met its first test in high-tempo operations very well," says Capt. Richard E. Nicholson, who commands the squadron from his flagship, the USS Josephus Daniels, a destroyer leader missile ship.

The operations included antisubmarine and antiaircraft warfare exercises and aircraft carrier escort duty, and the Mod Squad's showing, Nicholson says, "demonstrated that these ships under this manning concept were able to participate effectively."

In the six-month period that ended in December, Nicholson says, the Mod Squad "was a leader in operational readiness among Atlantic Fleet destroyer squadrons."

The chief purpose of the Mod Squad experiment is to attract young men to the Navy and induce them to make it a career.

Only one of the squadron's seven skippers is a graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy. Two are Merchant Marine Academy graduates. Four are graduates of other colleges.

IN JUNE, Nicholson points out, 55 per cent of the squadron's officers were on their first tour of sea duty, and only 27 per cent had destroyer backgrounds.

On each of the seven ships, the commanding officer, the executive officer and the department heads were one rank below the ranks normally assigned to a destroyer squadron.

Skippers were lieutenant commanders, executive officers were lieutenants, department heads were junior grad lieutenants or ensigns. Several have been promoted since June.

The Josephus Daniels rates a captain as skipper because of her size — but she was given a commander. The commanding officer of a destroyer squadron normally is a senior captain. Nicholson, 48, has been a captain only 18 months.

From the start, the Navy's top brass labeled the Mod Squad an experiment — a test of what would happen if young officers were given more responsible, more exciting assignments.

"WE ARE trying to create a spirit of pride in the Navy profession," Nicholson said in an interview aboard his flagship.

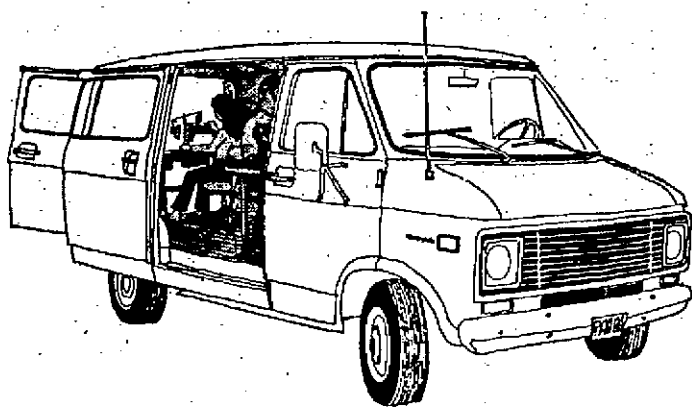

"Now that we've found that the officers with less sea experience could meet the test, the next step could be to test a similar concept among enlisted ranks by giving younger enlisted men increased responsibility."

"The success of the Mod Squad is attributable to the performance not only of the officers but also of the enlisted men who assumed additional responsibility to make up for the lack of sea experience of some of the officers."

Russ sign trade pact with Egypt

CAIRO (U) — A Soviet-Egyptian protocol signed here Saturday will boost trade exchange between the two countries to $575 million annually within the next three years, officials said.

The current volume was estimated at $500 million per year.

The protocol was signed by Soviet Minister of Foreign Trade Nikolai Patolich, who arrived here Tuesday, and Egyptian Vice Premier for Economy Abdullah Merzaban.

According to the agreement the Soviet Union will receive Egyptian cotton, rice, fruit and fresh vegetables plus $115 million worth of textiles, leather products, cement, cigarettes and wooden furniture.

IN RETURN Egypt will receive Soviet machinery, heavy industrial equipment, chemical products, cement, frozen fish and butter.

In Tel Aviv, two of Israel's top leaders predicted Saturday that diplomacy and increased political realism in Arab countries will keep the Middle East out of war for the immediate future.

Deputy Premier Yigal Alon told the 28th World Zionist Congress that President Anwar Sadat of Egypt made a courageous decision in allowing his "year of decision" — 1971 — to pass without resuming hostilities.

"We are witness to the beginning of a sobering of Arab leaders and the birth of political realism in the neighboring countries," Alon said. "On the other hand, the blind extremism which draws Egyptian statesmen toward a state of near-war and actual war seems to be intensifying."

Alon's reference to blind extremism apparently concerned the unrest reported in Egypt in recent days among students demanding that Sadat end the Suez Canal truce and give them military training.

DEFENSE Minister Moshe Dayan said in an interview on the state radio that if Sadat should heed the demands, the Israeli budget would be thrown into disorder because it was calculated on belief that "the fighting on our borders will not be resumed."

Dayan, who was gloomy on the prospects for peace last year, apparently drew his optimism from diplomatic activity in Washington aimed at getting talks started on an interim agreement to reopen the canal.

Mideast oil price ultimatum

GENEVA (UPI) — The six Persian Gulf oil nations Saturday gave major petroleum companies until the end of February to agree to sell the states 20 per cent of their operations.

The states said they will hold an extraordinary conference if the companies do not agree to such participation by that time.

Negotiations on the participation in the firms demanded by the producing countries began Friday and were adjourned after a second fruitless meeting Saturday.

The 12 oil firms involved were given until Wednesday to name a negotiating team to contact the Saudi Arabian oil minister.

The Persian Gulf countries are supported by the entire 11-member Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC), which together export 93 per cent of the world's oil.

OPEC officials said ministers of all 11 OPEC nations would meet in extraordinary session at the end of February. If the companies fail to agree to their demand for participation in company operations.

The officials said there would be "combined action" against the companies if the Persian Gulf states "do not receive satisfaction." The Persian Gulf countries are Abu Dhabi, Iran, Iraq, Kuwait, Saudi Arabia and Qatar.

The other five OPEC members, which already have control over company operations on their territory or substantial participation in such operations, are Venezuela, Indonesia, Nigeria, Algeria and Libya.

The 12 companies represented at the negotiations were Gulf, British Petroleum, Shell, French Petroleum, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Texaco, SoCal, Mobil, Iricon, Iraq Petroleum, Iranian Oil and Aramco.

ANTI-INTERMENT protester knocked down during baton charge by British army troops struggles as two soldiers try to lift him out of water.

British foil raid on prison camp

BELFAST (U) — British troops fired rubber bullets and launched baton charges Saturday in a beach battle with 2,000 demonstrators trying to storm an internment camp near the Northern Ireland coast.

The 10-minute fight broke out after the demonstrators marched five miles along the shore of Lough Foyle, waded into the water to get round barbed wire entanglements and then tried to break into Magilligan Camp overlooking the broad inlet on the north coast.

BUT THEY were beaten back by nausea gas, army batons charges and fusillades of rubber bullets. Several demonstrators and soldiers were injured, none seriously.

Army helicopters circled overhead and a Royal Navy minesweeper lay off the coast ready to assist the troops.

The civil rights militants were led by Ivan Cooper, an opposition member of the provincial Parliament.

"I WAS hit at point-blank range by a rubber bullet," he said afterward, wincing at the memory.

Some soldiers were injured by rocks and bottles hurled by the demonstrators, many of them women.

Magilligan Camp, an isolated part of County Londonderry, holds suspected activists of the outlawed Irish Republican Army, which is dedicated to the overthrow of British rule in Northern Ireland.

Istanbul under 15-hour curfew

ISTANBUL, Turkey (U) — Martial law authorities have ordered this city of 3 million to observe a 15-hour curfew today. They told residents on Saturday to remain indoors while police searched every building in town.

Gen. Fak Turun, the martial law commander, called the exercise "Tornado 1" and said the purpose was to search for "fugitives from law" suspected of hiding in Istanbul. Police have orders to shoot wanted criminals who resist searches.

Istanbul has been under martial law since last April 26, along with 10 Turkish provinces, as part of a law-and-order campaign.

Russ industry output up 7.8%

MOSCOW (U) — Soviet industrial production increased by 7.8 per cent in 1971, but agricultural production failed to reach the goals set, according to official economic figures published Saturday.

Figures released by the Central Statistical Board for the first year of the current five-year plan showed industrial production increased at a faster rate than called for in the plan, but the 7.8 per cent figure was below the 8.3 per cent growth in industrial production in 1970.

The figures also showed that 1971 could not match the bumper agricultural crop of 1970. Although the official announcement said agricultural production "was at the level of the record year of 1970," it did not mention that the plan called for an increase of more than 5 per cent.

Grain production was pegged at 181 million tons, a good year by Soviet standards, but below the record 186.4 million tons in 1970.

Canadian air strike nears end

OTTAWA (UPI) — Government and union negotiators reached tentative agreement Saturday on a new contract that could end the six-day-old air controllers strike which has halted commercial air service in Canada.

J. R. Campbell, president of the 1,600-member Canadian Air Traffic Controllers Association, said the controllers could be back at work Tuesday or Wednesday if the contract is ratified by the membership.

The union's executive committee will recommend acceptance of the tentative agreement, but Campbell said Saturday the government had compromised the ratification process by revealing some terms of the agreement before they had been presented to the employees.

Government negotiator Mike Bolger disclosed that the agreement gave the controllers only 2 per cent more pay for a work week only a half-hour shorter than they would have had under a proposal they rejected before going on strike Monday.

Virginia ruling is omen

By ED ROGERS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal judge's "metropolitan plan" for desegregating Richmond, Va., schools has been called an omen for every big city in the nation.

The reason for this can be best understood in terms of the dilemma facing Federal District Judge Robert R. Merhige Jr.: white flight.

Many factors have entered into the massive migration of whites from the city to the suburbs during the past two decades. But one of its most conspicuous results has been the drastic alteration of the racial composition of city schools.

A report issued this month by the U.S. Civil Rights Commission shows that judges seeking to eliminate all-black ghetto schools in many cities will find fewer whites to integrate with them.

In Nashville, Tenn., for example, public school enrollment dropped by more than 7,000 despite an increase of 500 black pupils after a decree last year called for total integration of city-county schools.

SIMILAR PATTERNS were seen at Houston, Tex., where white enrollment dropped 15,300 and at Norfolk, Va., where there were 4,500 fewer whites.

The Merhige decision was novel in that the judge reached out to where the white children have gone by ordering a merger of city and suburban systems.

Judge Merhige ignored a political boundary — the county line — that was sacrosanct in all previous court school-busing and zoning decrees.

If the order is upheld by the appeals courts, Richmond city schools, now 60 per cent black, next fall will be part of one big system including adjacent Henrico and Chesterfield counties.

The suburban and rural schools of the two counties are now 91 per cent white. With pupils being bused both in and out of Richmond, no school affected by the decision would have a black majority.

SHORTLY AFTER Judge Merhige issued his decision Jan. 10, a group of civil rights lawyers explained the legal theory to reporters at a Washington news conference.

They were led by William L. Taylor, former staff director for the federal Civil Rights Commission and now director of the Center for National Policy Review at Catholic University law school.

They took the position that the state has the ultimate responsibility for providing equal educational opportunity because it operates schools and draws political boundaries.

If a political line such as a school district boundary creates an artificial racial imbalance in the schools, the state must redraw it, the attorneys said.

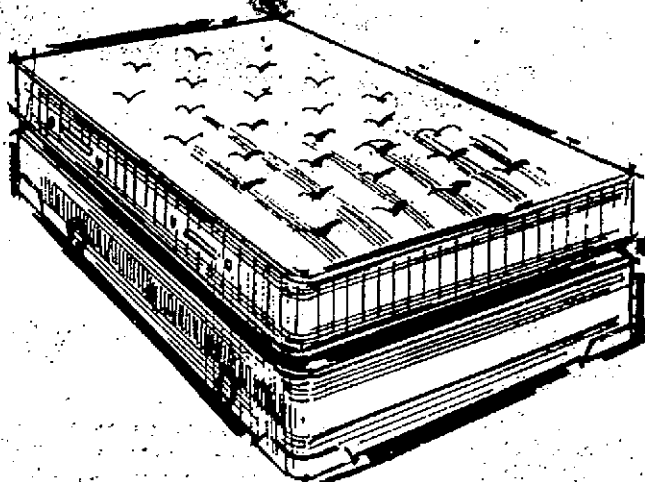

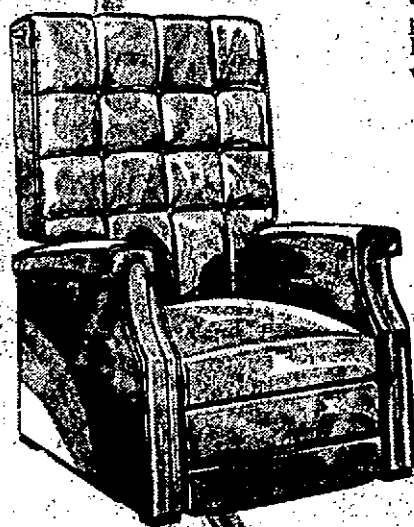

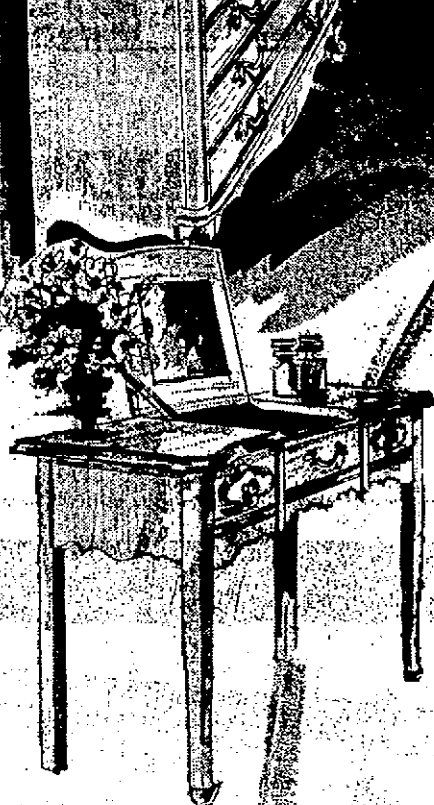

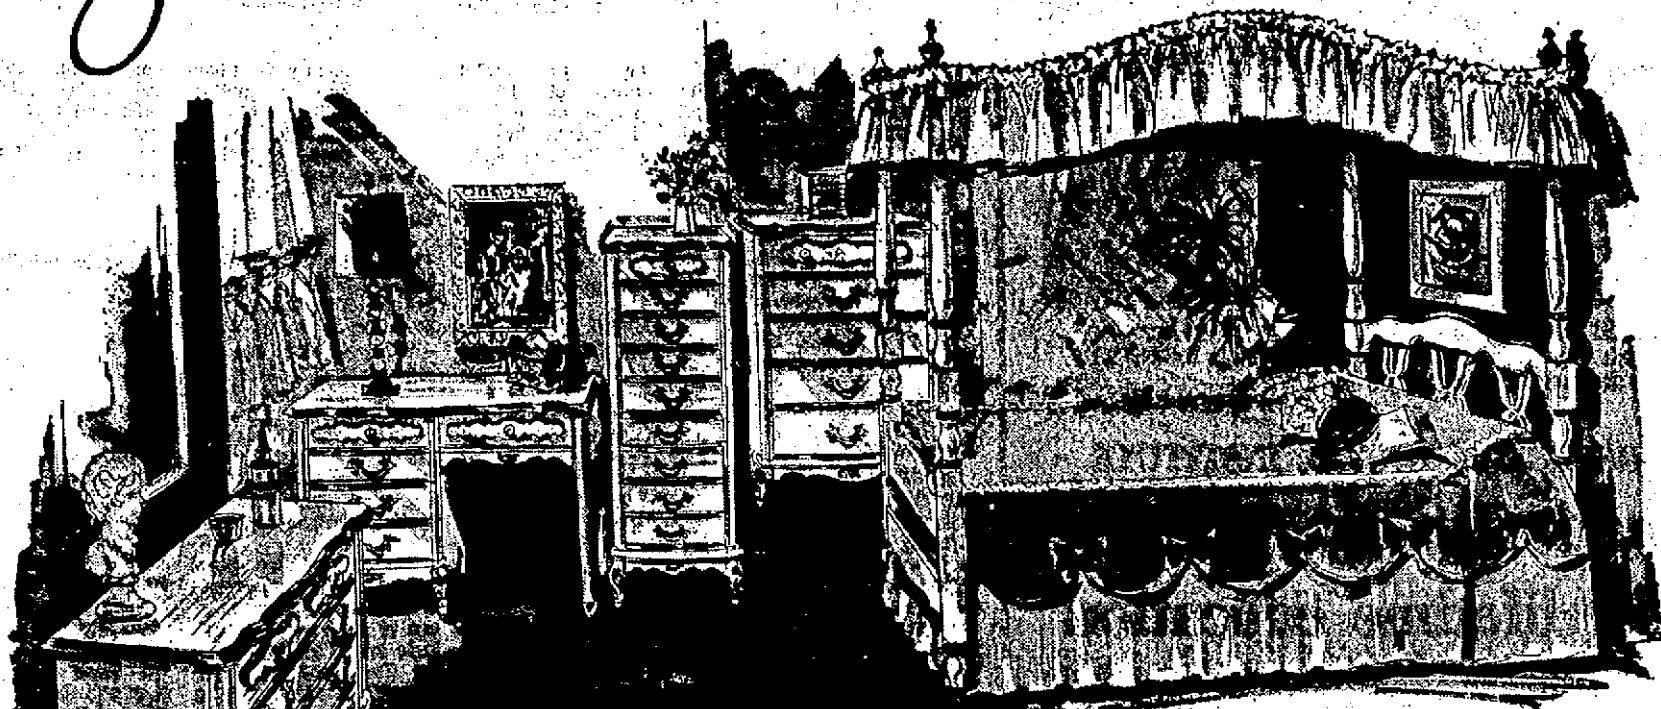

AS A PRECEDENT, they cited federal court decrees issued in past years requiring that state legislative district lines be drawn so that all voters are more equally represented.

While Merhige's decree merging school districts was the nation's first, they said, trends in a number of other school cases are pointing in the same direction.

In Detroit, Judge Stephen J. Roth last Oct. 4 ordered the state to submit a metropolitan desegregation plan within 120 days.

Plaintiffs in other suits are seeking similar metropolitan plans for Indianapolis, Grand Rapids, Mich., Wilmington, Del., and Hartford, Conn.

PERSPECTIVE ON L.B. INSTITUTE School without students ---for lifetime education

By RALPH HINMAN JR.
Education Editor

The inquisitive visitor's first clue that Long Beach's Institute of Lifetime Learning is no ordinary school hangs with a row of paintings on a wall just inside the main entrance at 234 E. Broadway.

"This art work was produced by participants," proclaims a neatly-embossed plaque surrounded by vivid seascapes and still lifes.

"Yes," confirms the institute's chief administrative officer, Leroy E. Hixon, "we prefer to use 'participant' rather than 'student.' We're trying to get away from academic language, and school often is a dirty word" to a generation which remembers yesterday's often-ferocious educational authoritarianism.

BUT A SCHOOL without students?

There are other clues to an organization built around a concept of "nonthreatening education for older adults."

Carpeted, stairless halls and classrooms—oops, "meetingroom" is preferable—where tables and comfortable chairs substitute for student-style desks are a far cry from the trappings of traditional academia.

"Older people, often arthritic, have difficulty getting in and out of student desks," observes Hixon. "Informal meetings gathered around tables rather than in rows of chairs are more desirable..."

Even so, not all the old ways are gone.

Hixon himself wears the very traditional title of "dean"; a "registrar" signs up those participating. And it requires only a minor stretch of the imagination to transpose a pleasant lounge, where participants gather for coffee, tea and a weekly sing-a-long, into a miniaturized student union or commons room.

ONE IS TEMPTED to conclude that the institute chiefly varies from Long Beach City College or Cal State, L.B. in the type and style of classes currently offered 728 local participants. Yet that's not a completely accurate picture since several courses—beginning Spanish, French, music appreciation, art and creative writing, to list but five—can be studied in any of the three facilities.

Some institute courses, to be sure, specifically are geared to a retired clientele's specialized needs and desires—rug making from scrap materials, "fun and profit with antiques," beginning dancing based on such standbys as waltzing and fox-trotting, Hawaiian dance.

An orchestra was formed last fall and now meets weekly for—as the institute bulletin phrases it—"pleasant fellowship and a lot of musical enjoyment."

There's even a weekly "forums" series in which participants—plus interested nonstudents up to a combined total of 300—can gather Wednesday mornings in a comfortable auditorium to hear lectures especially designed for persons 55 years or older.

THIS WEEK'S speaker, for instance, is Bernard E. Nash, Washington-based executive director of the institute's hyphenated parent organizations, the National Retired Teachers Association-American Association of Retired Persons (NTRA-AARP). HE will discuss at 10:30 a.m. the groups' efforts to meet problems of income, housing, health care and recreation for mature citizens.

Differences between the institute and other educational centers need be sought in philosophic areas beyond mere class offerings and internal organization. Hixon's "nonthreatening education," quoted previously, perhaps provides an essential key to understanding what's happening today—and will happen tomorrow—in the long-neglected field of continuing education for still-vigorous, retired Americans.

AND THEIR numbers are growing: current estimates indicate about 30 million men and women in this country are 65 or older. If mandatory retirement ages continue to drop—some observers predict Americans will leave their jobs at age 50 by century's end—the total could become astronomical.

(The twin national associations, for instance, already enroll about 3.5 million members, with some 27,500 living in metropolitan Long Beach.)

Further education to fill an aching void created by retirement was a cardinal principle of the late Dr. Ethel Percy Andrus, a remarkable human being who founded the associations and their service organization, the Institute for Lifetime Learning.

THIS LONGTIME Los Angeles public school principal stressed that learning never ceases, that the brain remains functional almost to the end for most persons.

But a special learning environment is required for seniors, she noted, a reality her intellectual heirs recall and put into practice here and elsewhere across the U.S.

"Comfort of the student is placed ahead of subject matter," notes Hixon. "Teaching is at a slower pace... homework is never assigned... and no grades, tests, examination finals or term papers are given" participants who "are learning for the sake of learning."

Such standard teaching techniques "tend to threaten the older student by placing him in a competitive situation with other students, the teacher or himself," says the executive.

"WHEN WE produce adult education for our older citizens in this context, more of them will be attracted to such programs and (they) will feel more comfortable. Older persons are more relaxed among their peers (with whom) they can exchange common problems and concerns and are not threatened by intellectual competition with younger students."

He does not suggest any widening of the generation gap, but would prefer to see it narrowed in areas other than specialized senior-oriented education.

This is not a program unique to Long Beach, of course.

NTRA-AARP operate a slightly larger, essentially parallel program at eastern headquarters in Washington, D.C. And smaller "franchised" satellites are springing up around the country as retirees in such cities as Hemet, Pocatello, Ore., San Antonio, Tex., Richmond, Va. and South Nassau, N.Y. band together to provide lifetime learning in a church basement or public building.

THREE correspondence courses—in practical psychology, world religions and recent U.S. history—are offered nationwide by the institute.

HINTS ON HOW IT WORKS

Price posting rules cause confusion among shoppers

By DENISE KUSEL
Staff Writer

Confusion, tinged with apathy, best describes how some shoppers feel about government price posting regulations.

The confusion stems from questions about what items are affected by the price freeze and exactly what is meant by the "base price" of a product.

It seems, however, even where base price lists are posted, which should include all business with sales over $200,000, customers fail to use them.

REASONS for not using the lists range from not having "the time to pore through a thick book with a lot of numbers" to "not understanding the list themselves" to a feeling of "helplessness" over rising costs of some items.

"It's crazy," Mrs. Gustaf Hansen, 13700 El Dorado Dr., Seal Beach, said about the cost of margarine.

"My husband and I live on a fixed income. We go around looking for the sales, but a lot of food items are priced out of reach."

"Where's it going to stop?" she asked, shaking her head slowly. "It's just not fair."

The new regulations enforced by the Internal Revenue Service instruct shopkeepers post basic price lists where the customers can see them without having to ask a store employee.

"THERE'S a lot of room for interpretation as to what is posted and where it is displayed," Mrs. Clayton Dale, an IRS investigator said.

She explained that the "base price" is the price the merchant was charging for a particular item from July 15 to Aug. 15.

"If a company was selling a can of fruit cocktail for 28 cents part of the month and for 29 cents some other time during the month, it is determined at what price 10 per cent of the cans were sold and that's considered the 'base price.'"

"So, then, under Phase II, the grocer can't charge more than 29 cents for a can of fruit cocktail, Mrs. Dale said, "unless his cost for the merchandise increases, in which case he passes this increase in price to his customer."

THRE STILL seems to be some confusion as to what items are included in the Nixon Administration's Economic Stability Program.

"For example," Mrs. Dale said, "beef on the hoof is exempt from price control, but once it gets to the market, it becomes a processed food and is controlled."

"The rule of thumb is food that has been altered in its physical form is considered a processed food and must be posted on the basic price lists."

While supermarkets must list every item on their shelves, including food sold in snack bars, department stores need only list the top 40 selling items in each department or items which account for 50 per cent of their sales, which ever is less.

BY CHECKING price lists, a customer can determine whether or not the retailer is complying with governmental controls.

Persons having a complaint about a violation or any questions regarding the basic price posting may call the Long Beach office of the Economic Stabilization Program.

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON

Forecast for Monday

Your birthday today: The year ahead involves continued definite effort on your part to accommodate or correct limitations imposed by modern technical conditions, the need for quick results. Today's natives are usually idealistic as well as obstinate.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Sudden demands may hit your pocket money and there is no quick way to recover. Mark time on career changes.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Stay clear of people seeking something to quibble over. Incidents range from silly-funny to disconcerting.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Take nothing for granted. People near you may be under critical attention for deviating from expected behavior. Pay no attention to rumors.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Endless discussions include several comments critical of you and your recent doings. You can make things worse by a thoughtless answer.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): It's all too easy to boast, let out too much of a commitment early. Take on a moderate task, act it done promptly and well.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): An awfully complex tangle of personal curiosity must be worked through on matters you can't directly ask about. Patience plus time brings all the answers.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Differences of opinion, fresh information may lead you to sudden change of plan, improvised arrangements. Omit neither formally nor informally as you go.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Cope with trivial irritations as though you expected them. Otherwise you may say something beyond what is appropriate.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): It's easy to get into situations where you have too much of the responsibility and not enough authority to pull matters together. Think first.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Changes are virtually certain to be a bit more than you're ready for if you force issues now — let them evolve gradually.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A small detail makes for a whole fresh approach very shortly — bide your time and prepare.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Your friends are volatile enough today with no incentive from you — play it calm and collected.

L.B. serious crime jumps 11.8%; ranks 14th among state's 20 biggest cities

During the first nine months of 1971, serious crimes in Long Beach — murder, robbery, forcible rape, aggravated assault, burglary, larceny over $50 and auto theft — increased 11.8 per cent over the same time span in 1970, according to FBI statistics.

The increase placed Long Beach 14th among the 20 cities in California with populations over 100,000.

One city, Oakland, showed a decrease of 12.8 per cent. This was due to a new reporting system which showed larcenies over $50 declining from 5,393 in 1970 to only 1,132 in 1971.

FREMONT, south of Oakland, showed the greatest percentage increase, with crimes in the seven categories increasing 41.2 per cent.

Other cities in California and their increases included Fresno, 32.5; Huntington Beach, 28.4; Stockton, 24.9; San Jose, 24.2; Glendale, 21; Santa Ana, 18; Sacramento, 17.9; Anaheim, 17.8; Torrance, 17.7; Pasadena, 15.7; San Diego, 12.2; Garden Grove, 11.9; San Bernardino, 10.9; Riverside, 10.6; Berkeley, 9; Los Angeles, 8.2 and San Francisco, 5.2.

Of the seven major crimes in Long Beach, aggravated assaults showed the greatest increase, up 34.4 per cent, from 417 in 1970 to 526 in 1971.

Robberies increased from 818 to 1,097, up 26.1 per cent; murders from 20 to 24, up 20 per cent, and rapes from 94 to 97, up 3.2 per cent.

BURGLARIES jumped 12.7 per cent from 4,655 to 5,245; larcenies over $50 from 2,986 to 3,094, up 3.6 per cent; and auto thefts from 2,313 to 2,551, an increase of 10.3 per cent.

Unofficial statistics provided by the Lakewood Sheriff's deputies showed an 8 per cent rise in major crimes in 1971.

There were 7,185 major crimes last year and 6,199 in 1970.

The Lakewood Sheriff's station covers Lakewood, Paramount, Bellflower, Artesia, Cerritos, Hawaiian Gardens.

Homicides increased from 7 in 1970 to 20 last year; robberies, from 324 to 417; burglaries, from 3,494 to 3,910; grand thefts, from 487 to 580; grand theft of autos, from 1,234 to 1,671.

Forcible rapes decreased from 67 to 36; aggravated assaults, from 588 to 551.

UNOFFICIAL statistics from the Norwalk Sheriff's station, which covers Norwalk, La Mirada, Pico Rivera and Santa Fe Springs, show a 6 per cent increase in major crimes from 6,852 in 1970 to 7,594 in 1971.

Nationwide, cities over 25,000 population showed violent crimes — murder, robbery, rape and aggravated assault — up 9 per cent and crimes against property — burglary, larceny and auto theft — up 5 per cent.

The same FBI statistics showed the Western states' increase was 10 per cent compared to only 3 per cent in Southern and North Central states and 9 per cent in the North Eastern states.

NATIONWIDE, violent crimes increased 10 per cent and crimes against property 6 per cent.

The FBI said the over-all increase nationwide was 6 per cent for the first nine months in 1971, and was the smallest increase in the past five years for the nine-month period.

In 1970 the increase was 10 per cent, in 1969, 11 per cent, in 1968, 19 per cent and in 1967, 16 per cent.

Too many hospitals, suit charges in Orange County

Orange County has too many hospitals built and planned, and too many of them are investor-owned, a judge in Santa Ana Superior Court was told before recessing a suit aimed at strengthening health care planning.

The suit — being heard by Judge Herbert S. Herlands — was brought by the California Health Care Providers' Association, which is challenging permits issued to some hospitals before a new law was effective to require approval by the Comprehensive Health Planning Council.

Judge Herlands was told by John C. Dumas, who directed a 12-man team in studying the county's hospital services, that the survey was made for the University of California, planning a hospital at UC Irvine campus in connection with its college of medicine.

The survey found that there are 27 hospitals with 4,007 beds in Orange County, and yet the county's physicians sent 23,750 patients to out-of-county hospitals for care.

Dumas said that the survey "found that Orange County didn't have hospitals with comprehensive services you would expect to see in a county of 1.6 million people."

The survey discovered that 68 per cent of the hospitals are owned by investors — including physicians. Dumas said the "average" of investor-ownership is usually five per cent.

Average size of a hospital in Orange County is 132 beds, he said; the most economical is from 400 to 500 beds, he added.

A state law which became effective Jan. 1, 1970, excluded hospitals "under construction" from the re-

SST inevitable for U.S.?

By HERB SHANNON
Aerospace Editor

Will American travelers be flying at supersonic speeds by the end of this decade? Will the U.S. aerospace industry overcome congressional opposition and get back into international competition with a supersonic transport of its own?

Ask the chief pilot of Continental Airlines, who recently returned to the company's Los Angeles headquarters from England, where he checked out the Anglo-French Concorde, the current leading contender in the world SST market.

HIS ANSWER to both questions is an unqualified yes.

"Most of the criticism of the SST in this country comes from the same people who were opposed to the jet airliner in the first place," said C. M. (Red) Stubben, Continental's vice president in charge of flight operations. "They said it would only benefit some group called the 'jet set'."

"How many of those critics are now flying on jets, not because it's a status symbol, but because it's more comfortable, quicker and less expensive?"

In answer to the second question, Stubben pointed to production models of the Concorde now taking shape on British and French assembly lines, and the strenuous efforts of the Russians to promote sales of their TU144, a similar supersonic commercial plane.

"American industry will be forced to build an SST," he predicted. "Foreign airlines will be flying supersonics and we'll have to meet the competition. That means we'll have to buy the Concorde or look to the Russians."

CONTINENTAL already has hedged its bet on a U.S. SST by taking options to purchase three Concorde, the reason for Stubben's trip in late November to Fairford in the west of England, to test-fly prototype model of the SST.

After half a day in ground school training and a two-hour cockpit briefing, Stubben took the Concorde up and flew it from the command pilot's seat for a total of five hours and 10 minutes, including 1½ hours at supersonic speeds and 42 minutes at Mach 2 (twice the speed of sound). He also shot 15 landings.

"I was looking at all models of flight from the point of view of airline operations, not as a test pilot," he emphasized. "It was very impressive. I flew it in every mode we would use in flight training — one engine out at the critical point on takeoff; four-engine, three-engine and two-engine landings."

"IT'S A BEAUTIFUL airplane to fly. For the subsonic pilot who flies by the book, transition will be no problem. The only difference is a slightly faster landing and takeoff — about 20 or 25 miles an hour faster."

"It has the same total thrust as the 747 at half the weight. When you release the brakes, you go someplace in a hurry. It's incredibly smooth and quiet, even in transition to supersonic speeds. When the visor came up and locked in place, the only sound I heard was the altimeter vibrator on the instrument panel."

"You get a real sensation of speed. There's no doubt you're traveling when you're up to supersonic. We had a cloud deck 25,000 feet below on one speed run and you could tell we were moving. In a subsonic at that altitude you just seem to be hanging up there."

As a pilot, Stubben said he was most impressed by the technological accomplishment of the British and French in producing the Concorde.

"It's one airplane as compared to the subsonics, which are really three different planes for three different operations. On any subsonic jet, the wings change each time for landing, cruise and take-off. You extend leading-edge slats for added lift on takeoff, retract for flying at altitude and then the flaps come out for landing at slower speed."

"SUBSONIC planes are built to fly best at cruise and they do that well. But the other two modes are compromises for special performance. Not so with the Concorde. The wing never changes, no flaps or slats. It had the same handling characteristics all the way."

Pilots will have to learn a few new tricks in flying the SSTs at optimum speeds, Stubben said.

"Just before going supersonic, there is a cockpit checkout while flying level at about 30,000 feet. You raise the droop-snoot visor into place to minimize air resistance and start pumping 20,000 pound of fuel from the forward tanks to an empty one in the rear of the plane. You do this because a shock wave builds up under the aft portion of the wing as you go supersonic, shifting the center of lift to the rear."

"You also have to retract the rotating beacon lights at this point. Otherwise, air friction would burn them up."

STUBBEN has passed his impressions of the Concorde on to Continental President Robert F. Six in lengthy discussions.

"He has followed the development of the Concorde very closely," the chief pilot said. "At the present we are still exploring some of the economics of SST operation."

"My personal opinion is that there is as much difference and improvement between the SST and present subsonics as there was between piston-engine planes and jets. I'm convinced it will be the most comfortable and pollution-free way to travel."

The veteran pilot noted that theories of upper-level atmospheric contamination by high-flying SSTs have been refuted in research studies conducted by the National Space and Aeronautics Administration since the U.S. program was canceled by Congress.

HE ALSO pointed out that under U.S. regulations, commercial transports cannot be flown supersonically over land, thus eliminating sonic booms over populated areas.

On its present route system, Continental would use a supersonic plane only on routes between the West Coast and Hawaii, Stubben said. But the airline flies beyond Hawaii via its subsidiary Air Micronesia, and other supersonic routes into the South Pacific could become feasible as traffic develops.

"The question of supersonic travel really boils down to a matter of public choice," said Stubben. "Would you rather fly five hours or so to Honolulu or get there in less than half that time?"

Demos call for reforms in party platform

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

Regularly published voting records, public campaign financing, abolition of Congress' seniority system and universal voter registration were among reforms suggested Friday at a state hearing of the Democratic party's platform commission in Fidelity Federal Plaza.

Several witnesses including Democratic candidates Fred Chel, for Assembly, 39th District, and Dennis Murray, for Congress, 32nd District, agreed on recommending to the party's national platform committee a requirement for publication of legislators' voting records both in committee and on the floor.

But Assemblyman Mike Cullen, D-Long Beach, said recording of committee votes would have an adverse effect on good government.

Cullen said he is happy to reveal any of his votes upon inquiry by a constituent, but gave this example of the abuse of publication:

Someone introduces a bill he touts as an ecology bill or a bill to end pollution — "a popular and emotionally-loaded title." Examined in committee, the bill "turns out to be folderol and trash. We in committee stand as a group and say it's a bad bill. Now if some wild-eyed group publishes a roll call and charges you voted against an ecology bill or voted against ending pollution," a legislator can't defend himself against the broadside distribution of a false implication.

If such committee votes were to be published, Cullen said, "all this trash would spill out on the floor (of the legislature) and it would mean the defeat of many good legislators."

Chel suggested full disclosure of campaign contributions, whether in cash or in services, and all debts incurred, and would have a candidate disqualified for failure to comply.

Murray listed among 12 points of reform that legislators be made more responsive through wider use of initiative and referendum and "legitimate" public opinion polls as guides for their actions.

David Stallwood, California State College, Long Beach student, spoke for reapportionment to make "competitive districts" rather than to make districts safe for an incumbent.

Cullen noted that "seven Southern California Republican legislators would agree with you." He said they would prefer competitive districts because their present "safe" districts oblige them to support ultraconservative views routinely. A less safe district would give them more freedom and flexibility.

Recommendations of the hearing will go to the state platform commission for screening and possible submission to the national platform committee.

MY TOWN AND YOURS

Sterling Bemis

WHEN WAS the Golden Age of Long Beach?

Some think it reached its peak when the Gabriellino Indians were still camping on the future site of Long Beach State and worshipping the great god Chinichich.

Others favor the quiet years when Long Beach couldn't decide whether to be a resort or a city. You could buy a good two-bedroom house for $3,000 then and the good people from Iowa had settled down, hoping the borders could be sealed to keep the rest of Iowa out. This was before World War II had come along to bother everybody, with the heroes on the home front firing anti-aircraft guns at imaginary enemy planes whose pilots obviously had Ocean Boulevard as a prime target.

Quite a few of the citizens fondly recall the late 40s and early 50s

when the computer was a Top Secret device heavily guarded at North American Aviation and Douglas Aircraft was busting its britches on peacetime production.

THE TOWN WAS a strange mixture of old and new. Red Cars clattered down American Avenue and screeched around the curve into Ocean Boulevard. Municipal Auditorium bustled with conventions and corks popped in three major downtown hotels — the Wilton, Lafayette and Villa Riviera. (This was before the Wilton was sold about every other Wednesday.) After a late show the revelers rode up the Wilton elevator to the Sky Room to show the view to cousins from out of town.

Jules Strongbow and Gorgeous George headlined the wrestling shows at the Aud. (George's blond hairdo would spill out on the floor (of the legislature) and it would mean the defeat of many good legislators.) Old ladies at ringside used to jump up and rap villainous razzlers on the knuckles to make them break strangleholds. On sunny afternoons the Municipal Band played in its shell on the strand west of the convention halls, within shouting distance of the Spit and Argue Club. Electric boats circled the lagoon and motorists trundled around the famed Rainbow horseshoe which glimmered at night with varicolored lights.

THE THING TO DO on a dull evening was to stroll along the Pike and view the crowds, with maybe a little girl-watching at the Funhouse. (The wind machines would be wasted on today's miniskirts.)

Pierpoint Landing opened in 1948. In the next year Long Beach State was founded in a small building in Park Estates and the breakwater was completed at last.

The town still carried over some of the swinging years of Rosie the Riveter. Vivian Laird's place key-noted downtown night life, sailors lounged in the bar of the Circus Room and upstairs business men sated themselves with Fred Hershorn's superb steaks. The real sports drove clear out to Spring and Lakewood to eye the strippers at the Bomb Shelter.

DRIVING NORTH from Spring on Clark in the late 40s the land was empty after you passed City College, although the bulldozers were revving up to clear the beanfields for Lakewood Center and the GI houses which would soon spring up near the airport. Everybody boasted of the airport then and hoped for more flights.

The Miss Universe Beauty Pageant started in 1952 and folks said it would really put Long Beach on the map. The big civic problem was the fight against the gambling interests.

Many believe the Queen Mary will bring the city its true Golden Age. If it does the new Golden Age will have something in common with the old one. Right now the urgent civic problem seems to be the fight against the gambling interests.

In tune with nation's mood

President Nixon carefully resisted the temptation to turn his State of the Union message into a state-of-the-campaign message.

In delivering a low-key report that eschewed political oratory in favor of a sober assessment of the nation's problems and prospects, Nixon achieved a political success nonetheless. He undoubtedly gauged the national mood correctly and perceived that it called for "reason and realism" rather than rhetorical flights and jingoistic calls to greatness.

INDEED NIXON WENT out of his way to contrast his approach to foreign policy with President Kennedy's ringing promise to "pay any price, bear any burden, oppose any foe to assure the survival and the success of liberty."

Nixon, meticulously chose calm, unemotional words to place alongside Kennedy's. "Our policy has been carefully and deliberately adjusted to meet the new realities of the new world we now live in," Nixon said. "We make only those commitments we are able and prepared to meet."

In other areas, too, the message similarly left the President with no grand promises to keep or failures to explain come election time.

AS A RESULT, THE Democrats have been reduced to complaining that the President wasn't sufficiently specific. This has the tone of a pro forma complaint. Everyone recognizes that had the President promised specific accomplishments in his forthcoming Moscow and Peking journeys and had he set specific target dates for percentage gains in employment and the economy, the Democrats would simply have charged that he was promising more than he could deliver.

In one area, the President did make a large promise, even though he did not flesh it out with a program. That was the area of property-tax financing of the public schools. Nixon said he will have "revolutionary" recommendations for a way to reduce and perhaps eliminate school property taxes without eroding local control of the schools.

The proposal will probably call for a value-added tax, in which every manufacturer, processor, wholesaler and retailer who makes, modifies or handles a product would pay a tax. The effect on the consumer would be that of an invisible sales tax, since every tax added until the product reached him would be reflected in the price he paid.

IN CHARGE OF DEVISING this tax system is the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations. In a letter to Robert Merriam of Chicago, the commission chairman, the President asked for advice on how the regressive features of the value-added tax could be minimized. That is a reassuring recognition by the President that, without compensating features such as income tax credits, a value-added tax system would hit hardest those least able to afford it: the men and women who must spend almost all their incomes for the necessities of daily life.

Merriam is a conscientious, imaginative expert on government fiscal affairs. He served as a budget expert in the Eisenhower administration. His bipartisan commission—which includes Democratic presidential contender Edmund Muskie among its members—now has a complex and important task that should be insulated as much as possible from the pressures of partisan politics.

The President's calm statement of goals and programs should help the commission. It should help the Congress, too, if representatives and senators recognize—as the President recognizes—that even in this election year the people want and will insist on "reason and realism."

Redistricting gripes insult intelligence

SACRAMENTO — Californians must either be very long on patience or very short on interest for them to suffer politicians' repeated insults to their intelligence.

So blatant are those insults sometimes that they simply have to be a factor in the skepticism too many citizens feel in the "system's" capacity to remedy society's ills.

Bob Schmidt

Take, for example, the reapportionment ruckus.

ANYONE INTERESTED in government understands why Republicans are outraged at Democratic attempts to gerrymander the state legislature to their party's advantage.

But what Republicans don't seem to understand is that people interested in government know that the Republican outrage is not in response to the practice of gerrymandering, but rather to the fact that they are not the ones doing the gerrymandering.

Certainly citizens know that when it is the Democrats doing the gerrymandering, it is the Republicans who assume the posture of moral outrage. And they know that if it were the Republicans doing the gerrymandering, it would be the Democrats assuming the posture of moral outrage.

IT IS DIFFICULT to believe that the Republicans, currently the "out" party, do not know that people know about the rules of the reapportionment game. But they go right ahead with their whimpering anyhow.

And that is the insult.

In 1970, when the Republicans controlled the legislature, it would have been appropriate for them to say "we feel there should be an equitable reapportionment next year, and so we are proposing that the job be taken out of the hands of the legislature, because legislators, conscious of their own careers and of their party obligations, will have a conflict of interest."

THEY SAID NOTHING of the kind, of course. Gov. Reagan last week insisted that he made such a suggestion in his 1970 campaign speeches (an aide later explained that the position was taken during responses to reporters' questions during the campaign, and not during the speeches themselves).

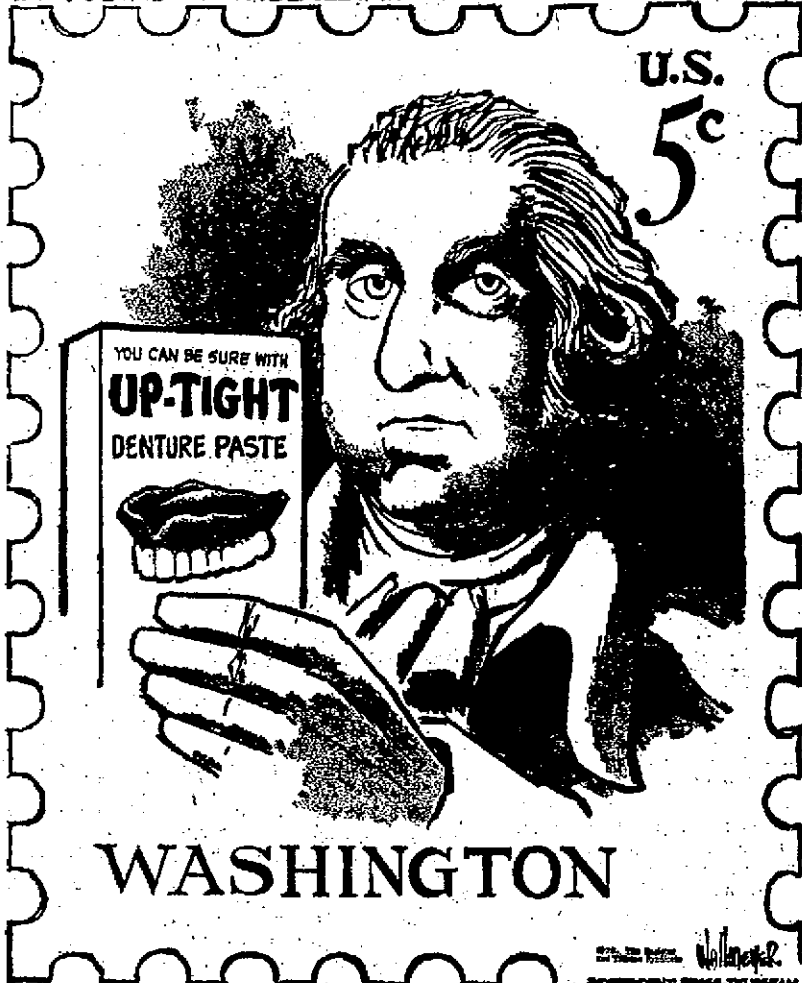

A spokesman for Lt. Gov. Reinecke made the same contention, although Reinecke himself said he did not recall any Republican making such a suggestion in 1970.

Nor could State Controller Houston I. Flournoy, like Reinecke a possible gubernatorial candidate in 1974, recall any Republican advocacy of the proposal when the GOP was in power.

AND THAT IS WHY the Republican whimpers currently being expressed are such sheer, utter hypocrisy.

Again, to be fair, if the positions were reversed it would undoubtedly be the Democrats indulging in the hypocrisy.

To repeat a contention made here several weeks ago, one of the best arguments for taking the reapportionment responsibility out of the hands of the legislature is that the public might then be spared this decennial insult to its intelligence.

Out, out that damned spot

Dr. William Fitzgerald, a self-admitted ecological misfit as the father of 11 children in an age when the popularity of people on the planet is at a planetary low, now wants to inflict his voluptuary code on all of us.

In what one has to suspect is a diversionary tactic from his own unbridled sensuality, Dr. Fitzgerald seeks to remove cosmetics from politicians and egg from the faces of the voters in one arrogant, brittle plank proposed for the Democratic national platform for 1972.

A PROFESSOR of political science at Loyola University, Dr. Fitzgerald offered testimony in Long Beach Friday night at the statewide hearing of the Democratic State Central Committee's platform commission on legislative liaison. Object: to make recommendations for a platform plank for submission by the California delegation to the Democratic National Convention next July in Miami Beach.

Fitzgerald, who really is a gentle and friendly man, obviously a favorite among the Democratic platform builders he addressed Friday, suggested a ban on all 30-second and 60-second political commercials on radio and TV and a ban on political billboards.

A violation of the First Amendment?, someone asked. Well, he said, if cigarette commercials can be banned as health hazards why not a ban on such political bluffs as hazardous to political health?

NEITHER THE spot commercial nor the billboard can deal with the issues, argued Fitzgerald. The voter who is swayed by them is buying image, a cosmetic effect, the brilliancy of an advertising agency rather than the man. His ban, he insists, would provide an escape from the non-rational.

The voters' choice, he said, should be related to issues, not images. This would queer the chances of such candidates who have actually been elected in campaigns in which they left town and depended entirely upon an ad agency which posted the candidate's name on a billboard with the slogan, "Three cheers for Mulligan."

IT OCCURS, of course, that an electorate that would vote in a man on the sole basis of a cheerleader's cry doesn't deserve any better. But Fitzgerald indicates that the voter often has little more to serve his judgment than cosmetics, bell-ringing, staccato TV graphics, sonorous background music and the bel canto hired announcer.

Bob Houser

What's the remedy then? Fitzgerald says the answer lies in money. Rather than an imposed ceiling on campaign spending which he says is unworkable because of the ease of circumventing rules, he would have a spending floor.

Every candidate would at least have a minimum kitty. His idea is for public subsidy. But to qualify, a candidate must agree to appear with his opponent in a public forum. Thus you'll encourage confrontation and confrontation is sounder basis for making a decision than germ-free, test tube image manufacturing.

IF YOU don't sally forth to meet your adversary you get no dough.

To help the idea along, the professor proposes that political advertising rates, normally higher than commercial rates, be lowered.

The whole package, he suggests, will help remove a most inimical threat to good government—the public's general mistrust of politicians, which is closely associated with the public's conviction that current campaign financing is finally corrupting.

Three cheers for Bill Fitzgerald!

Is Henry Kissinger ready for big league diplomacy?

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Whatever else the U.S. fumbling of the India-Pakistan crisis proves, it has demonstrated that Dr. Henry Kissinger is having trouble living up to the record of his historic idol, the 19th century Austrian diplomat, Prince Metternich.

Kissinger has authored a book about Prince Klemens W.N.L. von Metternich, who remained in power for more than 30 years in the early 1800s while maneuvering flawlessly in the byzantine diplomacy of that day.

SOME OBSERVERS in Washington claim to see a Metternich pattern to Kissinger's diplomatic moves as President Nixon's chief international policy adviser.

But it is doubtful that Prince Metternich would have given Dr. Kissinger very high marks for either his advice in the India-Pakistan crisis or his handling of the subsequent revelations from secret government documents by columnist Jack Anderson.

Anderson pointed out that the U.S. government's public position on the India-Pakistan war was one of "strict neutrality" but that in private Kissinger was leading an effort to get the government's position into a "tilt for Pakistan."

The swift victory of India over Pakistan, with the subsequent establishment of the country of Bangladesh in what had been West Pakistan, brings into question the U.S. policy.

Dr. Kissinger's claim that Anderson had quoted him out of context led the columnist to releasing complete texts of the secret National Security Council memos. The public view of the complete documents has established Anderson's basic premise of his first columns and has left Kissinger with egg on his face.

Clark

Mollenhoff

THE CHALLENGE Dr. Kissinger laid out to columnist Anderson looked even worse because it was a challenge that the presidential adviser didn't have to make.

Presumably, Kissinger had access to the same memorandums that Anderson eventually turned over to the Washington Post. The effort to establish a "tilt for Pakistan" comes through clearly in those memos and no one in government has challenged the authenticity of the memos.

The administration's decision to challenge Anderson was either the result of sloppy staff work or of an incorrect analysis of how Anderson would respond to that challenge.

It is possible that Dr. Kissinger had not reviewed the file on the "secret sensitive" meetings and was unaware of their "tilt to Pakistan" bias. Or, having read them, Kissinger could have failed to comprehend how critics could use them to make him out as a liar and the President as knowingly duplicitous.

Perhaps Kissinger doubled that columnist Anderson had actual copies of the meeting memos and was only bluffing on that point.

HOWEVER, IF Kissinger had been following the Supreme Court decision on the Pentagon Papers, he would have noted the federal courts have been reluctant to interfere with publication of documents on the basis of the self-serving declarations of the highest government officials that it would be against "national security."

In the old days, it was sufficient to get a defense secretary to declare that it would be against the "national interest" to publish secret documents, but that is no longer sufficient, as Dr. Kissinger should have noted.

To naively believe that a "secret sensitive" label would protect anything in Washington these days is the kind of gross misjudgment that would not be tolerated in an FSO-5 foreign service officer.

Perhaps Kissinger was misled by the current efforts to prosecute Dr. Ellsberg for leaking the Pentagon Papers, and the Supreme Court's invitation to prosecute the government people responsible for the "leak" of classified documents.

Or Dr. Kissinger may be so obsessed with catching the man involved in the Anderson paper's "leak" that all other factors were tossed aside as irrelevant. If so, we should question whether those making the decisions have the balance and experience necessary as the United States moves into serious talks with both Red China and the Soviet Union.

HENRY KISSINGER

Low marks for the professor

KISSINGER'S ROLE in the India-Pakistan policy seems to be faulty from two sides.

First, there is the question of why the administration was secretly advocating a "tilt for Pakistan" when India was able to prove far quicker its overwhelming military superiority.

Then the problem was compounded by Kissinger's challenge to a columnist who was able to prove he hadn't been quoting Kissinger "out of context."

Dr. Kissinger batted zero in this diplomatic episode.

At both the State and Defense departments, there is hope that President Nixon will view these errors as evidence that some changes are needed in the National Security Council's method of operation. Both departments point out this isn't the first time the National Security Council decisions haven't been supported by a realistic appraisal of the facts.

HOPE MAY NOT be enough unless Kissinger's batting average improves as he moves up into the big leagues with negotiations with both Russia and China.

Maybe the presidential adviser will be on better ground in subsequent talks. After all, Prince Metternich had some of his best diplomatic successes in his negotiations with czarist Russia in the 1800s.

GOP 3-2

From Our L.A. Bureau

Democrats continue to hold a commanding lead over Republicans in Los Angeles County according to the latest voter registration figures released Friday.

Of 2,919,132 total registrations in the county as of Jan. 4 the Democratic party had captured 1,859,160 or 63.74 per cent, said Registrar-Recorder James Allison.

Republican registrations were 1,076,206 or 36.87 per cent.

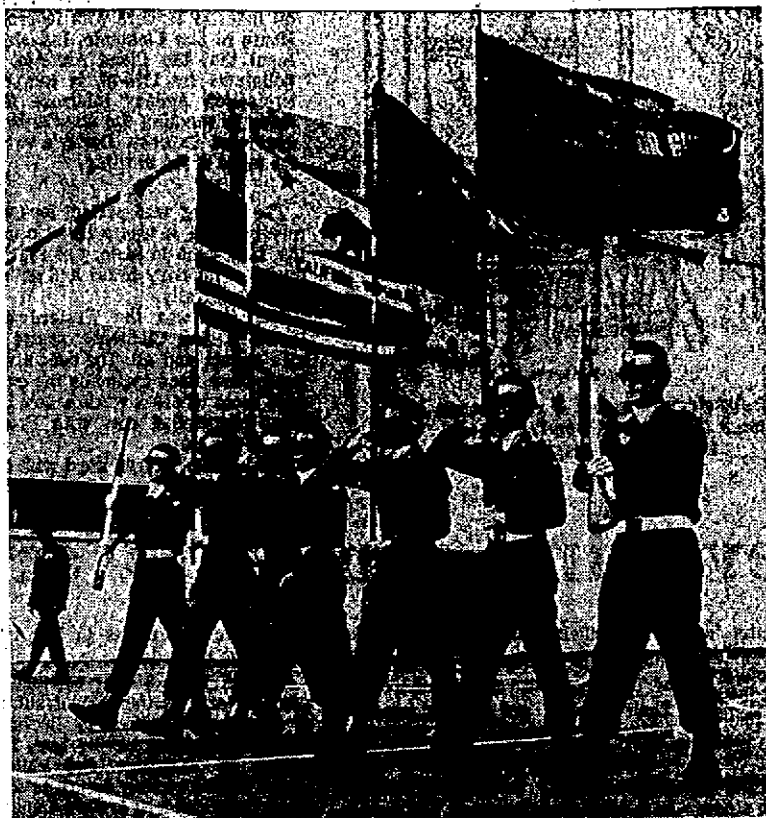

Other tallies were: American Independent 18,451 or .63 per cent; Peace and Freedom 18,330 or .62 per cent; miscellaneous 14,927 or .51 per cent; and 132,058 voters on 4.53 per cent declined to state any party affiliation.

Allison said total registrations were up more than 500,000 over January 1971 but were still running below the November 1970 figures when there were 3,116,095 registered voters in the county.

Total registrations in Long Beach as of Jan. 4 were 169,841, with Democrats numbering 89,043, Republicans 69,966, American Independents 1,089, Peace and Freedomites 1,179, and 8,364 either declining to state or choosing miscellaneous affiliations.

Allison warned that registration for the June 6 presidential primary closes April 13.

MILLIKAN COLOR GUARD CAPTURES ROTC COMPETITION

Millikan High marched off with four of five first places in the Long Beach Unified School District's annual Junior Reserve Officer Training Corps drill competition Saturday on Poly High's field. The largest crowd in recent years was present.

Millikan, Poly and Jordan are Army ROTC units; Wilson and Lakewood are Navy ROTC units.

Long Beach American Legion post 27 sponsored the event and Legion representatives made the trophy presentations.

Millikan Cadet Capt. Steve Corum led his unit to a first in the precision drill. Corum himself was third in the individual manual-of-arms.

Poly's Cadet Capt. Alvin Hayes led his group to second place in the precision drill, the same spot his group took in squad drill.

Cadet 1st Sgt. Robert Strazz, Poly, was No. 1 in individual manual-of-arms with Cadet 1st Sgt. William Frank, Jordan, second and Corum third.

In platoon work Millikan Capt. Raymond Betts' group was first with Jordan Cadet Maj. Tony Solzano's platoon second.

Millikan color guardsmen, led by Cadet Lt. Steve Borcich, took first. Poly was second with Solzano leading.

Squad drill competition was won by Millikan (Cadet Maj. Jeff Brooks), Poly (Hayes) second and Cadet Maj. Robert Spitz (Jordan) third.

Judges were active duty Marines, Army, Air Force and Navy officers.

Airplane, stolen from L.B., recovered

A $35,000 Cessna airplane, stolen Sunday from Long Beach Municipal Airport, has been recovered in Northern California, Long Beach police said Friday.

Reed reported the orange-colored craft missing late Sunday from the flight line at the Cessna Aviation Inc., portion of the airport.

York County picnic

A town picnic for former residents of York County, Nebraska, will be held Saturday, February 13, at Houghton Park clubhouse, 6300 Atlantic Ave., from noon to 1:30 p.m., a spokesman said.

Owner Howard Reed, of 3601 Vermont St., president of Reed Enterprises auto equipment firm, was told by detective Matt Parrish, of the LBPD theft detail, that his six-seat Cessna 210 was found Monday at Mojave Airport in Kern County.

Typewriter stolen

An electric typewriter valued at $375 was stolen from Lawee Inc., 531 W. 15th St., Long Beach police said Saturday.

Daring young men on their tricycle machines

Two weather-beaten young men rolled into Santa Fe Springs Friday morning to conclude a 3,000-mile jaunt across the western half of the United States in the dead of winter. Their vehicles were five-horsepower three-wheelers.

The men, John Taylor, 30, and Ron Gorchow, 23, left their home in Union Lake, Mich., Dec. 28. It's less than 3,000 miles to Michigan but they felt impelled to take some side trips.

"I'D DO IT again," said Gorchow. "But I don't want to start tomorrow."

They had little hardship except for one day in an Oklahoma blizzard. They wore snowmobile suits, electric mittens and insulated helmets, but they suffered.

Other than that, they had little trouble except from policemen who were always stopping them to make sure they were actually driving "automobiles."

They were. They had modified their cycles with lights, horns, fenders, etc., to conform to the various state laws.

They traveled by day, 35 miles an hour on the level, 40 down hill. They stayed in motels at night except once in a town that had no motel. The police allowed them to stay in jail.

THE WHOLE thing, of course, was a publicity stunt—a highly successful one that every public relations man dreams about. Their vehicles are Dune Cycles and — you guessed it — they are assembled in Santa Fe Springs. The factory is Allied Pacific Engineering Products, a division of Tower Industries, 13727 Excelsior Drive.

The Dune Cycles are one-seaters, weighing 120 pounds. They have big "floatation" rear tires and a small front tire. They get 60 miles to the gallon. In winter a ski can replace the small front wheel. They cost from $299 to $449.

They are designed strictly for off-the-road use. They fit into a station wagon or the trunk of a standard American car. A child can drive one, they say, but a plaque warns that it is not a toy and must be handled safely. They appeal to all ages, and the Emerald Three-Wheeler Club in Oregon has no members under 50.

But, in spite of the cross-country exploit, they are not recommended for roads or streets. A street model is now on the drawing board.

BILL STULL, general manager of the plant, is the chief designer. The Dune Cycles were made first in a home garage about a year and a half ago. Last year more than 5,000 were sold.

The company thinks the trip of Taylor and Gorchow will spread the gospel of Dune Cycles. Wherever they went, they drew crowds. Newspapers published features, and they were on a TV program in Tulsa.

High point of their reception was at Muleshoe, Texas, where their visit turned into a civic holiday marked with much hospitality. The event was climaxed by the mayor driving a Dune Cycle around the town's statue—a mule.

Price controls still confuse car dealers

By ART STEPHAN
Auto Editor

Seeking clarification of price freeze regulations as applied to new car dealers, Harbor area owners met to hear local Office of Economic Stabilization executives explain confusing directives of the anti-inflationary measure.

Conducted by the Long Beach Motor Car Dealers Association, the meeting was guided by Jim Williamson of Boulevard Buick, vice president of the dealer group. In attendance were three Internal Revenue Service investigators who conducted a spirited question-and-answer session which did not quite dispel the price and wage confusion rampant in the auto industry.

On hand from the Orange County office of the IRS, which has been named to provide information on the controversial freeze, were Rudy Merrick, group supervisor of the Economic Stabilization Program, and Vince Kacana and Bill Neely, investigators for the IRS. The Orange County office is set up to explain price, wage and rent controls for five Southern California counties, including the southern portion of Los Angeles County.

Supervisor Merrick led off the meeting saying, "What we say today is good for today only, or rather, for this minute," noting that price freeze directions from Washington change before the paper can absorb the ink.

Questions flew from every table and the three IRS men were valiant in their answer attempt. Most frequently asked was what is the legal price of a new 1972 automobile?

Supervisor Merrick answered: "Forget the sticker list price. The base prices which must be displayed in your showrooms are determined by the highest similar model sale price during the base period of July 18 to August 15, 1971. Any increased selling cost to date accrued by the dealer may be passed on to the customer," Merrick went on to explain this means any "in-house" expenses such as salaries or supplies.

ANSWERING one dealer's question, the supervisor explained, "If your sticker price on a car was $4000 and you sold that car for $3500 between July 16 and August 15, 1971, that is the top price you can charge for that car — 1971 or 1972 model. The former sticker price no longer prevails."

Other Revenue Service men answered questions, ranging from pricing accessories and hourly service department charges to wage increases. Although not always too convincingly.

Inspector Neely explained allowable wage increases to the dealers saying, "The absolute annual wage increase for your employees is 5.5 per cent and, if pensions, stock option plans or life and health insurance plans are raised to this maximum of 5.5 per cent, this is counted as part of the projected salary increase."

At this point a dealer wanted to know if he could hire a new general manager and pay him more than the man now holding the job because he felt he was worth more. The answer was an emphatic no. This prompted one of the import car dealers to remark, "Why not just change his title to a more important one to go with his new salary?" which prompted Supervisor Merrick to remind him the IRS also had the job of prosecuting price freeze violators, which ended that conversation.

As the meeting concluded the investigators offered their help to individual dealers in their own stores to help solve any confusion and I'm sure they'll find a few takers.

To sum up the meeting, the IRS guys, what with their almost daily directives, seemed slightly confused, the new car dealers seemed slightly confused, and this reporter was slightly confused. Or, was it the other way around?

Survey hits hospitals in Orange area

Requirement of justifying themselves before the Comprehensive Health Planning Council — how necessary before state and federal funds are available to assist in construction.

The result was a "rash" of construction permits issued by the State Bureau of Health Facilities, according to Wallace C. Cameron, regional chief.

HE TESTIFIED that his bureau, part of the State Department of Public Health, granted approval on basis of construction plans, but that he did not require showing of actual work.

The California Health Care Providers' Association, a group of Orange County hospitals, contended that groundbreaking or site preparation is not "construction."

The association is challenging permits to five hospitals which might cost $20 million. At least one of these five hospitals already is built and is operating.

DUMAS said that the UC study found that 17 hospitals planning 3,424 beds either are under construction or are in the planning stage.

The occupancy rate of hospitals is below optimum expected for profitable operation, with the result that per-day charges are increasing, the court was told.

Judge Herlands recessed the hearing until Monday at 1:30 p.m.

Rose pruning exhibition in Westminster

Rose enthusiasts from all of Southern California are attending the annual rose pruning demonstration, an event that has been expanded to a two-day affair.

It will conclude today at the Westminster Civic Center, 8200 Westminster Avenue. It is being held by the Orange County Rose Society and the Westminster Recreation and Parks Department, starting at 1 p.m.

The guest speakers will present illustrated lectures and there will be practical demonstration of the rose pruning.

The Westminster Civic Center has been designated as an official All American Rose Selections Public Viewing Garden. AARS winners are announced to the public after growing in the civic center rose garden for a year.

Officials of the Orange County said that "Portrait," a pink hybrid tea rose with urn-shaped buds and "Apollo," a clear yellow flower (both AARS winners for 1972) have been growing at the Westminster center for a year's time.

EARL WILSON ON BROADWAY

Chevalier never one to waste money

NEW YORK — Maurice Chevalier was one of the most beloved of all entertainers but there were facets to his character not known to everybody. The composer of "Hey, Big Spender" did not have Chevalier in mind. He had been a poor boy and he remained thrifty, as several girls who expected him to be more generous with gifts could tell you.

His charm captivated the most hardened of the press crowd. He was sincere in his belief that anybody with ability to entertain should continue entertaining as long as he could. He once told me that Greta Garbo should have continued making pictures and pointed out that Marlene Dietrich had kept on working and so why hadn't Garbo?

Curiously, Chevalier owed much of his popularity in America to a press agent friend of mine, Carl Erbe, a Middle Western boy from Rock Island, Ill., who became as Broadway as mugging.

In the mid 1940s, Chevalier wanted to come to the U.S. to do a one-man show — but hanging over his head was the rumor that he had collaborated with the Nazis (since he had sung some concerts to German troops).

A New Yorker with French background, Arthur Lesser (later the husband of Patachou) wanted to bring him to the U.S. and asked Carl Erbe, then press-agenting as well as operating the night club the Zanzibar, to handle publicity for Chevalier. Erbe, short of stature, looked youthful.

"If you can prove to me that Chevalier was not a collaborator, I'll do it and I'll also put up $10,000," said Erbe. "I'll be his angel."

Lesser flew to Paris and sent back a voluminous file proving to Erbe's satisfaction that the collaboration charge was false.

But Erbe, a bouncy, furiously active little man with humor and imagination, knew that the American press had many cynical b— (blokes) in it and had to be convinced.

In those days of 1947, celebrities arrived from Europe by ship and were interviewed by ship news reporters who rode out in a cutter and climbed aboard in a precarious manner.

KNOWING OF Chevalier's great charm, Erbe wanted him to win them over before they got a chance to interview him. Erbe took along to the ship a straw hat and a cane, and gave these props to Arthur Lesser who handed them to Chevalier as he greeted the reporters.

Chevalier did a show for the press swinging the cane and waving the boater and they acclaimed him as they would Princess Grace. The battle was over. He was almost a national hero.

Carl Erbe felt so good about what had happened that he walked over to Chevalier later in a room set aside for Chevalier to say hello. Chevalier had seen Carl Erbe helping with the bags and he said to Lesser, in French, "Tell that kid to take care of my baggage."

That didn't sit well with Carl Erbe, considering his publicity job and $10,000 investment. But Lesser motioned to him not to say anything — and Erbe went along, watching the luggage, as Chevalier went to the Stanhope to check in.

"When the luggage was brought to the room," recalls Erbe, "Chevalier took one look at it and started to howl me out because the leather was scuffed."

"Now that Maurice is with the heavenly angels, he will never know who his earthly one was," says Carl Erbe.

There have been 3-D pictures, stereophonic pictures, wide screen and then screens, but now George C. Scott offers his version of the stethoscopic picture. Between scenes while filming "The Hospital" he tuned in to the beatings of his heart, left, and was evidently quite pleased by what he heard.

Eastern builders to inspect Southland construction

By ROBERT BECKMAN
Real Estate Editor

Housing developments in the Long Beach-Orange County area will be under expert scrutiny come the first week of June.

Taking a long, curious look at our new "communities" will be Eastern builders.

They come west each June — to San Francisco — for the annual Pacific Coast Builders Conference.

Catalyst for the unprecedented influx of builders to the Southland, however, is a specially designed vacation-tour offered by PCBC that will jet builders and families to Southern California first.

Here they will see the latest in housing trends, cover major vacation sights, jet to Northern California for more of the same and winding up June 7 at the three-day PCBC.

The PCBC qualifies as the nation's second largest builders' gathering. Only one larger is that of the National Association of Home Builders.

Side trips to San Diego and Disneyland are on the local agenda for the touring builders.

"Each year," said Stan Swartz, PCBC president of San Diego, "PCBC's programming extends further beyond the Pacific Coast region."

"It is our desire to make the conference more accessible to builders from the East so they, too, can benefit from the comprehensive educational opportunities the event offers."

The PCBC chief also revealed major builders in Australia and Japan already have signed to attend, or are expressing serious interest.

rent; counsel him in ways of finding a home or apartment; show him how to handle the financing; and tell him how much he could expect in the way of a federal housing allowance to support the more adequate home.

Once the applicant found a home of his own choosing, he would receive a housing allowance not to exceed 75 per cent of the cost of the monthly payments. The figure would be lower, depending on the applicant's income, monthly payments and value of the property.

The applicant would have to pay at least 25 per cent of the monthly payments or rent from his own income. This would restrict the size of the house or apartment, but would still allow him to select the kind of home he wanted and the location, a choice he does not have under the present subsidy program.

Mattison said a section of the Housing Act of 1970 provided a small appropriation for use in the area of housing allowances for the underprivileged, but no one moved forward on it.

He said the MBA will be pushing for passage of housing bills presently before the Senate that contain such appropriations.

"While this may not be the ultimate answer, we have to find a way to help those who cannot at present afford adequate housing," he said.

NEWEST OFFERING FROM S & S... it's College Park Cypress

S&S opens 1200-home College Park in Cypress

Booming into 1972 with its second grand opening, S&S Construction, a subsidiary of Shapell Industries, Inc., is opening its third College Park community, this in the City of Cypress.

The other College Park projects are the 5,000-home community in Seal Beach and the 850-home Irvine development.

Located on Valley View, between Orangewood and Katella, College Park will offer 1,200 homes with 112 lots in the first unit being released for sale; six floor plans and 18 exterior elevations are featured ranging from three to seven bedrooms.

Two 3-bedroom models offer from 1530 to 2070 square feet of living space and three 4-bedroom plans range from 1970 to 2295 square feet.

THE LARGEST home, with 2560 square feet, is an adaptable floor plan which may be built with three, four, five, six or seven bedrooms — depending on the family's needs.

If the buyer prefers three bedrooms the home features a family room-kitchen area which extends the entire width of the house, including a sunken conversation pit with fireplace.

All bedrooms are on the second floor, including a split level master suite and a recreation room.

S&S is offering for the first time built-in trash compactors in every home.

"We're constantly searching for new ideas and products as well as new design features," commented Garry Driskin, general manager of S&S. "We know the trash compactor will be a very exciting element added to the list of quality features."

OTHER features included in the purchase price of every home are shag carpeting throughout including all bedrooms, decorative vinyl flooring, cedar shingle roof, wet bars in many homes, completely equipped kitchen with self-cleaning oven, cast iron tubs, ceramic tile in kitchen and bath, block wall fencing, complete wall and ceiling insulation, stone and brick fireplaces, hand-finished cabinets and extensive use of stone and masonry accents on exteriors.

S&S Construction is the major operating subsidiary of Shapell Industries, Inc., listed on the NYSE, and has built over 16,000 homes in Southern California.

College Park is one of 12 S&S developments presently open for sales.

Homes at College Park are priced from $36,950 and the office is open from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. at 11500 Valley View in Cypress.

Take the San Diego Garden Grove Freeway to Valley View and go north to Orangewood. Or, take the Santa Ana Freeway to Valley View and go south.

Closed down

RIVERSIDE (UPI) — The Forged Products Division of Alcan Aluminum's Riverside operation is being closed down because of the drastic slowdown in ordinance orders and several hundred workers are being laid off, the company announced. The shutdown does not affect Alcan Western's sheet and plate building products operation in the Riverside complex, which is gradually being expanded.

Ury to high post at Diamond Bar

Donald E. Ury, a veteran of 18 years in the subdivision-engineering field has been named as manager of the engineering and construction department for The Diamond Bar Development Corporation, announced Robert M. Hunt, vice president of Transamerica Development Company, a real estate activity of Transamerica Corporation.

Ury will be responsible for all engineering and construction activities relating to the development of the 3,000-acre, master-planned community, it was said.

Employed by The Diamond Bar Development Corporation for the past year, he was formerly with Tri-State Engineering Company of Fullerton, a firm engaged in surveying, research, design and engineering in residential, commercial and industrial fields.

ADDITIONAL professional experience includes engineering positions with the Los Angeles City Board of Education and the Los Angeles Department of Water and Power.

Diamond Bar, reached via the Pomona Freeway, is the largest master-planned community in Los Angeles County.

Included in Diamond Bar is The Country, a 2,400-acre, guard-gated, equestrian lot development with a $1 million dollar equestrian center, bridge trails, championship, night-lighted tennis courts, and a 150-acre park.

1972 promises to be the most productive year, thus far, at Diamond Bar," Hunt said.

The projected $16 million building thrust has already begun, and the nine developing companies producing this amount of housing include Boise Cascade (Concept 80); M. J. Brock & Sons, Inc. (The Hills); Coast Construction Co., Inc. (Alta Vista); Lembar Corporation (Diamond); The McCarthy Co., scheduled to start grading for their townhouse project in mid-January; the John R. McCruden Company and Deane & Deane, Inc. will soon begin construction on their multiple dwellings and Levitt & Sons of California are in the design stage.

'House-of-Week' at Landmark-GG

Landmark Homes in Garden Grove are now featuring a special House-of-the-Week attraction which includes draperies in the purchase price of the homes.

Carl Smith, director of sales for the project, revealed that there are two homes included in the program this week, a Plan 30 on Lot 4 of the tract and a Plan 36 on Lot 6.

"Anyone who buys a House-of-the-Week receives a bonus of complete draperies included with the home," Smith said.

Smith also revealed the model homes for the project are available to new homebuyers. There is one model for each of the three plans and they are fully air conditioned and have complete draperies in addition to the amenities included in all other Landmark Homes.

WITH 22 of the 36 homes in the tract now sold, only 14 remain available. The complete selection of three floor plans remains, with all homes available for immediate occupancy.

All of the homes are two and three-car garages.

Plan 30, priced at $31,750 features four bedrooms and two baths upstairs, with the living room, third bath, kitchen and family room on the lower level.

Plan 34 features an entry foyer, family room, living room, kitchen, master bedroom and one bath on the first floor. The other three bedrooms and second bath are upstairs. This model is priced at $33,350.

THE living room, formal dining room, kitchen, family room, master bedroom and one bath are on the first floor of the Plan 36 homes. Three bedrooms and another bath are upstairs. Plan 36 homes are priced at $34,850.

Smith noted the site is now taking on its final appearances as a community.

"Landscaping has been started," he pointed out, "with many of the shrubs and bushes already planted. The fencing has been completed and most of the other small touches are either done now or will be done soon."

"Eight of the families have already moved in," he added, "with at least four others planning to move in within three weeks."

THE DOWN payment required for a Landmark Home is 5 per cent, with an annual percentage rate of interest of 7 1/2 per cent on minimum down payments. Regardless of the down payment made, buyers will not have to pay taxes on the property until July, 1972, as taxes until that time will be paid by the builder.

Other features included with every home are shag carpeting, front lawns with sprinklers, rear yard fencing, deluxe-equipped eye-level double ovens, dishwashers, disposals, fireplaces and concrete driveways.

The $1.5 million project is located on Homeway Drive off Katella Avenue, just east of Magnolia Street in Garden Grove.

Drilling plans

ORANGE (UPI) — Santa Fe International Corp. announced it has agreed with Marathon Oil Co. to conduct a drilling program in Indonesia for the Jenney Group. Marathon can earn a half interest in the tract by conducting the exploration and drilling over a three-year period. The tract of around 18 million acres is off the southwest coast of Sumatra.

Rare combo

Defining real estate business for 1972 as a "rare combination of both a buyer's market and a seller's market," Robert C. Westmyer last week predicted a record year for the industry in a Rotary Club address in Long Beach.

Westmyer is president of Rex L. Hodges Realty, which was founded in Long Beach in 1929 and now serves 45 Southern California communities. He formerly was educational director of the California Real Estate Association.

Elaborating on the "unusual market conditions that prevail," he explained that the buyer can now borrow more money at better terms than previously available, obtain a home at a lower price than will be possible later, and can use his home as a hedge against the inevitable rise in inflation.

"The seller," he said, on the other hand also has advantages at this time: he can often obtain all cash now because of favorable loan conditions, a good price because of inflation, and capital gains advantages that are available now but may be eliminated by future legislation.

As an indication of the booming real estate market, Westmyer mentioned that home sales at Rex L. Hodges during the first two weeks of 1972 have "exceeded the first six weeks of 1971."

Subsidy program

"The present federal rent subsidy program is not reaching the people who need housing the most," Everett Mattison, president-elect of the Mortgage Bankers Association of America said last week in Los Angeles.

"We are not satisfied with the present program and we intend to take steps to improve it."

Mattison, in Los Angeles for the installation of the new officers of the Southern California Mortgage Bankers Association, said the present housing laws are "building-oriented rather than people-oriented."

He pointed out that while several parts of the country, especially California, are faced with an overabundance of new housing, there is still a great demand for homes for the underprivileged and needy.

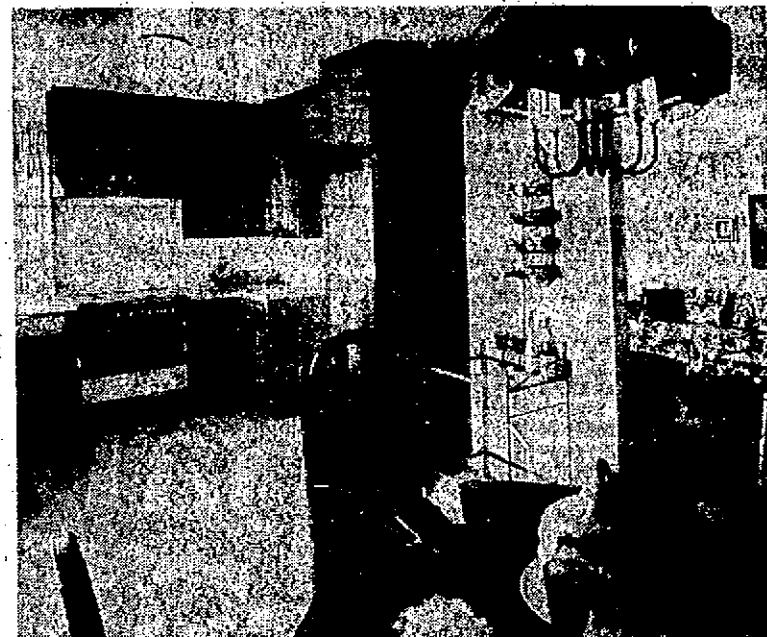

Mattison said the present over-built situation stems from contractors building in areas where people can't afford such housing.

"The present housing subsidy system is geared toward helping construction. We're in the process of turning this around. We want to counsel underprivileged people in order that they may find a home of their choosing that they can afford."

Mattison, spokesman for the multi-billion-dollar mortgage banking industry, offered an approach he said probably would not cost anymore than the present system. Last year, more than 500,000 housing units were subsidized at a cost of some $150 million.

The plan sanctioned by MBA would allow the needy and underprivileged to go to government offices, such as the HEW, for counseling. There, a trained worker would interview the applicant and check into his need for better housing.

The worker would first determine whether the applicant's present housing was inadequate. If there was an actual need for better housing, the worker would help decide whether the applicant should own a home or

INTERIOR DESIGN FEATURES... great at Thunderbird Homes

IN DANA POINT

Ample space feature at Thunderbird Homes

Floor plans which give ample space for all the varied activities of the modern family have been rated at the top of the list of features by visitors at Thunderbird Homes in Dana Point, home development of Meeker Development company, reports Al Coke, executive director of the project.

"Buyers today want space where it will make their home more efficient and more liveable," said Coke.

"For example, they desire a large master bedroom suite with all the features that make it a delightful center, such as: separated walk-in closets, compartmented baths, and room for bookcases and desks."

"They want large living and family rooms with sloped ceilings, massive fireplaces, and easy access through sliding glass doors to outdoor areas for lounging or dining."

ALL THESE features have received high ratings by both buyers and visitors at Thunderbird Homes.

Five furnished models containing two, three and four bedrooms are offered with prices starting at $25,950; 5 per cent down conventional financing is available.

Attractive contemporary styled exteriors feature wood shingle roofs. Interior design features include formal entries, family rooms with fireplaces, large living rooms with fireplaces, and family-kitchen areas.

Custom nylon carpeting is included in living rooms, master bedroom and halls. As an added bonus, less than a mile from Thunderbird Homes is the new $26 million Dana Point Marina and Doheny State Park.

Furnished models may be reached via the Santa Ana-San Diego Freeway. Take the Pacific Coast Highway turnoff and proceed north to Golden Lantern Street, turn right to models at 24741 Camarillo Drive, Dana Point.

Pacific Industrial Park sites popular

More than 70 per cent of the space available in Pacific Industrial Park in Fountain Valley has been leased or committed, says Coldwell, Banker & Co., marketing agents.

The occupancy mark was reached when Lorge Engineering Co. leased three separate buildings, containing a total of 75,000 square feet, on long-term agreements. The lease will carry considerations amounting to $655,000.

Lorge is a commercial and governmental contractor for the manufacture and design of mechanical components and aluminum precision forgings. The firm will use the space for offices, distribution and warehousing facilities.

PACIFIC Industrial Park is located on Euclid Street, next to the San Diego Freeway. It is being developed by Pacific Coast Properties, Inc.

The recent transactions bring the total leases and sales considerations in force to approximately $1.5 million.

Customweave now occupies a 24,000-square-foot building, while Swango occupies a 12,000-square-foot building.

Carmenita Village in 'excellent location'

An excellent location has proved one of the key selling features of Carmenita

Village Townhouse Condominiums on Carmenita Road between the Santa

Ana and Artesia Freeways in Cerritos. So believes Alex Graham, president of Marketing Management Co., exclusive sales agents for the builder, De Ruff Construction Co. of Newport Beach. "Carmenita Village is about equal distance between the two freeways, both of which provide access to the major employment centers of the Los Angeles-Long Beach metropolitan area, as well as into Orange County areas," Graham noted.

"We're also within walking distance of both elementary and junior high schools, another location feature that parents of young children appreciate at Carmenita Village. Two regional shopping complexes, La Mirada and Cerritos, are 10 to 15 minute drives and naturally, there are many local shopping centers offering a full variety of goods and services."

IN ADDITION to the fine location, the two-bedroom, two story homes of Carmenita Village, priced from $19,500 to $19,995, include refrigerated air conditioning, wall-to-wall carpeting, drapes, a private fenced patio, all kitchen built-ins, including the kitchen, front yard landscaping and sprinklers and a recreational area, with pool, cabana and playground, is available for the exclusive use of residents and guests.

DOWN payments are as low as $150 for qualified veterans and principal and interest payments can be as low as $131.50 per month," Graham concluded.

Model homes are open daily from 11 a.m.

From the southeast and southern areas of the metropolitan basin the community is easily reached by taking either the Long Beach or San Gabriel Freeways to the Artesia Freeway, east on the Artesia to Carmenita Road, then north on Carmenita a short distance to Carmenita Village.

WHAT'S YOUR PROBLEM?

One year is usual limit for listing agreements

By DON CAMPBELL

When is a "deal" no longer a "deal"? In the real estate business, for example, just how undying is the "marriage" between the would-be seller of a piece of real estate and the agent who is trying to perform this service for him?

MR. CAMPBELL: Over two years ago we listed our house with a Realtor for 90 days. During that time our neighbors from across the street expressed an interest. We referred them to the Realtor. The agent later told us the people could not handle the purchase.

We again plan to sell the house next spring, and the same neighbors are still interested. If we should sell the house, ourselves, direct to the neighbors, do we still have any obligation to the Realtor since he had spoken to them over two years ago?

Your advice would be appreciated since we have heard of a case where the Realtor became aware a house was later sold to an individual to whom he had shown it. He sued for his commission and got it. — Mr. J.F.E.

ANSWER: Time is the sticky consideration here and one year is usually the magic break-off point in the listing agreement.

While the agreement that you signed two years ago concerns itself, mainly, with a detailed description of the property which will aid the Realtor in putting it on the market, there was also a tiny-type paragraph just above the space for your signature which, among other things, specifies the percentage commission that the agency will receive in the event of sale.

There was also this line — or one similar to it:

"The commission set forth above shall also be payable by the owner to the broker if within one year of the above date the owner directly, or indirectly, sells, agrees to sell, exchanges or agrees to exchange the property to any party to whom the broker or its agents showed the property during the listing period or any period subsequent thereto during which the owner or either of them, orally or in writing requests or permits the broker to have or retain keys to or show said property or keep its For-Sale signs thereon."

Since one year is the standard break-off period for listing agreements I think that you would be perfectly safe in going ahead with your own arrangements after two years. To be on the side of the angels, however, I would suggest that you check the agreement that you actually signed at that time.

MR. CAMPBELL:

How does the safety of savings deposited in a savings and loan association that does not insure its savings (even though the government doesn't require them to) compare to banks and savings institutions that insure savings up to $20,000?

Also, referring to a recent magazine article entitled "Want More Income from Your Savings?" what is your opinion of investing in high grade bonds (industrial and utility) for retired persons having approximately $10,000 or $15,000 in savings? — Mr. F.R.

ANSWER: We've strayed a bit away from the subject of real estate, but — once in awhile — why not?

On the matter of safety for your savings, of course, one has to take the attitude that insurance on them is a complete waste of money if you have no need for the insurance — absolutely essential if you do need it. I'm really not being flip; that's what it boils down to. And, while it's true that the number of banks and savings and loan associations — insured or not — that fail in the course of any year is pretty minuscule, we can't completely ignore the possibility, hopefully remote, that it's not, necessarily, always going to be that way.

For retired persons, frankly, I consider an investment in an uninsured savings institution as absolute madness — the slightly higher yield simply isn't worth the risk, remote or not.

High grade bonds? Sure — if they're top-drawer (graded "A" or better). Just remember, of course, that the bond market goes through considerable fluctuation, itself, just as the stock market does, and that even good grade bonds shouldn't be bought except for the long haul.

You can take a real blood bath on their market price if you find that you have to sell them after a year or two — at a time when the market may be weak.

MR. CAMPBELL:

My wife thinks that I'm crazy, but I've always wanted to put a swimming pool in our backyard and now I think we are finally in a financial position to do it and have it ready for next summer.

The thing is that this house of ours is about 20 years old and probably cost us less, new, than we'll spend for the pool. She thinks this is "over-improving" the property, but I maintain that the house has appreciated enough in value to justify this. What do you think? — Mr. T.P.E.

ANSWER: I'm probably a male chauvinist in your wife's eyes, but I'm inclined to side with you on this quarrel. I think your position makes more sense than resorting to the other alternative: selling your present home and buying another with a pool already installed.

Lucky buys B.P. complex

The purchase for in excess of $1 million by Lucky Stores, Inc., of two buildings totalling 140,000 square feet on 8.7 acres in Buena Park was announced by Ned Merritt of The Seelye Co., Los Angeles industrial realtors, who represented Lucky in the transaction.

The property was purchased from the Quaker Oats Co., Chicago, which has used it as a bakery for their Barry Biscuit Division.

According to Richard L. Frandsen, southern regional real estate manager for Lucky, the property will be used for additional warehousing and distribution facilities for the food chain.

It adjoins their southern regional distribution center at 6565 Knott Avenue.

Steve Nardi of Nardi & Co., Chicago, handled negotiations for Quaker Oats.

Parsons in Guayaquil contract

The Ralph M. Parsons Company (ASE) of Los Angeles has been awarded a contract by the Municipal Sewerage Authority of Guayaquil to provide engineering and construction supervision for a new $12 million sewerage system for the City of Guayaquil in Ecuador.

Work has begun on the project which will be completed in approximately two years.

Based on a previous Parsons' technical and economic feasibility study and master plan of the project, Guayaquil obtained a $7.6 million loan from the Inter-American Development Bank to finance construction of the facilities covered under Phase I of the master plan.

Over the two-year period, in addition to providing construction supervision for the sanitary sewer system for Guayaquil, Parsons will prepare a feasibility study, master plan and final design for the first phase development of a new storm sewer system for that metropolitan area.

Parsons will also prepare a feasibility study and master plan for the storm sewer system of the Duran area, across the Guayas River from Guayaquil.

Private enterprise helping finance, repair decay

NEW YORK (UPI) — Abandonment, fraud and urban decay recently have compelled the federal government to foreclose on billions of dollars worth of residential inner city properties.

The situation somewhat resembles the early 1930s when the Federal Home Owners Loan Corporation took over many homes because unemployment stood around 15 per cent and people couldn't meet mortgage payments.

But for every foreclosure the HOLC helped one family save its home. It also wrote easy mortgages on good homes that had not been neglected. When things got better, the HOLC sold off its huge holdings without appreciable loss to the taxpayers.

IT'S A different story today. The housing Uncle Sam takes over frequently is so dilapidated as to be worthless. Inner city neighborhoods are so de-cayed and dangerous that they have little potential in the real estate market.

The only solution seems to be a total rebuilding of the inner cities.

But who should do it and how?

Since Uncle Sam seems likely to end up owning much of the land, shouldn't Washington rebuild the inner cities to protect the taxpayers' investment?

The very idea makes local government officials and city planners shudder.

They'd welcome Uncle Sam's financial help but not Washington bureaucrats dictating how to rebuild their cities.

FORTUNATELY, local leaders, including some of the country's biggest corporations, already are addressing themselves to the problem. They're even putting up money.

Impressive projects are under way or getting started in Kansas City, Philadelphia, San Francisco and Detroit, although they are far from the only ones.

The Kansas City project is an 85-acre "downtown suburb" called Crown Center, sponsored by Hallmark Cards, Inc., one of the city's leading industrial firms. About $200 million will be spent on Crown Center.

The key to it is what architects call — "total environment."

That means Crown Center is not to be just a shopping and office center. It is to have apartments, hotels, theatres, restaurants and other aspects of urban life.

CALLED Crown Center because Hallmark's trademark is a crown, it will include a 10-acre park, a sculpture display, a market place patterned after those of Greco-Roman cities and underground parking space for 7,000 cars.

There will be no department store but many small and midsized prestige shops. Two hotels are building in the center and there will be about 1.1 million square feet of office space, plus 2,240 apartment units.

Occupancy of the first office building started last November.

By 1983, Crown Center is expected to have a daytime population of 50,000 — in 50 buildings that have replaced an urban wasteland. A big outdoor skating rink is one year-round recreation feature.

of Philadelphia's top business firms, some 150 residents who didn't want to move delayed it awhile by a lawsuit.

The principal backers are Smith, Kline & French Laboratories, ITC Imperial Corp., Philadelphia Electric Co., Korman Corp. and Butcher & Sherer, the investment house.

They bought up the land.

Work began earlier this year on a $42 million hotel, the first unit of San Francisco's $200 million Embarcadero development. It is built somewhat like the rising seats of a stadium, each floor set back from the floor below.

The lobby is on the 18th or top floor and a revolving restaurant will rise above that.

revitalize the center of Detroit.

It is to consist of a large hotel, four office buildings, a shopping center and a number of apartment buildings.

The riverfront development will require expensive engineering. The same John Portman who designed San Francisco's Embarcadero venture is the master architect for the Detroit enterprise.

WHILE Portman has not yet revealed all his plans for the Detroit venture, he has said there will be underground parking space for 5,000 cars. There also will be a heavy emphasis on recreational use of the tract, he said.

Henry Ford II said he thinks Detroit ought to be able to do something with its riverfront like the job Chicago has done in its Lake Michigan frontage.

Ford doesn't intend to put up all the half-billion the project will cost.

"It's too big for any one company," the chairman said. But he has not yet revealed the prospective partnership arrangements.

Detroit suffered the worst inner city decay of any American metropolis because of damage in the 1967 riots. The center of the city still is pitted with empty lots where buildings had to be torn down.

Canyon Lake attracts water ski champions

You would have more of a chance of surviving a head-on crash into the Great Wall of China than you would surviving a high-speed fall on water skis, says Chuck Stearns, world's fastest man on water skis from Long Beach.

And, Chuck should know. He has had his share of painful injuries until he learned the art of falling. He survived a fall at 125 mph, but broke 13 ribs and punctured a lung.

Chuck is one of four waterskiing champions who call Canyon Lake "home."

Since 1955, Stearns has captured virtually every waterski record available, including the quarter-mile speed run from a standing start. He hit 122.11 mph at Long Beach to become the world's fastest man on water skis.

OTHER records captured by Stearns include: five times national trick champion; seven times national slalom champion; three times national jump champion, and seven times the national overall champion. He also set a world speed record for the mile.

Stearns was so impressed with Canyon Lake that he bought a lot in the development's Fairway Mobilehome Park and put a mobilehome on it for use as his second home. He can be seen some days of the week going through his practice routines.

Russ Stiffler, 24, is another familiar figure on the lake. He is the regional trick champion and California world's cup trick champion which he won at Berkeley Aquatic Park in 1971.

STIFFLER got his start in championship trick competition from Jay Keegan, who holds the National Senior Men's Trick Championship. Keegan, general manager of Canyon Lake Property Owner's Association, taught Russ a few things and Stiffler took it from there.

Canyon Lake's fourth waterski champ is Howard Olsen, who also lives at the lake. Olsen has the distinction of being the oldest man in the United States competing in championship tournaments. He is 60 years old, proving that it is never too late to enjoy one of the fastest growing and thrilling sports today.

CANYON Lake, located 26 miles southeast of Corona, just off of Highway 71 at Railroad Canyon Road, in Riverside County, is a $45 million private recreation community developed by Corona Land Company.

Its close proximity to the five great counties of Riverside, San Bernardino, Orange, Los Angeles and San Diego, makes it the ideal spot for recreation enthusiasts who like watersports, golfing, fishing, and horseback riding.

American Savings at 'high level'

Achieving its highest level of total lending in company history, American Savings and Loan Association recorded in excess of $716 million in residential property loans during 1971.

This represented an increase of 51 per cent over all American Savings loans originated in 1970, and resulted in a total loan portfolio of more than $2.9 billion at year end, according to S. Mark Taper, president of the 87-year-old association.

"Increased consumer confidence, together with very attractive rates for home-buyers and the continued availability of ample funds, point to a most active lending market in 1972," said Taper.

"American Savings intends to be fully prepared with ample funds to meet every sound request for financing of new construction, or sale of existing structures of both single-family and multiple dwellings. We will continue to apply strict quality controls to assure loans are made to creditworthy borrowers and are secured by top quality real estate," Taper added.

With assets now over $2 1/2 billion, American Savings serves Northern and Southern California with 55 branch offices.

Mutual Fund Associates in new name

Putnam Financial Services, Inc. has been adopted as the new name for Mutual Fund Associates.

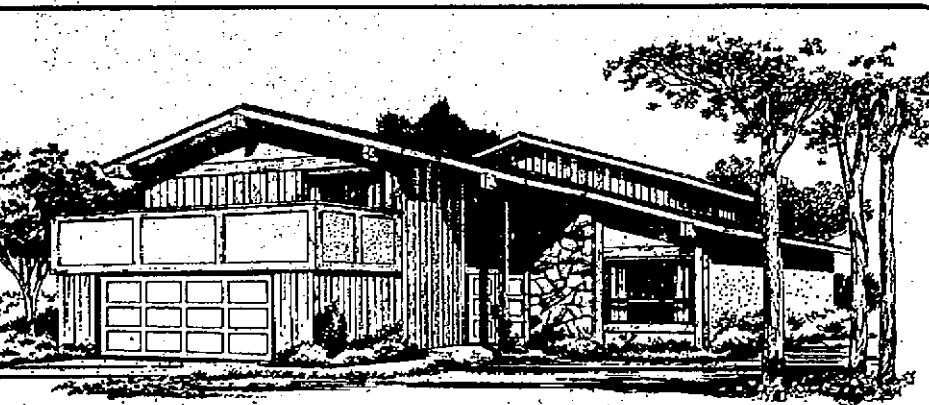

The firm, established in 1951, formerly specialized in the distribution of mutual funds but now, in addition, is active in the marketing of tax shelter investments, funding programs and life and disability insurance coverages.

The new name also reflects a series of changes in the nature of the firm's operations, according to James R. McDonough, vice president.

Headquartered in San Rafael, California, the firm's Long Beach office is located at 345 E. San Antonio Drive and the resident vice president is Edward R. Hunt.

Posh living seen at Rossmoor Regency

An accelerated construction program assures early completion and occupancy of the first 54 units at Rossmoor Regency, the luxury condominium in Seal Beach.

There will eventually be 130 units at the 12300 Montecito Road location, according to Bernie Solomon, owner of the Long Beach-based Mills Construction Co., building the project.

Posh living at the $5 million development will be enhanced by an entertainment center, heated swimming pool, separate exercise, and sauna rooms, wall-to-wall carpeting, draperies, acoustical soundproofing, lavish landscaping, air conditioning, electrically controlled security gates and garage doors, off-street guest parking, laundry and storage facilities.

The condominium homes have two and three bedrooms in one, two and three-story arrangements. The three-story townhouses have two-story living rooms and the master bedroom suite on the third floor. The other bedrooms and baths are on the first level.

Each unit has a balcony or patio so occupants and guests may enjoy the indoor-outdoor living afforded by the Mediterranean-like climate of Seal Beach.

Shopping, entertainment, churches, golf, tennis and cultural facilities surround the residential area.

Rossmoor Regency represents a care-free living environment where a monthly maintenance fee insures upkeep of all common areas, the hydronic cooling and heating system and all water and gas.

There is an onsite sales office open daily from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Evening appointments may be made by phoning. See-through scale models allow visitors to visualize the condominium homes as they will be when completed. Early sell-out predicted at Huntington Town Homes

Huntington Town Homes have attracted buyer approval since opening just little more than two months ago, indicating the possibility of early sell-out, sales agent Alex Graham reports.

The condominium way of life, attractive to those who want home ownership without the work and expense of maintenance, and the choice location in the harbor area, offer sound value and a pleasant way of life, he added.

Kitchens have built-in range, oven, dishwasher and disposer, and adjoining dining area. Carpeting, cultured marble pullmans, decorator lighting fixtures are included in luxury features.

The Best Guaranteed Trade Plan Available!

Trade-in plan set at La Linda homes

Now is a good time to trade-in a current home for a 1972 model La Linda Home in Fountain Valley, according to sales director Mac Blankenship.

"We're now offering a guaranteed trade program," Blankenship explained. "We'll make the purchase of a new La Linda home contingent upon the sale of the buyer's present home, that way he will not have to worry about making payments on two homes at the same time."

"We will even list the home and sell it for him, as we have already done in a number of cases," he added.

With fewer than 50 homes remaining available at the attractive Fountain Valley site, the 228-home, $8 million project is rapidly nearing completion.

THE MASTER bedroom suite has a dressing bath with walk-in closet, a sunken tub and a large, separate shower stall. The home also has two additional baths, an imaginatively designed five-sided kitchen, a family room with adjoining porch, a fireplace in the living room and a three car garage.

The Coronado is a two-story home with five bedrooms, three baths, living room, formal dining room, kitchen, family room and three car garage. It also includes a balcony overlooking the foyer, walk-in closets and pantry, and large linen cabinets.

The Catalina is also a two-story home with four bedrooms, 2 1/2 baths, living room, dining room, kitchen, family room and three car garage. Special features are similar to the Coronado.

FIVE different floor plans are available, with three to six bedrooms, up to three baths and three car garages.

Only four of the plans are available in the fourth unit, with prices ranging from $35,850 to $38,950. All models are available in the fifth and final unit, where prices range from $34,850 to $40,500.

Comparable models are generally $1,000 lower in the fourth unit than they are in the fifth.

The largest home is the popular Santa Barbara, which is a tri-level home with optional plans for up to six bedrooms. The basic plan has a master bedroom suite, two additional bedrooms and a large bonus room which can be divided into smaller rooms as needed.

Air cleaners attract at Casa Del Amo

Electronic air cleaners — providing air as fresh and clean as found 150 miles out to sea — are the principal attraction for potential new homebuyers visiting Casa Del Amo homes in Cerritos.

The cleaners, which have been installed in all of the homes of the final fourth and final unit of the Casa Del Amo homesite, completely remove cigarette and cigar smoke and prevent a heavy build-up of dust and dirt.

Nearly all pollen particles in the air are also removed, greatly relieving persons who suffer from pollen and similar allergies.

SIR Development Company, builder of Casa Del Amo, was the first major homebuilder to install electronic air cleaners on such a large scale.

Prior to this project, the cleaners were found primarily in office buildings, hospitals and laboratories. Only very expensive custom homes features the units on the domestic scene.

ing from earlier units, only 29 Casa Del Amo homes are left, although the full range of floor plans and exterior elevations is included in the remaining selection.

Prices of the homes range from $28,990 to $33,500. They have three or four bedrooms, two baths and two car garages.

The popular Cortez Plan, a single story home with four bedrooms, two baths, and living and family rooms, heads the list of Casa Del Amo homes. It is priced at $32,600 in the fourth unit.

The Balboa, a two story, four bedroom two bath home, is available in the fourth unit at $33,500. The DeSoto is a single story, three bedroom, two bath home available only in earlier units at prices of $28,990 and $29,850.

The fourth plan, Cabriolo, is available only in the fourth unit at a price of $31,750. It also has three bedrooms and two baths in a single story.

BORN OF BEST INTENTIONS

More opposition seen to public housing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Public housing, an idea born of the best intentions, has fallen on hard times.

The concept of providing decent, low-cost housing for poor families now is catching criticism from all sides — tenants and outsiders.

Families who live in public housing often claim they are prey to nosy landlords and resented by better-off neighbors. Those outside the projects see them as havens for juvenile delinquents and a drain on their own property values.

In short, the cure for some has been worse than the disease.

These observations emerge from surveys summarized by sociologist E. D. Huttman in a recent issue of City Magazine.

HUTTMAN, a sociologist at the Hayward Campus of California State College, reported especially hostile reactions from real estate agents. This group pictures public housing tenants as "spineless ingrates who have found a nest within 'Government compounds' — people who do not have the American abilities to go out and buy their own homes."

Public housing dwellers surveyed in several cities had mixed reactions on their situations. Two-thirds of those polled in San Francisco said they were better off now than in their previous housing. But they resented the bad name of the project, alleged police harassment and vandalism by youths.

SYRACUSE, N.Y. residents said they would feel happier if the project were in a slum area. Nearer friends and familiar surroundings, rather than in a middle class area where resentment from neighbors was high.

Project managers got their share of criticism. "They have the right to come in your house when they like. You have to tell them everything, just like welfare," one woman said.

Huttman sees the sheer size of many housing projects as a key to the problem. Cramping 8,000 poor people into a warren of bleak, high rise apartments ensures residents will see people with their own problems, even if the development is surrounded by relatively affluent neighbors.

Huttman suggests two solutions — broadening the economic base of public housing tenants and keeping the projects small.

THE FIRST technique has been widely used in Great Britain. Since housing need, rather than income, is the test for admission there, families tend to hold on to their public dwellings and even pass them on to their children. If a family makes more money, the rent is raised accordingly, creating a healthy balance of income groups.

Larwin chooses Sachs firm

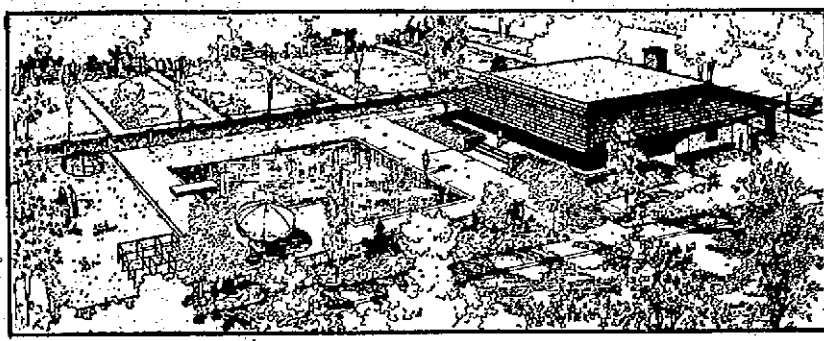

The Larwin Group's single-family and multiple-family housing divisions have named the firm of Sachs, Finley & Kaye to handle its advertising accounts nationally, according to Michael L. Tenzer, president of Larwin's single-family division, and Richard A. Berger, vice president of consumer marketing for the multiple-family division.

Advertising for Larwin's ready and home furnishings companies will also be transferred to the Los Angeles-based agency.

The appointment of Sachs, Finley & Kaye follows the recent dissolution of Westwood Advertising, Larwin's in-house agency formed in 1963 to handle all Larwin accounts.

An agency has not yet been appointed to handle advertising for Larwin's recreational communities division.

Bedroom Talk

Of the features you look for in a new home, certainly one of the most important should be the master bedroom suite. It's here that you can close out the world and its problems for a few minutes or hours, where you can seek refuge from children and laundry, cooking and cleaning. It's your retreat...to recover from the pressures of today's busy life...to enjoy the quiet pleasures of adult privacy.

We design our master suites with this in mind. From our lowest priced home to our most luxurious estate, every master bedroom suite will easily accommodate a king-sized bed, night tables, a triple dresser and a chest of drawers...with room for occasional chairs or loveseat. The master suite and dressing area in our lowest priced home, for example, is approximately 12 by 20 feet.

In the Plan 101, shown here, the adult retreat has approximately 475 square feet, including a 17-by-21-foot bedroom with its own private fireplace, a 35-square-foot walk-in closet plus almost 80 square feet of dressing and make-up area.

Of course, we have all the other amenities you're looking for in a prestige home, such as carpeting, fireplaces, full shake roofs, ceramic-tiled kitchens and baths, bidets, mirrored wardrobes, family rooms, wet bars, hardwood cabinetry and built-in appliances. But equally important, we believe, is that every home should have a "snug harbor" for adults.

And that's the way we build them. They're called Parkside Estates.

FRANCOISE DURR... The winner plays better ever

Durr upsets Billie Jean

By BOB MARTIN
Staff Writer

Billie Jean King was upset by Francoise Durr of France, 6-3, 6-0, Saturday night in the semifinals of The Independent Press-Telegram's $17,000 Women's Tennis Championships.

After a hard-fought and exciting first set, Mrs. King made little effort to run for shots in the second set, as the crowd of 2,180 watched in surprise in the Long Beach City College gymnasium.

Billie Jean quickly left the court without stopping to answer reporters' questions. While heading for the dressing room, she muttered something about a pulled leg muscle.

Both her husband, tournament promoter Larry King, and her father, Bill Moffitt, said she had suffered a pulled thigh muscle in her right leg in her victory Friday night over Helen Gourlay.

"I thought she played well in the first set," Miss Durr admitted, "but then, I don't know, she seemed to quit trying. Maybe it's her knees," then again, maybe it's partly in the head," she added, pointing a finger at her head.

Mrs. King had complained of knee trouble while competing in New Zealand last month and had been to see Dr. Donald Larson in Long Beach upon her return to this country. He had prescribed knee exercises with weights. Billie Jean had had operations on both knees in recent years.

King said his wife would try to see Dr. Larson today. He also said she would skip next week's Boston tournament, and maybe more events.

Most of the spectators were stunned by Billie's second set performance. Many thought she quit trying and weren't aware she had a knee problem.

"Strictly bush behavior," one spectator said, "she simply gave up."

King announced his wife would be unable to compete in the playoffs for third place against Miss Melville. A match between Judy Dalton of Australia and Miss Melville is scheduled at 1 p.m. as a substitute.

Returning serves exceptionally well, and hitting her forehand and backhand strokes with remarkable accuracy, Miss Durr broke Mrs. King's service four times in the first set.

The soft-serving French star had more trouble holding her own serve than breaking Billie's, although the score went beyond deuce in each of the breaks.

Two doubles by Mrs. King and a Durr drive that dribbled over the top of the net helped Francoise gain the vital break in the ninth game. Many great shots were produced by both players in the first set, but one observer said he thought BJK stopped moving well at 3-5.

In last year's Billie Jean King Invitational, Miss Durr held quadruples match points against Billie in the second set of their first-round contest, only to let the match slip away. Mrs. King won the meet.

Francoise, 29, said "I think I'm playing better now than ever. The main reason is that I have more confidence. I feel that I can beat anyone. It's partly in the head," she added. The French star defeated Mrs. King four times in 10 clashes last year. She won seven tournaments, including two on the Virginia Slims women circuits, and earned $65,000, second highest among all women players.

Mrs. King, who made a record $117,000 last year, will have to settle for $1,200 fourth-place money here. She didn't compete in doubles.

The Long Beach native struggled through two tiebreakers to beat Miss Melville, 7-6, 7-6, in the finals of the first Virginia Slims meet of 1972 last week in San Francisco.

Miss Durr will enter tonight's finals at 8 in the LBCC gym against little Rosemary Casals of San Francisco, who defeated

49er TV show a smash

By JIM McCORMACK
Staff Writer

CHICAGO — It took Cal State Long Beach less than two hours Saturday to shoot apart an opinion Loyola coach George Ireland had been building for more than a year.

"Long Beach is much better than I thought they would be," Ireland said Saturday after Cal State had dismantled his Loyola team, 79-58, in the first game of a Chicago Stadium doubleheader.

"Until we played today," Ireland continued, "I had the impression that Long Beach was overrated. I think it is obvious such is not the case."

The 49ers started quickly against Ireland's Ramblers, jumping away to an early 20-7 advantage and then holding off a fistful of mild Loyola rallies to record their 16th victory in 17 games.

"I had based my opinion of Long Beach on our game last year with them. We lost (84-81) in overtime in a game I felt we should have won.

"But this is a much better team than the one Long Beach had last year, at least 50 per cent better. It is much quicker, much taller and much more physical."

Ireland was asked what type of team would give the 49ers trouble.

"I'm sure they will have some problems when they play a team that is as big as they are," Ireland responded. "I'm sure Marquette would give them a tough time, and certainly, UCLA. I can't think of anyone else, though."

It was an impressive victory for the 49ers, playing on national television.

Led by all-America guard Ed Ratleff and big men Nate Stephens, Bob Lynn, Eric McWilliams and Chuck Terry, the 49ers trailed only once in the game while rolling to their 12th victory in a row.

Ratleff was easily the game's outstanding player, hitting nine of 14 floor shots for 22 points and also contributing game-high 16 rebounds.

Cheered on by a contingent of fans from his hometown of Columbus, Ohio, Ratleff opened the game at guard and quarterbacked the 49ers to the early 20-7 advantage.

McWilliams, twice getting assist passes from Ratleff, scored all of his eight points in that spree as the 49ers jumped away to a quick lead.

Loyola (7-7) stayed well back until late in the first half when baskets by LaRue Martin, Pat Compas and Nate Hayes cut Cal State's edge to eight, 38-30, with a minute to play.

Ratleff, however, responded with successive baskets and the 49ers had a 42-30 halftime edge.

Loyola got within eight again, 44-36, with 17:26 to play on successive baskets by Martin, but the 49ers responded with buckets from Stephens, Terry and Ratleff and began to pull away toward the final 21-point victory margin.

Stephens was cited by coach Jerry Tarkanian for his fine defensive play on Martin, who hit only five of 13 shots against the 49ers and finished with 15 points and 15 rebounds.

Hayes was the only Rambler to shoot well, hitting 10 of 16 shots and collecting 23 points. His teammates lowered that to 36 per cent by hitting only 22 of 61 attempts.

The 49ers outrebounded, 44-41, shot 57 per cent by making 35 of 61 shots. McWilliams (4-8), Terry (7-13), Stephens (8-14), Ratleff (9-14) and Lynn (5-7) all shot 50 per cent or better for Cal State.

Cal State's most negative statistic was free throw shooting where the 49ers missed 14 of 23 tries.

"If we hit our free throws," Tarkanian said in a postscript, "it would have been a blitz."

Beating a team like Loyola by 21 at home is a blitz, someone pointed out.

BILLIE JEAN KING... The loser but c'est la vie

Walton (8) still sparks Bruins

By RICH ROBERTS
Staff Writer

All eyes this morning will drift to the box score at the end of this story to see how good a game Bill Walton played Saturday night.

Forget it. "I thought," UCLA coach John Wooden said after a 118-81 victory over Denver, "that in spite of the few points he had (eight), this was one of his finest games.

"He had some assists, hit the open man and passed up some easy shots. But he was enjoying himself out there, and I'm sure his mere presence in there was felt."

The 6-11 sophomore also grabbed only six rebounds and blocked only one shot, but Denver's young coach, Jim Karabetos, agreed. "He intimidated everyone. He's certainly the heart of their offense. We didn't challenge them even when we penetrated their zone press, and he was the main reason. We felt that he would reject more than we would make."

Karabetos also pulled his own — uh, big man to the outside very early, rather than have him neutralized by Walton. Dave Bustion, only 6-8, scored two baskets from outside Walton's long reach in the first half as the Bruins breezed to a 50-29 halftime lead on their way to their 14th win of this season, 28 in a row since losing at Notre Dame last season.

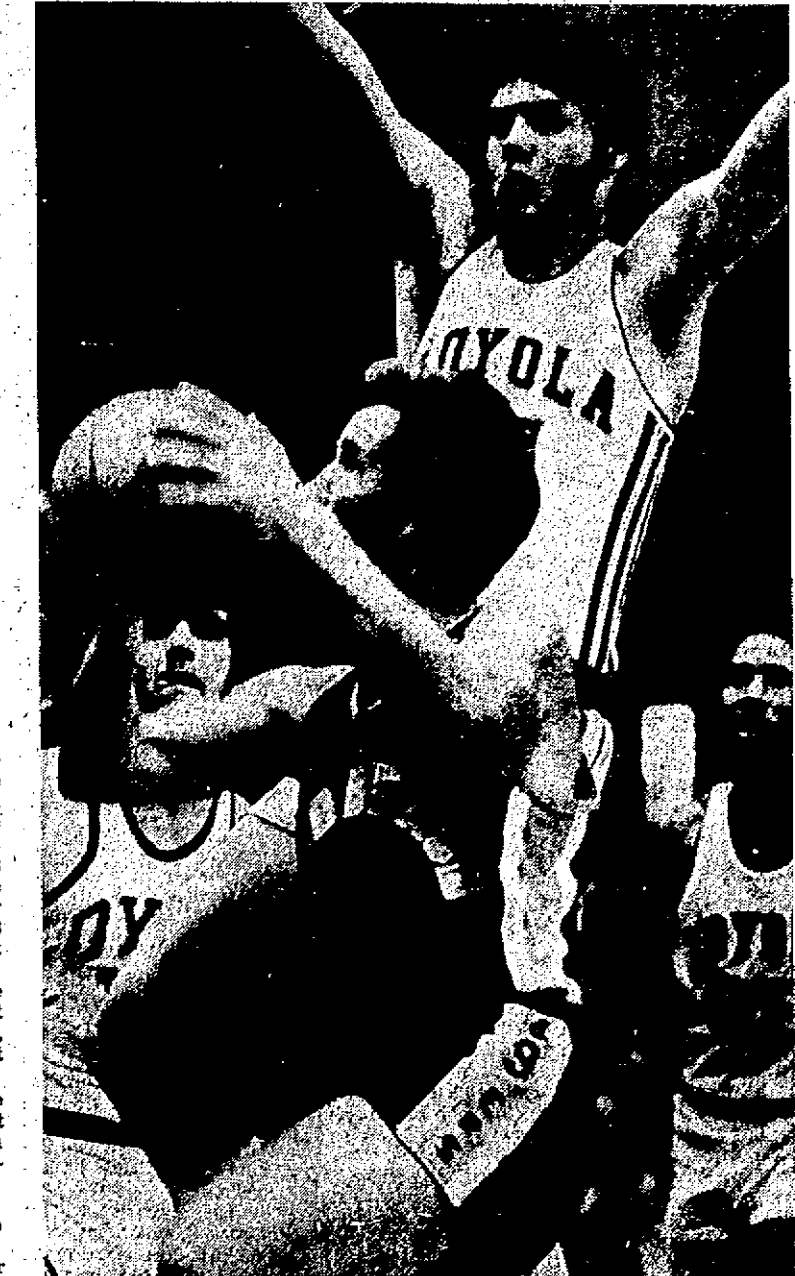

The Bruins get a chance to avenge that oversight Saturday on national TV, after playing Loyola at Chicago Friday night.

Wooden was asked if he "scouted" Loyola against Cal State Long Beach on the tube Saturday afternoon.

"Yes, I did," he replied. Did he also happen to look at the 49ers?

"No, they're not on our schedule," he deadpanned. Just as he had after watching Santa Clara lose to CSLB at Anaheim.

Wooden was "surprised"

Ryun beats Keino in his hothouse opener

Kipchoge Keino may be the world's quickest miler, but he wasn't Saturday night.

Jim Ryun, 24-year-old Santa Barbara photographer, dribbled Keino, 32-year-old Kenya police inspector, by four yards in the spotlight event of the 13th Sankist Invitational in the L.A. Sports Arena.

With a slow tempo, no one can beat Ryun's big finish kick. Saturday's tempo was one of the slowest of recent indoor seasons.

John Lawson led at a quarter-mile in 63.0, with Ryun three yards to the rear and Keino sixth and last.

The pace deteriorated to 2:10.5 at the half-mile, with Ryun close, behind Lawson and Keino content to trail.

Jere Vandyk assumed leadership after another lap. As suddenly as lightning, Ryun accelerated past Vandyk and into the lead. Keino, boxed in, was unable to move with Ryun.

At the three-quarter pole Ryun lead in 3:10.5, with Keino 10 yards behind in second place, and his chances almost hopeless.

The capacity crowd of 13,493 gave the leaders a stomping, bellowing ovation as they raced around the penultimate curves to the tape.

Ryun won in 4:06.8 in his hothouse opener. Keino was second in 4:07.3, Chris Fisher of Australia third in 4:10.7, Lawson fourth in 4:11.2.

Keino had won his three previous U.S. starts in 3:59.4, 4:04.2 and 4:01.2, the latter race Friday night in San Francisco.

He apparently left his race in San Francisco.

The press waited 40 minutes for Ryun. He was in a Sports Arena office with the door locked, "so sick he can't stand up," it was reported through the door.

Eventually, Ryun said, "I'm not really sick. I just didn't have a chance to warm down. The first meet is always emotional for me."

Ryun was disappointed with the tortoise time. "I would like to have run faster. I'm sure that Keino would too — but I'm very happy to have won. When he made his move so late, I thought that I had it won. If he had come up to my shoulder, I think that I would have had enough to beat him."

"This was a good way to start Olympic year. It's a good psychological lift."

Al Feuerbach, representing the Pacific Coast Club of Long Beach, also got a psychological lift.

He defeated world shotput record holder Randy Matson only once in eight indoor meets last year. He's 3-0 over Randy this season.

Feuerbach threw 67.4 Fred De Bernardi of Texas El Paso a lifetime best of 66-9/16, Matson 66-7.

"I would like to be consistent in the 68-foot range," Matson, a 6-7, 267-pound Texas giant, said "but I'm not trying to go all-out in each indoor meet this year. Remember, the Olympics are in August."

"I've been having technique problems. I'm throwing all line drives — no lift. No, I'm not used to finishing third. It happened once in 1969, I think."

Hans Lagerqvist of Sweden won the pole vault at 17-0 in the only shocker of the evening, defeating indoor record holder Kjell Isaksson (17-9), who was able to climb only 16-6.

ON THE BALL

Devaney defends redshirts

His exorbitant number of redshirts — the number of University of Nebraska football players who sit out one season has been estimated by rival coaches at from 39 to 55 — and his Big Eight Conference's ruling permitting 180 football scholarships per school each year, were stoutly defended Saturday by Bob Devaney, coach of the 1970 and 1971 Cornhusker national champions.

"You have to temper the scholarship thing," snapped Devaney, who's in Long Beach this weekend conducting the Century Club's Clinic of Champions at Edgewater Hyatt House.

He was informed that former Ohio State and Minnesota coach Wes Feller remarked earlier in the week in Long Beach that the Big Ten couldn't possibly compete with Nebraska, Oklahoma or Colorado because of a limitation of 30 football scholarships per class a season whereas the Big Eight allowed 45.

"The Big Ten is in an area with better kids. Ohio State, for example, can get 30 good kids a year because there's a tremendous amount of great high school players in Ohio. So, why does Ohio State need 45 scholarships?"

"John McKay of USC said a few years ago that he didn't have to scour the country to get players because he could find all he wanted right here in Southern California. It's the same thing with the Big Ten."

"Having the advantage of more scholarships at Nebraska thus makes it even for us."

"IT'S TRUE WE HAVE a great number of redshirts at Nebraska, but the Big Ten has been crying for a long time about that and it has no body but itself to blame," continued the 56-year-old Saginaw, Mich., native.

"Their faculty advisors dropped the rule. Nebraska and Bob Devaney didn't have a thing to do with the Big Ten taking away redshirts. The Big Ten did that all by itself, so I don't see why that conference should be crying."

"Besides, it's not hurting a boy to get five years of college education. I think a young man needs five years if he's going to play football and study at the same time."

"Also, there's not much sense wasting a whole football year for a kid by playing him only a few minutes when you've got somebody else at his position who is better."

"I redshirted a sophomore quarterback — David Humm of Las Vegas — last season because I knew he'd just be riding the bench behind Jerry Tagge. Now, I've got a problem this coming season, too, because I've got a good freshman quarterback from Fayetteville, N.C., Terry Luck. Maybe I'll have to redshirt Luck, but I think it's to his eventual advantage."

Does Devaney agree with whippersnappers that Humm and Luck, a melodic combination, both are better than Tagge?

"No!" emphasized Devaney. "Tagge is the best quarterback in the country!"

IS DEVANEY SINCERE about retiring from coaching after this coming season?

"Very definitely," Bob replied. "In fact, I intended to quit after the last season. I think I've coached long enough."

"There's enough work being athletic director. We've got some building to do at Nebraska and one of the big things on the program is a modern Coliseum."

"Doing the two jobs is okay for a while, but a man can do a better job if he does only one."

How did Devaney feel when Bear Bryant was named coach-of-the-year by the National Coaches' Assn. after the Cornhuskers' demolished Alabama in the Orange Bowl?

"I was disappointed, but I know the Orange Bowl win had no connection with the voting," responded Devaney.

HANK HOLLINGWORTH

vaney. "The finding was poor on the selection."

"But Bear had a good year coming off a fair season and he deserved the honor. I wasn't about to cut my throat about the vote, though."

"Chuck Fairbanks (Oklahoma) and I probably divided up the votes from our sector, while the South sticks together pretty good."

HAS DEVANEY ENTERTAINED the idea of becoming a pro coach, jumping into the play-for-pay ranks like Tom Prothro, Dan Devine and John Elston have done recently?

"Yes, but that's as far as it's gone," said the Alma (Mich.) College graduate. "Five or six years ago, I had some offers, but I never really thought the opportunity was right."

"I think I guessed wrong on one situation, though, but I won't mention the team involved."

"College coaching is a tough grind today because of what everybody else has said: Recruiting is awful rough. It's downright miserable, especially for someone at a school like Nebraska where the coaches often have to go out-of-state to get players."

"I don't mind visiting with people, but the travel is horrible. I've had enough of going to a strange town and looking up prospects' homes on those dark streets."

THE NEBRASKA COACH is dead set against the NCAA rule allowing freshmen to play varsity football.

"That damned rule is crazy," snorted Devaney. "Now what you have is 17-year-old kids just out of high school knocking heads against mature, 21-year-olds. That's terrible."

"At Nebraska we never scrimmaged our freshmen against the varsity. The freshmen simply weren't mature enough to bump against the seniors."

"The Big Eight is polling its recruits to see what they think about the ruling. The result should be interesting, but I don't believe the 17-year-olds want to fight for a job against a man of 21."

"I don't think the Big Eight will pass the rule permitting freshmen to play on the varsity. It's each conference's decision, but I have an idea the Big Eight won't go for it. I know I won't."

"When the NCAA people meet in a place like Hollywood, Fla., what else are they going to do but pass a stupid rule like this freshman thing?"

"But if they met in Scranton, Pa., they'd get the hell out of there so fast they wouldn't have time to make such a ridiculous decision."

L.B. preps impressive

For James Royal, Carl Miles, Allen Browning, and Lakewood's mile relay team, the 1972 high school track season couldn't have started in any more of an impressive fashion than it did Saturday night.

Royal and Miles, who'll score many a point for Poly High and new coach Jim Richardson this year, turned back strong fields in the 60 high hurdles and high jump while Browning was a first-place finisher in the rated mile.

Royal was the most impressive Moore League performer in the prep meet preceding open competition at the Sunkist Invitational in the L.A. Sports Arena, taking the highs in 7.5 after a slow start.

Miles, after failing at the opening height of 6-2 in the high jump, didn't miss again until trying 6-8. He was awarded first at 6-6 on the basis of fewer misses over Eugene Bernard of Chino.

Browning came back strong on the last lap to run a sparkling 4:24.7, a best-ever for the Lakewood senior.

Poly's other representatives, sprinter Leonard Hoss, Elvie Howard in the 1,000, miler David Cottrell, plus 640 and mile relay teams didn't win although Richardson was pleased with the over-all performance.

"Considering we've been running only two weeks and that I actually don't start teaching at Poly until next week, the kids looked o.k.," said Richardson.

"The big difference for any high school runner going indoors is being unfamiliar with how to run on the boards. They find out it isn't easy as it may appear on television."

Ross was third at 5.4 in a blanket-finish 60; Howard tired after leading his section of the 1,000 and faded to sixth in 2:22.8; Cottrell, trying a comeback after being sidelined last season with tendon problems, was sixth in his mile and Poly's 640 relay team of Ricky Ivey, Ross, Gary Jenkins and James Warren were third in their race at 1:09.4.

Lakewood and Gardena staged a crowd-pleasing rouser in the mile relay as Jeff Tominga anchored the Lancers home first in ahead of the Mohicans.

3:30.7, a tenth of a second. Bruce Smiley, Mike Huddleston, Mark Gray and Tominga comprised Lakewood's team which earlier in the evening won its heat in 3:32.7.

Huddleston ran two strong legs, pulling his team into the lead both times. Tominga and Gardena's Claude Brown traded the lead three times on the final leg with Tominga coming back in the final 20 yards to nip Brown at the wire.

Most impressive prep performer was Lompoc junior Terry Williams who ran away from a two-mile field to win in 9:04.8, five seconds' ahead of last year's winner, Jose Amaya of L.A. Wilson.

Foyt wears stocker hat today in '500'

By ALLEN WOLFE
Staff Writer

RIVERSIDE — The way some Southern stock car drivers see it, A. J. Foyt is depriving them of making a living.

Early each year the irrepressible gentleman from Houston, Tex., follows a curious ritual — he sheds his familiar role as A. J. Foyt, USAC championship driver, to become A. J. Foyt, NASCAR stock car driver.

Ever since 1963, and whenever the opportunity presents itself, Foyt has taken advantage of early race dates on the NASCAR

Grand National calendar — for two good reasons.

"I like to keep sharp and the only way to do that is to race," grins the three-time Indianapolis 500 winner. "Of course, if I pick up a little cash along the way it'll help pay for the electric bill back home."

Foyt stands to pick up a little more than "pin money" today if he and his '71 Mercury can last 500 miles over Riverside International Raceway's 2.62-mile road course. It's the kick-off event of the $2.5 million, 32-race 1972 NASCAR season, the Winston-Western 500.

A turnout of 50,000 fans is expected to see Foyt lead the field of 40 cars from his pole position for the 11 a.m. start. He locked up the pole Thursday, cruising in an easy 110.033 mph, which was almost a full mile per hour faster than Richard Petty's 109.389 mph.

If past performances are any indication, A. J. will be $15,170 richer and have his second Winston-Western 500 title safely tucked away about 4 p.m. He won the race in 1970 when it was known as the Motor Trend 500.

Since he made his NASCAR debut, Foyt has collected an impressive record despite his limited participation, preferring to concentrate his efforts in USAC Championship racing and, specifically, winning his fourth Indy 500.

His stock car victories include the Firecracker 400 at Daytona in 1964 and '65.

This year Foyt has renewed his association with the famed Wood Brothers — Glen, Leonard, Delano and Clay — from Stuart, Va. The same combination clicked last year for victories in the Miller High-Life 500 at Ontario Motor Speedway in February and the Atlanta 500 in March.

In addition to today's Winston-Western 500, the team plans to participate in the Daytona 500 as well as defend their titles in the Miller High-Life 500 and the Atlanta 500.

About the only ones who frown on the alliance are the NASCAR regulars whose pockets A. J. has been picking with marked regularity. But A. J. denies there's any ill will in the air.

"Now, we all get along pretty well," says the 37-year-old five-time USAC driving champion. "The past couple of years I feel like I'm one of them. I look at it this way — several of their boys (Donnie Allison, Cale Yarborough and Lee Roy Yarborough) have taken some money from USAC racing, so I'm merely squaring things up."

"I think you'll find they don't mind having me around. Guys like Petty and (Bobby) Allison are great drivers and they like to face the best. Now, I'm not pumping up my own ability. But I know they like it even better when I'm in there and they beat me anyway. It makes them feel they've earned it."

McGriff pocketed $4,200 for his victory, but could pad that figure even more since he's also entered in today's $105,000 Winston Western 500, if he finishes the race he will have logged 700 competitive miles this weekend.

"It takes a guy my age to do it," he laughed. "I guess you just build up stamina after all those years."

Can Hank (639) tag Willie (646)?

NEW YORK (UPI) — They're getting up an office pool over the Elias Sports Bureau, where a corps of figure filberts compiles official baseball statistics with tender loving care.

So far, the dates range from May 17 to July 14 and somewhere in there they're betting Hank Aaron will pass Willie Mays to become the No. 2 home run hitter of all time.

Aaron goes into the 1972 baseball season with 639 lifetime homers compared to 646 for Willie. Thus, Hammerin' Henry is only seven back of Mays as those two muscular moderns power their way toward the all-time record of 714 set by No. 1 — Babe Ruth.

Mays, who'll be 41 on May 6, needs 69 to surpass Ruth but Willie's days with the San Francisco Giants are running short. Aaron, 38 in February, needs 76 to make No. 1. Hank hit 47 for the Atlanta Braves last season and at that rate would overtake the Babe in 1973.

"That'll be next year's office pool," says an Elias statistician.

While much of 1972's home run excitement should be up near the top, several other sluggers are likely to climb the ladder.

Harmon Killebrew of the Minnesota Twins needs 22 to leap from seventh place to fourth behind Ruth, Mays and Aaron.

Genie Banks of the Chicago Cubs, who may or may not get to swing a bat, needs only one to break an eighth place tie with Eddie Mathews.

Frank Robinson, the ex-Baltimore Oriole now back in the National League with the Dodgers, needs 19 to pass Mel Ott, Mathews and Ted Williams.

Willie McCovey of the Giants, now

16th, needs five to pass Rocky Colavito and 38 to pass Duke Snider but can't move up any further.

Al Kaline of Detroit needs nine to pass Ralph Kiner and Colavito.

Frank Howard of the Texas Rangers, now 20th, needs 15 to pass Joe DiMaggio, Ralph Kiner and Colavito. Orlando Cepeda of Atlanta needs only seven to pass Yogi Berra, Johnny Mize and DiMaggio. With 22, he'd also pass Kiner and Colavito.

Norm Cash, with 32 like last year, would pass Hank Greenberg, Joe Adcock, Berra and Mize and tie DiMaggio for 19th place.

Here's the all time top 10: 1-Ruth 714, 2-Mays 646, 3-Aaron 639, 4-Mickey Mantle 536, 5-Jimmy Fox 534, 6-Ted Williams 521, 7-Killebrew 515, 8 (tie), Mathews and Banks 512, 10-Ott 511.

The second 10: 11-Frank Robinson 503, 12-Lou Gehrig 493, 13-Stan Musial 475, 14-Duke Snider 407, 15-Colavito 374, 16-McCovey 370, 17-Kiner 369, 18-Kalene 366, 19-Joe DiMaggio 361, 20-Frank Howard 360.

Willie Stargell of Pittsburgh, with 48 last season, was the homer king of the majors by a shade over Aaron. However, Stargell is far down the ladder with 244 for his career.

Meanwhile, Aaron, in his 17th major league season last year, proved to be more prolific than ever with his career high of 47. Twice before he delivered 44 in a season and he never has been under 24 since his rookie output of 13 in 1954.

He admits he's thinking positive about Ruth's record of 714. The boys over at Elias aren't quite so positive about dates but they're betting in their office pool that somewhere between May 17 and July 14 Hank will pass Willie in the climb up the mountain.

VIKINGS STUNNED, 74-73

tion to stake LBCC to a 55-45 lead.

From there things degenerated, but the Vikings looked like they had a lock on the game, even when Floyd Heaton fouled out midway through the second half and Rich Plante followed with 2:36 to play.

In fact, the Vikings still had a commanding 68-61 lead after Dallas made two free throws with 3:05 remaining.

From that point until the game's conclusion LBCC looked like it was playing in a playground pick-up game.

The Vikes started missing free throws, something they have rarely done all year. They also started to turn the ball over to the aroused Corsairs, cheered by 1,837 partisans.

Reserve Scott Alexander made a driving layup to pull SMCC to within one point, 73-72, with 11 seconds remaining. After his bucket, Alexander slammed into Beauchamp and was charged with a foul.

Beauchamp missed the charity and a wild scramble for the rebound followed. The ball got knocked out of bounds and was awarded to the Vikings with seven seconds to play.

It was here that Meadows, who had performed rather lacklusterly most of the game, stole Mullen's pass which was intended for John Sagehorn.

The Vikings quickly called time with one second left to set up a desperation attempt. Sagehorn's 90-foot pass to Beauchamp was broken up, however, and the Vikes dropped their second Metro game in four starts. Santa Monica is 4-0 in league play and, like Long Beach, 17-3 over-all.

Mexican influence in rodeo

By BUCK LANIER
Staff Writer

Mexico's many influences on America's sport of rodeo will be highlighted at the final session of the 10th Golden State Pro Rodeo in the Long Beach Arena. That will be a week from today at 3 p.m. The rodeo opens Friday at 8 p.m. 2 and 8 p.m. shows on Saturday.

The "Salute to Mexico" will feature the Mariachi los Camperos, RCA recording artists from Los Angeles, and Charro Francisco Zamora of Tijuana.

First informal riding and roping contests are believed to have been staged by Mexican vaqueros near Santa Clara around 1700. The Spanish "rodeo" translates into "roundup" in English.

Zamora is a full-fledged "charro" or "super cowboy" and the charros have long been symbols of freedom and independence in Mexico.

The Mariachi los Camperos are superb musicians with trumpets, violins, guitars and bass guitars and will be dressed in the splendor of the Mexican "charro," similar to the resplendent Zamora.

The rodeo, produced in association with the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce, has tickets on sale at the Arena, all Mutual agencies, Wallich's Music City, Ticketron outlets at Sears, May Co. and Broadway.

Prices are $5 to $25 with youths 16 and under half-price.

City baseball

At 11:00 a.m. noon, Downey A's vs. Anaheim Braves; 2:30, H.B. Spillers vs. San Bernardino.

At 1:00 p.m. noon, Purple Heart vs. L.B. Police; 2:30, Alondra Inn vs. Keutman & Broad, Inc.

QUAIL IN FLIGHT?

New Long Beach rodeo clown Quail Dobbs, Coahoma, Tex., makes his initial California appearance at the 10th Golden State Pro Rodeo Friday through Jan. 30 in the Long Beach Arena. Dobbs, a 10-year veteran battling the bulls, is well-known in the Midwest, South and South-west.

Dodger team doctor, NL umpire at coaches clinic

A veteran NL umpire, the Dodgers' team physician and trainer, and the Angels' director of scouting will be among the speakers at the Long Beach Unified School District's 11th Annual Baseball Coaches Clinic to be held Saturday in the LBCC gym.

Doug Harvey, who has umpired World Series and All-Star games, will speak on baseball officiating at 11 along with CIF instructor Joe Reed.

The afternoon session will feature Dr. Frank Jobe, Dodger physician, who, along with trainer Bill Buhler, will show slides and x-rays of baseball injuries. Following this presentation will be scouting director Tommy Sommers of the Angels speaking on baseball defense.

Also on hand will be coaches Augie Garrido and Berdy Harr from Cal Poly, SLO talking on team defense, and Orioles scout Al Kubi's whose topic is "The Importance of Selling Baseball."

The event is free and is open to any adult baseball coach. More than 500 coaches from California, Arizona, and Nevada are expected. Registration is at 8:30, and the event will be held rain or shine.

In addition, there will be more than 20 different sporting goods displays of the latest in baseball equipment.

It pays to go to meetings.

The Army Reserve pays in a lot of ways.

You're paid for every Army Reserve meeting you attend. Each unit training assembly is equal to a full day's Active Army pay, according to your rank and length of service.

Your pay goes up as you go up. And in the Reserve things are happening faster now. We're making more promotions than ever because the men who served in the Army during World War II and Korea are retiring.

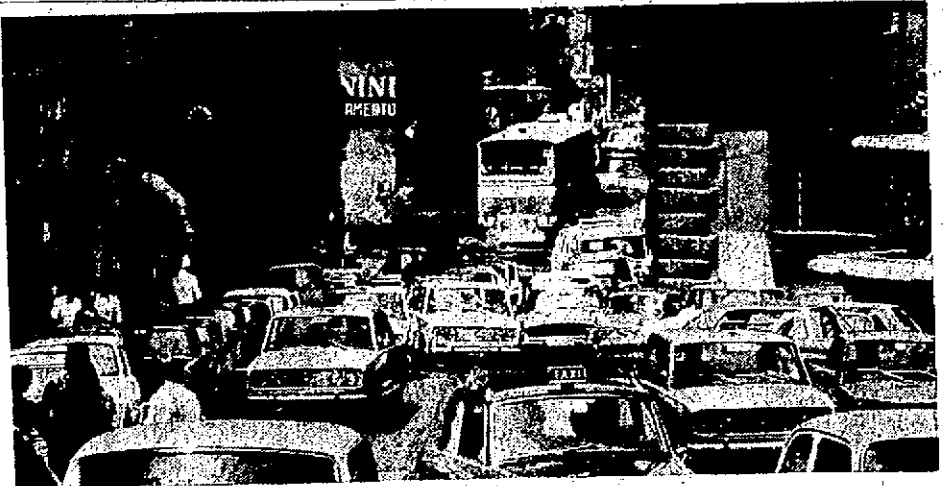

The Reserve gives you a chance to move ahead in civilian life, too. We can offer you one of 300 job training courses, depending upon the specific skill requirements of your local unit. From accounting to communications. From finance to mechanics.

So if you're about to fulfill your military obligation, or if you're in the Individual Ready Reserve, or have prior service with any of the armed services, check into the Army Reserve.

It pays. The Army Reserve.

IN ROME, WHERE IT'S HARD ENOUGH JUST BEING A CAR, THE FIAT 124 IS USED AS A TAXI.

While we certainly never intended the 124S to be a taxi, it turns out that the taxi drivers in Rome think it makes an extraordinary one.

To fully appreciate the significance of this, you have to know a little bit about Romans and Roman driving conditions.

To start with, the streets of ancient Rome are far too narrow for cars. So, in order to fit, cars must be small on the outside. Taxicabs, paradoxically, must be big on the inside in order for passengers to fit.

(The Fiat 124S is as short as a VW Beetle on the outside—yet on the inside it's big enough to comfortably seat 4 large adults.)

Secondly, to a Roman motorist, staying ahead of other Roman motorists is a matter of honor. To be passed is to be dishonored. And to the taxi driver—the "professional" motorist—this need for performance is all-consuming.

(The Fiat 124S goes from 0 to 60 in 15.4 seconds, which is fast enough to take most anything in its class and several cars not in its class.)

Thirdly, in Rome, a parking space is anywhere a driver chooses to alight from his car. This creates an obstacle course through which the taxi driver and his car must be able to weave at top speed.

(The Fiat 124S handles like a sports car because, among other things, it has the same kind of steering and suspension as our 124 Spider. It also has disc brakes on all four wheels, just in case. And if you don't like to shift, it's available with automatic transmission.)

And fourthly, despite all these requirements, in order to show a profit at the end of the week, the taxi driver needs a car that is inexpensive to run as well as buy.

(The Fiat 124S gets 30 miles to a gallon of gas and costs just $2,350. That's the manufacturer's suggested retail price POE the West Coast.

Transportation, state and local taxes, optional equipment and dealer preparation charges, if any, are additional, as with any other new automobile.)

Now, if you're considering buying a small car, it would certainly pay you to consider the Fiat 124S. After all, if it can make it in Rome as a taxi, it can make it anywhere as a car. FIAT

Let's have a clambake and call Joe Foss

If all the former South Dakota residents will gather around, we'll have a clambake in honor of Joe Foss. One problem is that Joe won't be here and you'll have to dig your own clams and bring your own pots. I can provide the fire.

This Joe Foss business started when I boo-boomed in a recent column about the Anaheim sports show and called Joe Foss the former governor of North Dakota. I corrected that, but I still am getting calls and even letters, informing me in no uncertain terms that Joe was the governor of South Dakota.

I honestly believe that we could start a Presidential campaign for Joe, but I doubt that he would go for politics again. He once told me that he thought he had a good reputation until he got into politics; then, he wasn't quite so certain.

Joe, who now is making public appearances as an emcee at sports shows, dinners, etc., and who is starting a new series of outdoor shows for television syndication, has returned to his Scottsdale, Ariz., home.

If he were offered a job in South Dakota again, I believe that he would rather have an outdoor job where he could communicate with the birds and animals rather than sit in the governor's chair. He'd probably like to take a few shots at ringnecked pheasants, which incidentally are the official birds of that state.

A WRITER GOES ALONG, DAY after day, trying to be factual, but just let him make one boo-boo and there are more editors outside the newspaper than there have ever been at Pine and Sixth. I was fully aware that Joe was the former governor of South Dakota, not North, but in some manner, I slipped. I can't even blame the computer or any of the proof readers.

So, I hope that I have made the proper amends to my friends who once lived in South Dakota. I note with extreme pleasure that nobody from North Dakota called to object, so that probably proves another point, namely, that Joe Foss is an extremely popular man.

I love him for his conservation ideas, his feeling that wildlife of all kinds must be kept in balance and therefore protected from man's greed. I, too, am grateful for the many friends he has in Long Beach. Most of those who wrote or called me were kind in their criticism.

One wasn't, however. He got me out of bed to tell me what a no-good so-and-so I was, that I didn't know anything about writing and that he thought I recently. If I could please everybody every day, I, like several dozen others, might run for President. Yes, sir, Irvine is open should make a public apology to Joe and all his friends.

After writing for almost half a century, I don't take that sort of criticism lying down. He wouldn't give me his name. If I knew it, I would turn him over to the North Dakotans, who, I imagine, also are nice people, but they might not be nice to him.

LET'S TALK about trout fishing. Somebody called to say that I haven't had anything in the column about Irvine Lake. Apparently he never read two or three columns that I did five days a week, from 5 p.m. until dark or whatever closing time manager Russ Cleary has decreed for the winter and spring seasons. The lake is closed on Wednesdays and Thursdays and planting of trout is done at that time.

Opening day was last Friday and there were numbers of limits caught. Yet many trout just disappeared into the depths. There were no Whopper Club candidates on that opening weekend.

Cleary's Anaheim Lake also is open five days a week, with closings on Mondays and Tuesdays.

San Vicente Lake (San Diego County), one of San Diego's city water reservoirs, will remain open until March 12, with trout plants being made weekly, and the Department of Fish and Game and the City of San Diego alternating each week with equal plants.

Elsinore's water is cold and the bass fishing is poor; Casitas, Piru and Cachuma Lakes are excellent for planted trout.

WHEN THE city of San Diego closes San Vicente, it will start plans to open El Capitan Lake on March 23 and Sutherland on April 19. Murray and Miramar Lakes already are open.

The lake that has afforded the finest bass fishing is Lower Otay. It will be reopened on Wednesday, Feb. 16, with 140 rental boats available. Boats can not be reserved, however, in the first three days of operation.

Otay is famous for its Florida-type bass, plus crappie, bluegill, channel and bullhead catfish. The lake will be open on Wednesdays, Saturdays and Sundays. Like other San Diego City Water Department lakes, pressure is kept down to preserve the fishery.

The lake has 1,266 surface acres when full. There is a campground with full hookups, plus facilities for tent-camping and daytime picnicking.

Of great importance this year is the plan for launching private boats at Lower Otay. In preparation for the opening, boaters may launch their craft on Feb. 15 between 7 a.m. and 5 p.m. There will be a $2 launching fee for each day the boat is used.

If you are wondering about Upper Otay, forget it. That lake is being maintained as a hatchery for the Florida strain of bass, which grow to more than 20 pounds. Bass are transferred from Upper Otay to other lakes of the San Diego system; also to lakes outside of San Diego's jurisdiction.

NO STRIP TEASE.

When you buy a Datsun 1200 Sedan, you get a lot more than a stripped down starting point for an option list.

You get a complete car, dressed with all the trimmings. Datsun doesn't believe in that old game of charging extra for all the things that make a car fun to drive and nice to own.

There's only one way to buy a Datsun. Complete. And at a price that makes the Datsun 1200 the best value for your dollar. Drive a Datsun...then decide.

House with a past -- and a future

Mrs. Richard Nixon is the first First Lady to have her childhood home turned into a museum depicting her life.

Pat Nixon grew up as Thelma Patricia Ryan on a 10-acre ranch in what was then the unincorporated area of Artesia, later Dairy Valley and now the city of Cerritos.

She shared the small, three-bedroom wooden farmhouse with her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. William Ryan, and two brothers, Tom and Bill, from 1914 to 1930. That white house is now part of Pat Nixon Park and will be transformed into the museum showing how a small town girl became First Lady of the land.

Such are the plans of a group of Cerritos civic and business leaders, headed by John Corcoran, manager of the Chamber of Commerce.

The house and surrounding land were about to be gobbled up by subdividers when the city stepped in, purchased the land for $140,000 and converted it to a five-acre park, preserving the house.

"When you get something like this going, everyone has suggestions and we're receptive to any ideas," explained Corcoran.

THE COMMITTEE, which consists of two members from the Lions Club, a representative of the women's clubs, a member of the Jaycees and an Optimist member, has received a full catalogue of color photographs from the White House depicting Mrs. Nixon's role as First Lady from inauguration day to the present.

"These will be sorted, appropriately framed, identified with captions and mounted for display on the walls of the museum. What we're missing now are the human interest items of her early childhood. We're also negotiating for family pictures, photos from the Nixons' wedding, his early political life and the years as vice president when Mrs. Nixon was second lady of the land," the committee chairman said.

Already in the collection is a copy of Mrs. Nixon's yearbook from Excelsior. See FIRST LADY'S, Page W-4

THE COMMITTEE hopes to hang an oil portrait of Pat Nixon in the alcove above the fireplace built by the President's father.

FOUR-YEAR-OLD Gina Calamia is one of the pre-school craft students using side wing of home. She sits under one of the original trees that were preserved in landscaping.

Your bell will ring

More mothers will march in the annual house-to-house March of Dimes campaign here this year than have marched since the days when polio was one of the nation's most dread diseases.

Some 3,500 women and men, too, in the Long Beach and Lakewood areas will call at homes today through next Sunday in their effort to raise money to fight birth defects.

After polio was controlled by Salk and Sabin vaccines, the National Dimes organization turned its attention to such genetic problems as P.K.U., rubella, Rh negative blood problems and other crippling diseases. Part of the money also goes to genetic counseling, prenatal care clinics and education, research and patient care.

The official Mothers' March Night is Jan. 25 in this area, but the marchers will be out during the entire week.

"Until we can protect some quarter of a million infants every year from lifelong handicaps, everyone must help," Mrs. Donald Muchmore, drive chairman, said. "In recent years an increasing number of men have offered their services too."

Mrs. Muchmore cited the rubella (German measles) vaccine, Rh serum and rapid advances in treatment at birth as progress in the quest for a health birthright for all children.

The March of Dimes has defined a birth defect as a malformation or malfunction present at birth. It may either be inherited or the result of some occurrence during pregnancy.

The defects range from clubfoot and cleft palate to defects of the heart and blood vessels, the skeletal, gastrointestinal and central nervous systems and "hidden" defects of body chemistry detectable only in the laboratory.

The United States has fallen to 16th place in the world in the prevention of infant mortality. One American child in 45 does not live to see his first birthday, the March of Dimes Foundation claims.

Prematurity is a major cause of infant death with nearly 300,000 premature infants born every year in this country.

The foundation says that 15 million Americans of all ages have one or more birth defects serious enough to affect their daily lives.

More volunteers are needed, Mrs. Muchmore said. Interested persons may call 424-0414.

At least 560,000 American lives are lost every year as a result of birth defects. Most are babies who die before they have really begun to live. Joining the march to reverse statistics are Virginia Muchmore, March of Dimes Mothers March chairman; Bud Minor, campaign co-chairman; Mrs. Taylor Brown.

SOCIALLY SPEAKING

Good grief! Already?

By CAROLYN McDOWELL

MAL AND BEA Johnson hosted 65 friends and neighbors for a holiday open house steeped in Swedish tradition.

No, this story is not a Christmas left-over as you may suspect.

The invitations read "First Holiday Party of 1972."

Joe and Joyce Hicks were among guests who came bearing gaily wrapped Christmas gifts.

The Johnson Family does enjoy a longer-than-average holiday season.

They started on Dec. 13, 1971, when daughter, Joanne, appeared at her parents' bedroom door bearing a breakfast tray.

Joanne was clad in a long white gown with red sash and her hair was crowned with a wreath of holly and candles.

Mal and Bea were surprised and delighted that she had remembered the old country tradition of St. Lucia's Day.

They were further delighted that she had had the good sense not to light the candles, a slight departure from tradition.

Bea, a whiz in the kitchen, prepared the Swedish-themed buffet herself featuring such traditional offerings as meatballs and rosettes baked in those decorative waffle irons and lightly dusted with powdered sugar.

Guests included neighbors to the right and left — Jim and Marilyn Shirley and Gene and Claire Bunton came over; Carl and Betty Wulfsberg dropped in after the Wilson football game.

Also Jack and Sue Rose, Frank and Betty Sunofsky, Lew and Edith Hindley, Walt and Gini Drew, Bill and Marge Hoppe, Dale and Jean Leisy, "Doc" and Betty Newton, Evar and Jean Peterson, Norb and Barbara Dean, Bill and Mary Lou Nicolai and Charles and Ruth Bookman.

MORE COMING in the new year . . .

Antonian Club, formerly of St. Anthony's parish is looking for lost members.

A silver anniversary celebration is scheduled for the first weekend in July. Activities will begin with a dinner dance on Saturday, July 1. Next morning the sleepy-heads will gather for brunch and have the day free. The third day will be devoted to a "picnic in the park."

The committee reports that they have had good luck rounding up names and addresses of out-of-towners but localities have stumped them.

If you are eligible, send your name, address and phone number and they will put you on the mailing list. Write The Antonians, P.O. Box 2443, Long Beach 90801.

AND ANOTHER St. Anthony's reunion . . .

This one — the class of 1962 — has a ten-year reunion scheduled for June 10 at the Airporter Inn in Newport Beach. (I wonder how many Orange County reunions are held in Long Beach?)

They are looking for lost grads for the dinner dance. Address yourselves to "Reunion Committee, 651 Mollino, Long Beach, 90814.

AND A JEWEL of a party in a jewel of a setting . . .

Jewel Marchess planned a shopping spree "down south" with good friends Betty Van Leuven and Nell Recknagel.

Betty and Nell, in turn, planned a surprise birthday luncheon for Jewel at the Balboa Bay Club.

The birthday gal walked in to be greeted by such surprisers as Sylvia Latham, Jayotte Petty and Mickey Baugh.

Jewel is a recent member of the Turtle Club so all of her gifts were replicas of same.

The chef had heard of Jewel's New Year diet so the luncheon featured melon and strawberries and Jewel's plate was decorated with roses made of carrots dyed bright red with food coloring.

Biggest surprise of the day was the unexpected opportunity for the girls to board the yacht Mojo for a tour and take-pictures-session.

You may recall that President Nixon cruises on the Mojo when he is in the Southern California area.

I GUESS I AM NOT the only one who has had a frustrating experience with a balky electronic garage door.

Joyce Murchison spent some time extricating herself and car from her garage and was late to the annual luncheon of the auxiliaries of Assistance League.

Rick Rackers and Las Hermanas met at League House with Rick Rackers hosting the day.

Rick Rackers Chairman, Barbara Haverkort, welcomed everyone and introduced League representatives Virginia Eagleson and Terri Enders.

Mary Gray, chairman of Las Hermanas, took over the post-luncheon session and those present pronounced it a very good day.

Eyen Joyce.

CHILD'S ROOM with single narrow window, facing undesirable view, gains look of space when "window" turns corner. Nothing but wall behind table side of treatment; unwanted view is shut out on other side. Fabric cut from draperies used to fashion cut-out dolls—pasted on felt-covered contrasting cornice, felt tie-backs and matching spread.

What to do with room with no view

Worrisome windows have been a decorating problem for so long that it comes as something of a surprise to learn that there's actually a new entry in the catalogue of homemakers' window complaints.

Yes, we still suffer with windows that are too tall, too squat, too wide, too narrow—windows built, apparently, to no rule at all except that of thumb. Now you can add a newcomer to the all-too-familiar list; windows placed right at the spot where they provide the worst possible view.

With more of us living in crowded communities, next-door neighbors are too often literally right next to us—our windows looking into theirs, or out on to vistas of blank walls, busy roadways, all the not-particularly-attractive aspects of urban life.

For every homemaker with two acres of privacy surrounding her, there must be a score or more of women whose view of the outside world represents, at best, a disturbing distraction. Worse, their windows—your drapery choices can vary—from a sheer at the window to a heavyweight homespun on the room side, or any combination your decor dictates—they should have colors in common, with each other or with upholstery fabrics.

LUMBERYARD framings, cornices and lattices are some of the architectural devices that will unify the decorative treatment, and give your imaginatively-used readymades a custom look. For a quick cornice, just top your window with a horizontal plywood panel, covering with the fabric from a single drapery matching those at the window. It's a pair-and-a-spare idea that will give you fashion mileage for a small investment in do-it-yourself time.

For a change of pace, switch to the heavier texture at the glass, with a sheer—perhaps one of the new Chinese-inspired prints—on the room side. By reversing the traditional order of window-covering weights, you'll really be focusing attention on the room, rather than the outdoors.

The same trick—heavyweights at the window—is a wonderful way, incidentally, to "build" a window where none exists. By treating a piece of wall as if it were a window, you can pair off an awkward real window with a graceful "twin," or widen a too narrow window without expensive architectural changes. Just make sure the fabric

coordinator—don't worry about texture

necessary to let in air and light—also admit all the soot and grime that go with urban pollution, making the chore of home maintenance just that much more demanding.

WHAT TO DO about windows that let in everything except view? The answer seems to lie in decorative treatments that focus the eye inward—using fabrics that take to washing without fuss. No need to get involved with expensive, custom installations to satisfy a taste for privacy.

Inexpensive readymades, married to imagination, are all it takes to keep the outside world where it belongs: outside.

Start by looking at your un-dressed window with an eye to closing it off, instead of opening it up—the big difference in window-dressing to eliminate an unwanted view. Two sets of draperies are going to be called for—one at the window to mask the glass, topped by a room-side pair for decorative interest.

Color, rather than texture, should be the important coordinator. While the texture of

First Lady's childhood home will house museum

High, which lists her as intending to run a boarding house. The senior personality profile also has as her pseudonym "Buddy" and as her liability "two brothers."

Donated by USC, where Mrs. Nixon attended college, are a 1937 class photo and a picture of her receiving an honorary degree later.

"THE MUSEUM will never be complete," pointed out Corcoran. "The exhibits won't be fixed, but will change constantly as new material is gathered."

Joseph Cannell, decorator for the Western White House in San Clemente, is consultant on the refurbishing of the interior.

Since Mrs. Nixon left her childhood home, the house has been renovated and an addition was built on the side. Her brother, Tom, lived there until 1950.

The museum will occupy only three rooms of the original house. The rest will be turned into the Pat Nixon Youth Center for Girl Scouts and Camp Fire Girls, with full kitchen facilities. Presently, the side wing is being used for pre-school crafts classes.

The senior Girl Scouts and Camp Fire Girls will serve as tour guides for the museum when it's open. Target date for completion, is June 15, with a grand opening hopefully attended by the Nixon family. Mrs. Nixon was on hand last year for the groundbreaking of the park site at 12834 South St.

THE HOUSE FIRST was built by the Ryan family, who moved to the area from Nevada when Pat was 3. It has been completely reinforced so that the building meets all city codes and is structurally sound. The committee now plans to put in air conditioning, heating, restyle the roof, install new shutters and redo the outside, as well as redecorate the inside.

One interesting sidelight to the house, according to Corcoran, is the brick chimney and fireplace, which was built by Richard Nixon's father, Frank Nixon, before the President met Pat. "We plan to put up a plaque to commemorate the fact."

A Pat Nixon Museum fund has been established at the Cerritos branch of United California Bank with a $250 donation from the women's press corps of Washington, D.C.

"They heard about the project and wondered what they could do to help. I suggested they give a check to Mrs. Nixon earmarked for the museum."

Focal point in the main museum area, the old living room, is the fireplace with an alcove above it. The committee hopes to hang an oil portrait of Mrs. Nixon there. "We're negotiating with the White House for such a portrait, but of course Mrs. Nixon doesn't have time to sit for a painting."

The grounds around the home are landscaped and include a living Christmas tree planted by the First Lady at the ground breaking. Flowers are planned in the future. Two of the trees on the original land — one a gnarled walnut tree planted by Mrs. Nixon when she lived there — have been preserved.

AT THE REAR of the house is the original wooden ranch well, which is now part of the park. Plans call for the bottom portion to be used as a storage area for play equipment.

"Nothing is definite yet. Things are still in the planning stages. Basically, however," said Corcoran, "we hope to create a museum that serves as an inspiration to young girls."

THIS GNARLED walnut tree was planted by Pat Nixon when she lived in the white frame house soon to be a museum depicting her life from small town girl to First Lady. Staff photo by TOM SHAW

To our many thousands of Patrons and friends.

Over the years we have kept our prices for services at a minimum because we believe that the average homemaker or working gal has a limited amount of money to spend on beauty services in these days of inflation. We were right. Your response to our advertising has brought us from one small salon to 31 big salons, with over a thousand hair stylists now serving you. All this in just a few short years.

Over these years, some gals have asked "are your services sub-standard because your prices are so low... can I get the same color work... the same hair styling as in the higher price salons?" We of course replied "we use the same products for the hair and every one of our beauty operators has been trained to do every phase of beauty work and all of them are licensed by the State of California."

So, for you gals who are reading our ad for the first time... don't just look at our prices... and expect less... look at the name and expect more. Doesn't it make good sense... why pay more... when you can get the same thing for less... try us... you'll like us!

DEAR ABBY

Meditating brings out hang-up in both friends

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend who has gone in for "meditating." She meditates twice a day for 20 minutes, and when she does, she takes the telephone off the hook and forgets to put it back on.

I get so angry when I call her and find her line "busy" for hours on end. I have even phoned her neighbor and asked her to please ring my friend's doorbell and tell her that her phone is off the hook.

I will donate $25 to your favorite charity if you publish this letter! — IRRITATED

DEAR IRRITATED: Give the $25 to your local Mental Health Association. And try to control your irritation. It's bad for your blood pressure.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 19-year-old conservative, responsible, open-minded guy. I am living away from home at college.

My roommate (I'll call him Dave) and I have a problem. Recently, two very close friends of his (both girls) offered to share an apartment with us next year. Dave has known these girls since he was a little kid. They are like sisters to him. I believe his intentions are 100 percent honorable.

A setup like this would give us great benefits. Dave and I wouldn't have to hassle with mending clothes, cooking, or house-keeping. Chris and Kathy (not their real names) would end up with a few extra bucks a month, plus they wouldn't have to worry about living alone, defenseless, like many girls do these days. At any rate, it would cost us all less than what it's costing us now. The only problem is that it is a bit extreme.

Tell me, Abby, what would your advice be to your kid if he hit you with a proposition like this? — UNDECIDED AT UCSE

DEAR UNDECIDED: It's highly unlikely that my kid will ever hit me with a proposition like that, but if he does I will let you know. Meanwhile, if at this stage of your life, you need help in recognizing the social boobytraps in premarital cohabitation, I doubt if you would take my advice seriously. So I'll withhold it.

DEAR ABBY: I am 18 and my fiancé (call him Bob) is 20. We have gone together off and on for four years and have been engaged for over a year. Bob is in the Navy and makes $400 a month.

We want to get married, but my problem is my folks. They don't think we can make it on $400 a month. Bob is making more than my father. My Mom doesn't work, and we have four kids in our family, so I don't know how my folks figure, do you? Please help. — GENERATION GAP

DEAR GAP: If your father is making it on less than $400 a month with six mouths to feed, it is obvious your folks have other reasons for objecting to your marrying Bob. Find out what they are.

DEAR ABBY: I am a school teacher. The other day another teacher told me in the presence of the school nurse and some office secretaries, that she had seen a woman shoplift a purse in a local store. I asked her if she reported the incident to anyone, and she said she had not. I then told her that I thought she had an obligation to report it.

A discussion followed. One person agreed with me. Another said, "If that woman was stealing, she must have been very hard up and needed to steal so it would have been unkind to report her."

Another said, "I'd have minded my own business because if I made such an accusation and wasn't able to prove it, I could be sued for slander."

Now I'd like your opinion, Abby. — AN EX AGLENO

DEAR EX: I would have reported it. To quote Edmund Burke (again), "All that is necessary for evil to triumph is for good men to do nothing."

What's your problem? you'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Photographer's scenes of L.B. spur grant

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Editor

Pictures of Long Beach scenes helped a young East Los Angeles photographer capture the First Annual Ferguson Grant of $1,500. The money was presented to Anthony Hernandez by Fred R. Parker, curator of photography at Pasadena Art Museum on behalf of Friends of Photography, Carmel.

Hernandez, whose work was part of a three-man show, "The Crowded Vacancy," recently held at the Pasadena Museum, exhibited a number of scenes photographed in Long Beach. Some of his photographs were acquired for the museum's Permanent Collection. He also will be included in an exhibition of the museum's photography collection beginning Feb. 8.

The new Ferguson Grant will be awarded annually to enable the winner to pursue a project or do work in photography that otherwise he could not undertake.

Hernandez's wish is to return to Vietnam, where he was stationed in 1968, to photograph life on Vietnamese streets. This will be an extension of his work here and in Europe.

Hernandez hopes to find additional funds for the project.

For the Ferguson Grant, his work was selected from that of 97 applicants, four of whom were previous one-man exhibitors at the Museum of Modern Art, New York. The competition was open to any person working in photography at a serious level and who had demonstrated a sustained commitment.

Friends of Photography, formed in 1967, maintains a gallery in Carmel and encourages growth and appreciation of photography as a medium. Its membership is composed of nearly 1,000 photographers, collectors and laymen in the United States. Officers and trustees include Ansel Adams, Brett Weston, Wynn Bullock and Minor White.

ALSO at the Pasadena Museum is a spatial environment titled "Madagascar" by Rafael Ferrer. It consists of a collage of disparate, familiar elements of nature made into an environment into which viewers walk. You may experience this exhibit through Feb. 27.

The museum is located at Colorado and Orange Grove Boulevards, Pasadena. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesdays through Saturdays, noon to 5 p.m. Sundays, closed Mondays.

ONE OF THE LARGEST displays of art objects ever sent abroad by the Soviet Union will be shown at Los Angeles Municipal Art Gallery in Barnsdall Park, 4804 Hollywood Blvd., March 10 through April 2. Los Angeles is one of six cities in the United States in which the collection will be shown.

"Soviet Union: Arts and Crafts in Ancient Times and Today" consists of 1,500 pieces dating from the second century B.C. to the present. It will have its only Western showing here before going to the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York.

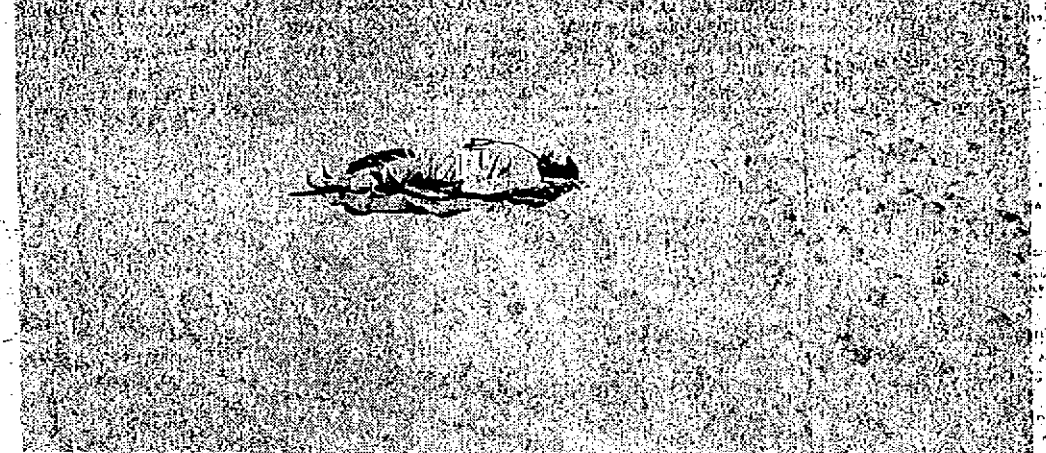

The exhibit is in two parts. The first, going to the 17th century, will have work by sophisticated artisans and peasants and will include gold pieces, wood and bone carvings, metal work and textiles.

The second part will be made up of contemporary folk art from all 15 Soviet Republics.

IT'S A CHINESE theme, too, for this week at California State College, Los Angeles.

An evening of Chinese classical dance and music will open the week today at 8 p.m. in the CSLA Theater. The college is located at the intersection of the San Bernardino and Long Beach freeways. All events are open to the public without charge.

Other activities: A Lion Dance and demonstration of Gung Fu, Chinese art of self-defense. Monday at noon in the free speech area. Demonstration of Chinese art and paintings at noon Tuesday in the Music Hall with Chinese artists participating. Demonstration of Chinese cooking Wednesday at 1 p.m. in Room 138, Fine Arts Building. Demonstration of the ancient art of healing with needles Thursday at noon in King Hall Lecture Room 1.

An exhibition of "The Art of China" will be on view through Jan. 31 in Kennedy Library through Jan. 31.

ENTRIES for Long Beach Art Association's first annual Juried Membership Watercolor Show will be accepted Monday from 1 to 7 p.m. at the gallery, 600 E. Ocean Blvd.

Delmar Yokura, past president of the California National Watercolor Society and recent recipient of the Watercolor U.S.A. John Marin Memorial Award, will be juror.

FOR THE FIRST time, residents of the Harbor area may view authentic Polish artifacts from the personal collections of Mrs. Jadwiga Wielkoszewski of Los Angeles and Mrs. Sye Malins of Carson. The articles are on display in the window and gallery of the U.N.A. Global Gift Shop, 940 S. Pacific Ave., San Pedro. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mondays through Saturdays. All of the exhibit is on loan and is not for sale. It will continue through Feb. 19.

Both collectors are members of the Polish National Alliance headquartered in Chicago. Mrs. Wielkoszewski is director of the Polish National Alliance Clubhouse, 4434 Crenshaw Blvd., where she teaches youngsters songs and dances of their Slavic background.

Mrs. Malins, who also has collected Polish artifacts, is responsible for the exhibition in San Pedro.

THE VENERABLE Huntington Library in San Marino is seeking a new look. For half a century the library, with its art gallery and botanical gardens, has been a rich resource for researchers and scholars.

Now, under leadership of director Dr. James Thorpe, a new board of overseers is planning new programs to make the library's many treasures better known and more widely used. There will be pilot classes for young people; public programs for visitors, expanded garden docent service and self-guided tours.

JAY LEFF, chairman of the Center Art Committee, says that the annual Norman Gottlieb Youth Art Show will be held March 14 through 31 at the Jewish Community Center, 2601 Grand Ave.

Established after Gottlieb's two-year term of presidency of the Center, the show is in recognition of his service to the community.

There will be two divisions in this year's show, senior and junior high school, and three categories: oil, water and mixed media.

Students in the Long Beach Unified School District will participate in the show. Descriptive brochures and registration forms are available at the Center. A panel of judges will award three prizes in each division.

NAMED TO JUDGE entries in the 1972 Carritos College Ceramic Annual are John Mason of the art faculty at UC, Irvine; Jon Soldate, of the art faculty at California State College, Los Angeles; and Michael Arntz, of the art faculty at UC, Santa Barbara.

They will select winners of cash awards totaling $500.

The exhibitions will open with a public reception Feb. 23 from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Art Gallery on campus and will continue through March 12.

Artists who wish to enter should deliver their works to Brugger's Fine Art and Transfer Co., 2110 W. 20th, Los Angeles.

Currently in the gallery is the annual faculty show of paintings, drawings, sculpture, ceramics, crafts, jewelry and commercial art—all representative of courses offered by the 9 full-time and 11 part-time art instructors at Carritos.

REY DE LA TORRE

arts Camerata concert scheduled Jan. 30

A unique organization, Long Beach's Camerata Dei Musici, will give a free public concert next Sunday in Covenant Presbyterian Church social hall, Third Street and Atlantic Avenue.

Conducted by John Palacios and David Humphrey, the 19-member orchestra and 20-voice chorus will perform Haydn's "Symphony No. 4," Handel's "Concerto Grosso," Bach's "Cantata No. 142" (Unst. ein Kind Geboren) and Daniel Pinkham's "Christmas Cantata-Shifonia Sora."

The Camerata is composed of professional and amateur musicians residing in this area. They have never charged admission. First performance was Nov. 18, 1960, at the First Congregational Church of Los Angeles. In 1961, they appeared on the Los Angeles Monday Evening Concert Series with Henry Lewis as conductor and Marilyn Horne as soloist.

INCORPORATED as a non-profit corporation in 1963, they presented a debut concert in the Lafayette Hotel, Long Beach; Dr. Bertram McGarrity conducted.

Other past conductors have included Gaylord Browne, Eugene Ober, Lauris Jones, Hans Lampi, Frank Ahrold, Alberto Bollet, Harriet Payne and Robert Collins.

It was in 1963, also, that the group inaugurated the buffet-concert format that has continued through the years. Several fully-staged works of past seasons include Menotti's "The Unicorn" and Ahrold's "The Spider and the Fly."

The Camerata also has premiered works by Ahrold, McGarrity and Morris Ruger, although most of the repertoire is taken from the baroque and classical periods.

Symphony bills celebration of Spanish Night

With guitar virtuoso Rey de la Torre as soloist, Long Beach Symphony Orchestra will celebrate Spanish Night Sunday, Feb. 6, at 7:30 p.m. in Long Beach City College Auditorium. Alberto Bolet will conduct.

A master of the guitar since he was 10, de la Torre left his native Havana when he was 14 to continue his education in Spain. His debut at 16 in Barcelona was followed by his American debut in New York at a Town Hall recital. In the years since, he has toured throughout the world.

"The featured work in the Long Beach concert will be the most popular of contemporary guitar concertos, the "Concierto de Aranjuez" by the blind Spanish composer Joaquin Rodrigo, a work that de la Torre premiered in this country with the Cleveland Orchestra.

The guitarist has recorded extensively for Epic Records, and has appeared on numerous television programs, among them the Tonight, Camera Three and Today shows.

THREE OTHER works of Spanish mood have been programmed by maestro Bolet. The Suite from "Carmen" by Bizet will open the concert.

After the Rodrigo Concerto, the orchestra will play Joaquin Turina's "La Oracion del Torero," depicting a matador at prayer before entering the ring. Manuel de Falla's "Three-Cornered Hat" ballet will conclude the program.

A limited number of tickets for adults at $3.50 and $3 are available; children and students will be admitted for $1. For ticket information, call the Long Beach Symphony office, 121 Linden Ave.

Long Beach Symphony Guild will continue a custom started during the Starlight Serenades last summer by presenting a Spanish dinner on the night of the concert from 5 to 7 p.m. at Whaley Park Recreation Center, 5620 E. Atherton St. The menu will be a chicken and rice dish, Arroz con Pollo, with salad, beans and dessert. The price is $2.50 for adults, $1.75 for children. Reservations may be made at the symphony office.

FURTHER enhancing the evening will be a display of art by Dorre Stogner in the auditorium lobby before the concert and during intermission. She is a member of California National Watercolor Society and Long Beach Art Association. Her work to be reproduced in the concert program is a collage chosen for Laguna Art Gallery's 51st annual National California Watercolor Exhibition last fall.

The public is invited to a preview of the concert program to be given by Dr. Aurelio de la Vega Tuesday at 10 a.m. in the home of Mrs. Walter Crawford, 3401 E. Ocean Blvd. He is professor of music at San Fernando Valley State College. Donation for the preview-coffee hour is $1.50.

Segovia in concerts

Andres Segovia will perform two different programs at The Music Center Pavilion Saturday and Monday evenings. Both concerts will begin at 8:30 p.m. Segovia is marking the 43rd anniversary of his initial tour of North America. Best seating for this Music Center Presentations event is available for Monday.

The concert will be played by the Los Angeles Philharmonic Saturday at 8:15 p.m. in Millikan High School Auditorium.

Under direction of Gerhard Samuel, Horacio Gutierrez, young Los Angeles pianist, will play Brahms' "Piano Concerto in D Minor." The program also includes Haydn's "Symphony No. 103" and a new work by Japanese composer, Toru Takemitsu, "Green."

GUTIERREZ was the top American prize-winner in Moscow's 1970 International Tchaikovsky Competition. He made such a strong impression on judges that he was the only contestant asked to give recitals in Moscow and Leningrad. So successful were they, that he was invited to return to Russia in February, 1971, for an extended tour.

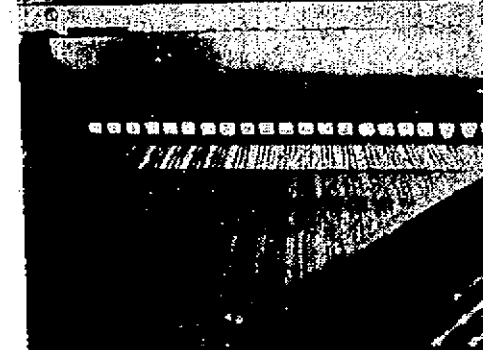

Born in Havana, the pianist began piano study when he was 3, and eight years later debuted with the Havana Symphony. In 1962, he and his family moved to Los Angeles.

THIS YEAR he will play recitals in New York and Philadelphia and will appear as soloist with the Boston Symphony, the Cleveland Orchestra and the San Francisco Symphony.

Concert tickets are on sale at Humphreys Music Store, 135 E. Third St.

Witty one forges ahead with personal inscriptions

By ERMA BOMBECK

Knowing I love fiction, my husband gave me a cookbook for Christmas. On the dedication page he wrote, "To Erma: Who invented the aggressive left-over, Julia Childs."

"I thought we weren't going to play around like that anymore," I said to my husband.

"Play around what?"

"Play around writing smart remarks and then forging the author's name."

Couple tells summer date

Mrs. Thomas K. Warren of Long Beach announces engagement of her daughter, Helen Marie, to John Aulton Garrett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Garrett, also of Long Beach.

The bride-elect also is the daughter of the late Mr. Warren.

A summer wedding is planned.

"What are you talking about?"

"You know what I am talking about," I snarled. "Remember just before we moved when I went through all of our books and decided to give away eight cartons to a college alumnae book sale?"

"Oh that."

"YEAH, OH THAT!" I opened up the paper a few days later to a headline that read, "Serendipity at Book Sale." And there right below it was a flyleaf from a book by Harry S. Truman and a message that read, "Erma, can I borrow a cup of four-letter words from you?" Signed Harry.

"What did they get for that signature?"

"Fifteen dollars," I said, "and there was one signed by Will Cuppy and Edward R. Murrow and a copy of 'Gone With the Wind' signed by Margaret Mitchell. That was a gas."

"What did she write?"

"YOU wrote, 'I couldn't have done this without your personal notes on the siege of Atlanta. Love Margaret.' You're pretty cute, you are. I want to tell you I felt like a fool calling up those ladies and telling them you were just kidding around."

"DID I EVER tell you those signatures were phony?"

"Look, what kind of a tummy do you take me for? Do you really think I am naive enough to believe Robert Browning would write 'Meet me at the car wash. Don't tell Elizabeth what's-her-name?' Well, do you? And don't get that stupid grin on your face like when you gave me Mrs. Masters' and Johnson's book inscribed, 'Thank you for your interview, but we do not write humor.' Now admit it. You did forge all of those authors' names, didn't you?"

"You're doing all the talking," he shrugged, "I don't know what you are talking about."

"You're lying," I shouted. "Why don't you be honest? Say something! You think I don't know when you're putting me on after 22 years? Now, tell me why Julia Childs wrote that rotten thing in my cookbook!"

Bad taste is sold tastefully in Paris

By ALISON LERRICK

PARIS — Jackie Onassis look home a marble dog. Doris Duke snatched up a few Indonesian columns. And the last thing Chanel bought was a dressing table studded with horses' heads as a present for ballet dancer Jacques Chazot.

They all found "it" at Comoglio, and the Rue Jacob, the place where the rich buy their "second-hand furniture."

In the window sits the desk chair of Queen Marie Amelie of France. Inside is anything from Victor Hugo's living room and Marcellin Berthelot's painted panels to the bust of Sarah Bernhardt and the monogrammed commode where Queen Amelie of Portugal once kept her lingerie.

"Chanel used to stop by every Saturday afternoon," says Jacques Lejeune, who began his apprenticeship with Comoglio at age 21 and inherited the shop from him. "She often came with a friend and one day asked her, 'Do you know why you need chairs?' The friend shook her head. 'But to sit on,' said Coco triumphantly. What a woman!"

THE DUCHESS of Windsor only came once — and stayed five minutes. "She was so terrified she fled before I could say hello," sighs Lejeune. Terrified by what? "By the bad taste, probably."

But since 1937, when Comoglio first opened Comoglio, most people have found something in bad taste to suit their own.

"Bad taste is everything. Good taste is bad taste," he says paradoxically. The king of Morocco's heart went out to a pair of bronze Negroes, while Bunny Mellon couldn't resist Napoleon III painted furniture for her Austrian pied-a-terre.

Salvador Dali found some garden furniture "surrealistic" enough for him, but Jane Fonda settled on more comfortable chairs for her country house with Roger Vadim.

In the 18th century, the building was the British Embassy, in the 19th a restaurant. And now, the dark downstairs is a mess, heaped with a helpless clutter of cherub candlesticks, stork chandeliers, silver tulip lamps on eight-foot marble stems, rhino-horn coat racks and greyhound tables, plus a gilded console with piano inside and countless pieces whose genealogy could cover a large leaf of parchment.

UNLIKE STUFFY antique shops — which isolate each treasure under a flattering spotlight — Lejeune treats his without the courtesy due their age and price tag. "We don't have time to arrange them neatly because they are always coming and going. I also don't know how to direct the personnel," he adds, referring to his one Spanish helper.

Rather than wait for a buyer who doesn't boggle at the price — as much as $4,000 for two art nouveau gates in steel fluted with a languid nude and whip entwined in the foliage — he prefers to rent things several times and let the renters wreck them.

"People think it's your moral duty to sell," says Lejeune, who doesn't care what people think. So he rents with a clear conscience, sometimes for galas, but mostly for television, movies and theater.

His two green-bronze figures wearing flowering urns instead of hats came to Comoglio from a Chinese winter garden and left twice to make an appearance in the movies "Borsalino" and "La Cerveau." He also supplied the arms — the kind that have hands attached — to stick out of the eerie hallways of Jean Cocteau's "Beauty and the Beast."

JEAN ANOUILH often calls on Comoglio for the decor of his plays, and for the film Orson Welles started shooting last November in a chateau in Alsace, he "rented the whole store."

But Andy Warhol, whose underground films have surfaced recently, didn't bother with furniture. For his latest one, he simply moved into the garden in back of the shop and in front of Lejeune's tiny house. "I don't like to say what they filmed," he whispers. "But fortunately, the weather was warm."

With ivy and the cobblestones and a cow's head amid the ivy, the garden is straight from a haunted castle. Stone Greek gods elbow smirking sphinxes and griffons beside benches all in iron ferns or rusty horseshoes, not to mention a few stray fireplaces and a stack of ascetic beds from a provincial seminary lying on top of a footed bathtub. In one corner stands a lone donkey discarded from a merry-go-round "because people want to ride on cars and planes these days."

SHARING THE SAME fate are sea lions and giraffes, plus an elephant and a herd of pigs on whom Charles Aznavour took pity and shipped to his swimming pool. "I've lost my rhino," says Lejeune, peering around in puzzlement. "Yet, he's so big you would need a truck to steal him."

His current project is prying painted tiles — reconstructing the ancient frieze of the archers of Susa — off cement blocks, in which they were "drowned" after the Expo 1960. Of the same vintage and from the same factory is Lejeune's flower desk chair. The artist started by molding it in pottery and finished, disgruntled, by carving it in wood petals.

"It's getting harder and harder to surprise people these days. The peculiar has become the rage," he explains. The Metropolitan Museum, however, didn't want any surprises in the entire room of Adam furniture it found at Comoglio and installed in New York.

ANOTHER ROOM was a definite museum piece, but only for a museum rated X. Part of the Parisian hideaway of English King Edward VII, it was octagonal, with mirrors everywhere but on the floor.

The only furniture: a "relaxation" chair built for two or more. A Hong Kong bordello battled to buy it but lost out to "one of the greatest names in France." Unhappily, the glass bedroom walls, covered with Indian maidens cavorting in filmy garments, broke by accident.

But his bronze bathtub, woman-shaped and king-sized, survived to be the property of "an extremely intelligent man" who runs a boutique in Montmartre.

One day, while it languished in Comoglio's window for a permanent home, "two old ladies saw it," says Lejeune. "One said, 'ah, do you remember?' And the other remembered only too well the time when as young girls they had taken champagne baths in that very tub.

Patience, civility will get results

By DR. HAIM GINOTT

HARRY, AGE 13, was teasing his older sister. She responded by calling him immature. He retorted with a common four-letter word. Mother jumped in with a non-stop tirade:

"How dare you use such vile language in front of ladies. You are vulgar and nauseating. You are not fit to live in a house. You belong in a pigsty. That's where you belong. Or in the gutter. Get out of this room immediately. You disgust me!"

Harry left the room, enraged and shocked. The atmosphere remained tense and bitter.

This episode deserved a different ending. Mother's intervention was far from helpful. In fact, her remedy was worse than the disease. Her outburst only served to drive her son to find more vile words.

A stern look and a brief statement of disapproval would have had a better educational effect. The following is an example.

The children were playing a game that required concentration and coordination. When Robert, age 9, made a mistake, he began whining, cussing, and using four-letter words.

Mother said: "I know this game can be frustrating. It tries a person's patience. But there will be no profanity in this house. Anyone using it will give up the privilege of playing this complex game."

The admonition was heeded.

Mother managed to influence her son without insult or attack. She insisted on civility from him without losing her own. She expressed her expectations with clarity and dignity, thus inviting compliance.

BOTH DAUGHTERS, 8 and 12, were leaving their books, games, and clothes in the den and kitchen. Mother found herself nagging and annoyed.

One evening, she said: "Girls, I have a problem with that I need your help with." They listened attentively. "Lately I find your belongings in the kitchen and den. I'd like some suggestions for helping you remember to put your things away."

The girls came up with several ideas. They agreed that items left around the house would be put in a box, to be redeemed by a fine with the money going to charity. The fee set was one penny per item.

This system has now been in operation for about six weeks — and the charity has reaped only 6 cents.

The helpful element in Mother's approach was her willingness to state her problem without moralizing, and to solicit help without accusing guilt. When approached with respect, children often come up with acceptable solutions.

A LOVELIER YOU

Combine diet, spot exercises

By MARY SUE MILLER

Dieting wisely and faithfully takes off weight — almost any amount you desire. But, in the process, nothing is said about "where." A woman's weight might become ideal and yet her figure could still be plagued by heavy spots.

To make certain of good proportions you have to exercise while dieting. That's what pares the bulges for sure. For busy women, the most practical kind of workout is spot exercise. Let's get to work on a most crucial spot, the waistline:

1. Stand erect with weight on left foot. Slide right foot directly right, about 24". Reach behind head with left arm and touch fingers to right ear. Now bend to right and slide right hand down outer side of right leg, as far as possible. Straighten up, slowly and repeat 10 times, working for increased reach. Reverse position and bend left.
2. Lie back down on floor with legs out straight and arms straight overhead; press spine to floor. Now stretch — legs down, arms up; hold maximum stretch for 5 counts. Relax and repeat, trying harder each time.
3. Back to floor, clasp hands atop head. Press spine to floor and contract waist muscles with an accordion-like action. Hold, let go, hold. Twenty repeats. Stay with the routine. It works.

Midriff slimmers

To solve the riddle of extra inches around your middle, send today for my leaflet, MIDRIFF SLIMMERS. It contains quick, easy reducing exercises for slimming diaphragm, waist and abdomen. Desegregation — the battle goes on and on

THE FAMILIAR YELLOW SCHOOL BUS HAS BECOME THE FOCAL POINT IN DESEGREGATION ISSUES

By JACK ROSENTHAL
© 1972 New York Times News Service

WASHINGTON — Suddenly, the White House, the Congress and the Supreme Court are speeding toward an imminent series of critical decisions over the tangled issues of education, desegregation and busing.

Together, their outcomes are likely to make this volatile election year as decisive for national desegregation as 1954 was for segregated schools in the South. That was the year the Supreme Court struck down separate but equal schools, separate but equal schools. Last Monday, the court agreed to review for the first time the constitutionality of Northern-style segregation.

Within two weeks, the Senate is likely to vote on antibusing measures that could cripple or kill federal administrative enforcement of school desegregation.

And, in short order, House hearings will begin on an even more drastic proposal — a constitutional amendment that could kill off all desegregation enforcement, even by the courts.

The results of these decisions cannot be predicted. They may collide and force momentous confrontations between the branches of government. They may, taken together, arrest 18 years of national movement toward desegregation.

But while the answers are unknown, it now has, at least, become possible to sort out the major questions from among a tangle that has bewildered, even angered the public. They include the following:

POLITICAL — How strong is public opposition to busing? To desegregation? Is the apparent mood in Congress explained by election-year jitters?

LEGAL — Is de facto segregation unconstitutional? If so, how boldly must Northern school districts act to correct it? Is metropolitan area-wide desegregation demanded?

FINANCIAL — Especially if desegregation of children is slowed, what can be done at least to speed the desegregation of dollars? Is the nation willing to accept equalization of school finance?

EDUCATIONAL — Even if financial reforms come about, won't they constitute a "liberal cop-out"? Is it true that extra spending does not increase the achievement of disadvantaged children?

Against such complications, the Supreme Court's 1954 goal of eliminating separate but equal schools seems almost quaintly simple.

Despite violence, terror and massive resistance, that goal has now been largely achieved. A combination of court decisions and federal administrative efforts by the Johnson and Nixon administrations has now virtually eliminated the South's dual school system.

But in the intervening 18 years, the fabric of society has been radically altered by two historic migrations. — of Southern Blacks to Northern cities and of Southern and Northern whites to the suburbs of all cities.

In 1950, the South contained almost three-fourths of the nation's black population. Now it has about half. Meanwhile, the Black population of the Northeast and Midwest jumped from 4.2 million to 6.5 million.

IN CITY after city, the change is still more dramatic. In the same period, New York's population went from 10 to 21 per cent Black, Chicago's from 14 to 33 per cent Black, Washington's from 35 to 71 per cent Black.

Suburbanization has increased even more sharply. In the 1960's alone, the 25 largest cities gained 710,000 people. Their suburbs gained more than eight million.

This tidal movement began long before the desegregation decision. But changing schools and rising city crime rates surely have contributed to its size.

And as the white tide moved to the suburbs and Black migrants poured into the old Northern cities, geography became a progressively wider gulf.

THE SAME pattern unfolded later in Southern cities that had traditionally had historic social segregation but not such sharp physical separation. In Atlanta, for example, the Black population of outlying areas has steadily decreased. The city, meanwhile, went from a third to a half Black in 20 years.

Many persons have supported desegregation on moral grounds alone. It is essential, in this view, for fairness and to correct a massive racial insult inflicted on Blacks throughout American history.

To others, the two great migrations make desegregation compelling on practical grounds as well. Like the author of the 1968 report of the National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders, they dread the prospect of racially separate societies, of the land of the free becoming a South Africa, a Northern Ireland.

Increasingly, however, there is doubt, criticism, even vocal and violent opposition to the widespread advent of desegregation in the North.

Even some parents who profess agreement with the moral reasons for desegregation are now opposed to it for their own children. Some acquiesce in the busing of disadvantaged children. But many resist, even bitterly, the busing of their own children to inner-city schools.

They express a series of overlapping fears — of poorer education, of exposure to the language and behavior of slum streets, of lunch-money robberies or worse.

The legal issues

For a decade, court challenges were limited to the south, where separate Black and white schools were required by state law — de jure segregation.

The North had been thought immune from such challenges because its segregation was de facto — evolving from residential patterns.

But, starting in the late 1960s, courts began to rule that Northern states had acted to compel segregation also, less directly but just as certainly.

The educational issues

The arguments for school finance reforms is already heard on Capitol

Hill, stirring scorn from educational experts, one of whom calls it "the new Liberal cop-out."

Most of the available evidence, they say, shows that increased spending does little or nothing to improve the performance of disadvantaged children.

Equality of spending is worthwhile on fairness grounds, but not on educational grounds, in this view. Even massive efforts at over-spending, such as New York City's More Effective Schools experiment, have produced disappointing results.

What does improve achievement, major studies suggest, is mixing poorer children with more affluent children, which often is tantamount to saying "desegregation."

But even the achievement benefits of desegregation appear to be limited. And there are new signs that some types of compensatory education do produce achievement gains.

These types abandon what one authority calls "the orthodox warm, bosomy approach in the primary grades" and provide more discipline, more structured curriculum and greater emphasis on language development.

The critical feature here is innovation, not money. But innovations cannot be undertaken without money.

And thus it may be that, in the end, money can buy at least some of the educational benefits now sought with increasing difficulty by the desegregation of schools.

TO ALL PARENTS:

UNDERACHIEVEMENT in a normal learner is unnecessary. If it is allowed to continue it will do lasting damage to the child for he will become to believe that he really is incapable of learning and will consequently give up and make no further effort to accomplish those things that he so desperately desires.

SMALL CLASSES, fully experienced teachers and the intimate situation that exists in our private school with limited enrollment will solve this problem. Since 1951, THE COUNTRY DAY SCHOOL has been known for outstanding success teaching boys and girls from Kindergarten through the sixth grade. For further information, call:

Air lounges are not new

By DIANNE SMITH
Staff Writer

With all the jockeying among airlines to register firsts in lounges aboard the new jumbo jets, novices to flying might think the idea is new.

It's not. The innovation comes in putting lounges in the coach sections.

Watching the clouds go by while sipping a favorite beverage is but one of the many benefits of flying United's 747 Friendship to Hawaii.

Room to roam and stretch the legs is another benefit, even for coach passengers.

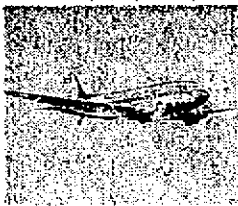

If you don't get a window seat for take off or landing, you can still find one in the front section lounge. Here, you can tray of potato and coconut chips is decorated with miniature orchids.

Many passengers escape to the lounge during the movie when the lights are dim in the cabin.

The front lounge is one of two in the coach section and replaces part of the original first class seating area on the aircraft. This reduces first class seating from 64 to 30, but gives coach passengers more luxury.

Newcomers to flying can take heart in all the added space and leg room — it wasn't always that way. Early day coach passengers sat in small seats closely situated to the one in front with narrow aisles. The more elite and affluent passengers had the benefits of lounges as early as 35 years ago when United first introduced the "lounge flight" Jan. 19, 1937. The DC-3 Skylounge Mainliner carried a full load of 14 passengers on a one-stop flight from Chicago to New York.

REMEMBER these planes? DC-3 was workhorse of flying fleet.

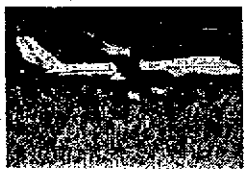

Spend the flight in contemplation, or if you feel talkative, join in conversation with other lounge sitters. Perhaps, you'd like to play some cards — the stewardess can provide a deck.

DRINK SERVICE in coach — your favorite brand or a split of champagne — is $1 each, and there are munchables on the stand-up bar. In typical Hawaiian fashion, the note of luxury to flying in the late 1930s when it pioneered overnight sleeper service on coast-to-coast flights. Passengers could leave New York in mid-afternoon, pull down a Pullman-like berth for sleeping a few hours after leaving Chicago and awaken in time for breakfast before landing in California. Total flight time was 15½ hours — a "fast" trip then.

Today's jets travel a greater distance from Los Angeles to Honolulu in five short hours.

ONCE IN Honolulu, the sights are numerous and varied. One of the newest, which offers a good wrap-up of Hawaiian history, is a must for the first-time island visitor.

Located in the lobby of the new Beachcomber Hotel in downtown Waikiki, "Bing Crosby's Hawaii Experience" is a spectacular sight and sound production employing Electrovision.

There are 30 computerized movie and slide projectors which simultaneously show thousands of separate pictures and images on a giant 180-degree screen. Background chants, the roar of tidal waves or the rumble of volcanic eruptions come from all around as you sit in specially designed swivel chairs.

The rapid change of pictures holds the viewer spellbound for 35 minutes of colorful extravaganza, as the narrator traces the history of the islands from discovery to statehood and beyond.

Bike trails

The Japanese government has taken positive new actions to make life happier and less dangerous for bicycle riders faced with increased automobile traffic and its resulting congestion.

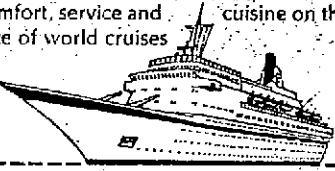

It has undertaken a program of creating many new cycling roads, cycling centers and hostels.

The Pacific Coast Bicycle Road initiated by the Japan Bicycle Road Development Association is the largest project in these plans, running 750 miles (1,200 kilometers) between Choshi and Wakayama.

Bus trip has wine

Eating your way about the sights of London is the latest fad among sore-footed travelers.

Chicken at Westminster Abbey, salad at St. Paul's and wine at the Tower of London on the top of a double-decker bus has become a popular way to spend a day.

THERE ARE now two grades of banquet bus. For $25, J. Lyons' "Upper Crust Tour" will bathe you in champagne and steak from the Culty Sark at Greenwich to the bong-bong of Big Ben.

For $7.75 the Victouriana bus will give the traveler a less sybaritic "hic" tour with four courses, plus wine, served with an interruption at Battersea Park by girls in Victorian costume.

This tour begins at the Royal Lancaster Hotel. The bus is styled with decor. based on Queen Victoria's railway carriage.

TUCSON DEBUT:

Meet the innkeepers

By STERLING BEMIS
Staff Writer

TUCSON — Television's Galloping Gourmet has a rival in Jacques Orenstein, owner of the Sign of the Gauche bar and restaurant in the new Sheraton, Pueblo Inn here.

Orenstein, who runs Jacques' Old World in St. Louis and Jacques' Sign of the Ram in Oklahoma City, appears in, light-hearted, cooking session on Oklahoma TV.

"I guess I might be called the Trotting Gourmet," Jacques says. Suggested theme song: "Fryer Jacques."

Patrons of the 140-room Inn tend to get hungry the minute they arrive in the lobby. On the west side a walk-in meat locker is filled with aging cuts of beef, tagged to show the dates when they were received.

minimum of eight people. His after-dinner special libation is a sneaky-smooth version of the Velvet Hammer — brandy, Kahlua and ice cream whipped in the blender.

As designed by Abe S. Rovak of St. Louis, the interior is a lively museum. Rovak watches for the demolition of old mansions and rescues from them stained glass and wrought iron grillwork reminiscent of the French quarter of New Orleans.

The waitresses are dressed in gaucho costumes that do nothing to hide their figures.

The lore of Arizona Indians have been combined with Mayan influences in the vivid yellows and browns of the guest rooms. The eight Kiva Suites offer families kitchenettes.

RECREATION facilities, accounting for $100,000 of the $2 million total outlay, are spacious and include a 73-foot pool, a Jacuzzi whirlpool, saunas and championship tennis courts.

Walter Miller manages the Inn and Dino Zisis, formerly of the Skyline Country Club, manages the restaurant.

The Inn is operated under Sheraton franchise by George E. Springer and Associates of Cleveland.

How to cut the cost of your European tour by as much as $300.*

You take a charter flight tour now being offered, for the first time ever, by the world's largest travel company, American Express.

What's the catch? There isn't any. American Express Company is chartering entire planes for these special tours. So your air transportation is computed at the charter rate which is lower than the non-charter rate charged by regular IATA carriers.

This means substantial savings (savings of up to $300 on the total tour price) to you.

And the nice thing is, this offer is open to anyone. You don't have to join any clubs in advance. Or prove membership in some organization. You don't have to do anything. Except show up.

Where do the tours go? Almost everywhere in Europe.

Take your choice of 18 different charter flight/escorted tour itineraries. You can go for 16 days, 23 days or 30 days. The land portion of the tours begin either in London, Athens or Malaga. We will fly you to one of these destinations depending on the tour you have chosen.

That's just one of our itineraries. There are 17 more charter tour itineraries in the free "Charters to Europe" book. American Express also has 85 regular, non-charter European tours you can choose from in the free 236-page "The Europe Book."

Decide where you want to go and how much time you have to spend. The chances are we have exactly what you want. At the price you want to pay.

When can I leave? And where from?

We have 193 different charter tour departures. They all leave from Los Angeles on Saturday and return on a Sunday. And they all fly direct to Europe from Los Angeles.

The departures begin in April, 1972 and carry through the end of September, 1972. With flights leaving every weekend, we certainly offer a tour that fits your schedule.

What are my accommodations like in Europe? Excellent.

Over the years American Express has gained the reputation of giving fine value to travelers. The reasons are easily understood.

We bring thousands and thousands of travelers to Europe. The hotels, restaurants and people who run the sites of interest are anxious to please us. The result? They give our customers the very best of attention and service.

You've been around for 122 years?

That's a long, long time and because of it, the American Express name is one of the best known in the tour business. 122 years of service testifies to the reliability and trustworthiness of the world's largest travel company.

And we stand behind our name. Take the planes we've chartered. All of them on our charter flight tours are Douglas Super DC-8's or Boeing 707's. The same jet aircraft as used by many major scheduled airlines. They are operated by World Airways, the largest supplemental carrier in the world.

That's nice, American Express; tell me more about yourself.

Glad you asked.

American Express Company, its subsidiaries and representatives have over 800 offices around the world. So,

If for any reason, you need assistance, the chances are that one of our people will be on hand. You can stop worrying about being alone if an emergency arises. This is most important for the first time European traveler.

And it can't hurt the experienced traveler either.

Another thing, the motorcoaches used in Europe are luxurious, air-conditioned machines made to our own specifications. Most are new. We doubt that anyone else can offer you more comfortable vehicles.

No. With American Express standing behind your charter flight, you need never worry about being stranded in Europe. You have complete peace of mind that no matter what happens to prevent you from returning with your tour group, American Express will get you home. The resources of the world's largest travel company guarantee this. American Express will also guarantee a 100% refund of your total tour cost if your plans change for a permitted reason and you must cancel —

CHEF OF THE WEEK

Travel inspired pancake recipe

By MILDRED K. FLANARY

To say that he "sings for his supper" might sound facetious—but, it could, nevertheless, be true! Today's Chef of the Week, Topper Smith, and major-domo of the Long Beach Symphony since last August, is a tenor soloist par excellence.

Born in Long Beach, Smith didn't have to COME far, but he HAS traveled far, having spent the last three years in Vienna, Austria, developing an artists management bureau. More than 50 American singers and conductors perform in opera houses in Germany, Switzerland and Austria under his management.

To prepare and present young artists for overseas auditions and engagements, Smith lectured each spring on 35 conservatory and university music school campuses across the nation.

In addition to his private management firm, he served as president of the Salzburg Theater and Concert Agency, International Inter-Media Associates, and Klaus Sattler Productions of Vienna, which produces music and television commercials and documentary films.

While in Long Beach, guiding the destiny of the Symphony Orchestra, Smith will retain his artist management service, delegating many of his European duties to colleagues.

Garfield Elementary, Progress School, Washington Junior and Wilson High, preceded his enrollment at Cal State, Long Beach.

With that educational tour wrapped up, Smith taught journalism, speech and debate at Millikan High School, and in Torrance and Fullerton for eight years before returning to his own alma mater in 1964, as coordinator of student affairs.

WHILE AT the college, he was adviser to the Interfraternity Council, Forty-Niner Days, Homecoming, and many campus cultural projects. He founded the outstanding "Concerts in the Grove" summer series. Smith also has managed the Compton Civic Symphony Orchestra and was program director of KUSC-FM.

Playing piano and singing has been his forte ever since he was a kid. Now, a professional singer, Smith has sung with the Roger Wagner Chorale, Los Angeles Chamber Singers, Camerata dei Musici, the Glenn Cole Chorale, and the Schola Cantorum.

As choir director, he served at the First Congregational Church of Los Angeles, Vienna Community Church in Austria, and in Long Beach, at St. John's Lutheran, Los Altos Methodist and Belmont Heights Methodist churches. He also has been tenor soloist at many Southern California churches.

Needless to say, Smith has been asked, "What's your real name? Isn't 'Topper' just a nickname?" Here's his answer: "I was an only child, born to my parents after 20 years of marriage. My dad immediately dubbed me 'Old Top'. That name and 'Baby Smith' stuck with me until the age of two, at which time I became officially, 'Topper Smith'."

SMITH'S TALENTS for music and leadership are as one, and as manager of the Long Beach Symphony, he says, "As one of my goals always has been to be able to work full time to aid in developing professional music in my home town, I am looking forward to this new position with a great deal of interest."

"During my three years of traveling around the United States and Europe, I have found that Long Beach has an outstanding music education program in the schools. There also are many adults trained and interested in the arts."

"One of our responsibilities will be to enlarge the opportunities for talented young people to develop their abilities so that this city can join the mainstream of major U. S. cultural centers in the very near future."

As for our "Chef's" culinary talents, we're told he puts together a great salad. Today, however, he's chosen pancakes, via the Austrian way.

AUSTRIAN PALATSCHINKEN (Pancakes, that is)

- 1 cup flour sifted
- 3 eggs
- 3 tablespoons butter
- 3 tablespoons sugar
- 1 cup milk
- ½ cup cream
- Pinch of salt

Add the sugar and salt to the sifted flour and beat in the eggs until a smooth batter is obtained. Add the cream and milk gradually, beating all the time. This mixture should have as thorough a beating as possible. Let stand for at least 20 minutes. The pancakes should be fried very carefully in butter. Get the frying pan very hot; melt a small piece of butter in it, and pour tablespoons of batter (more or less, according to size of pan). The batter should be spread as thinly and evenly as possible. Brown very lightly and turn.

There are various ways of serving Palatschinken. The typical method is rolling the pancake like a Crepe, after filling it with apricot, strawberry or currant marmalade. Sprinkle some confectioners' sugar on top. Another richer variety would be to fill the pancakes with lightly-sugared ground walnuts, topping with more sugar.

The weight-watcher's nightmare would be to fill the pancakes with thick chocolate sauce, topped with whipped cream (Schlagobers) and then heavily sugared. For those with more esoteric tastes, guava or quince jellies could replace the marmalade. An easy-to-make, sure-to-please, quick snack for happy entertaining.

The Aces on bridge

IRA G. CORN JR.
TEAM CAPTAIN

Dear Mr. Corn:

We have an argument in our bridge group over the scoring of no-trump contracts. Have the rules been officially changed to 30-40-30 or is it still 40-30-30?

Small Partial,
West Point

Answer: There have been many rumors through the years regarding changes in the scoring table. Your question is a result of one of the more popular ones. No-trump scoring has not been changed as long as I can remember. It's still 40-30-30.

Dear Mr. Corn:

I got a free lesson from a kibitzer on my bidding of this hand. Please tell me if I got my "money's worth?"

Answer: The free lesson was worth exactly what you paid for it—nothing. The hand is not strong enough to bid a new suit at the two level. However, neither is it strong enough for the three-diamond bid you chose. You should have bid only two diamonds. Admittedly, you might have had less. But you had no reasonable alternatives.

Dear Mr. Corn:

I have been hearing about this hand for some time. Please tell me what you would have done. Maybe I'll get some peace!

PEGGY FLEMING SKATES

To Europe with love

Ice skating champion Peggy Fleming returns to the scene of her 1968 Olympic triumph, skates atop a tall mountain in Switzerland and stars in a fantasy-on-ice sequence with her special friend Andy Williams in Peggy's "To Europe With Love" special to be colorcast at 9 p.m., Sunday, Ch. 4.

Guest-starring with Peggy and Andy are Milestones, an Austrian pop-vocal group; Willy Bietak, seven-time Austrian pair skating champion, and Paul Sibley, former star of the Vienna Ice Revue.

Williams sings "Love Story" as Peggy skates atop Switzerland's 8,000-foot Jakobshorn; presents "For All We Know" and "Never My Love" and joins Peggy on skates for a fantasy sequence at Neuschwanstein Castle; sings "I'm All Smiles" while skating with Peggy in Davos, and solos the Beatles tune "Something" during

Search for the Nile

The story of the discovery of the source of the Nile is dramatized in "The Search for the Nile," a six part series starting at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, Ch. 4.

Some of the principals in the series, in illustration (right) are Kenneth Haigh, foreground, who plays Sir Richard Burton; John Quentin, who began as Burton's friend, Speke and died his bitter enemy; Oliver Litondo, as King Mutesa of Buganda; Norman Rossington and Catherine Schell who play the wealthy sportsman Samuel Baker and his wife; and in the background, Henry Stanley, who found the missing Dr. David Livingstone.

Other segments will be aired Feb. 1, 15, 22 and 29.

a slow-motion skating scene featuring Peggy on an outdoor ice surface at nearby Clavadel.

Peggy's fourth music-on-ice special was produced entirely on location in Europe, where Peggy won three world's figure skating championships (1966, 1967 and 1968) and her Olympic Gold Medal in 1968. Principal photography took place at Davos, Switzerland, where she won her first world's championship; at Grenoble, France, where she earned her Olympic crown, and at King Ludwig II's Neuschwanstein Castle near Fussen, Germany, which served as a model for the castles at Disneyland and Disney World.

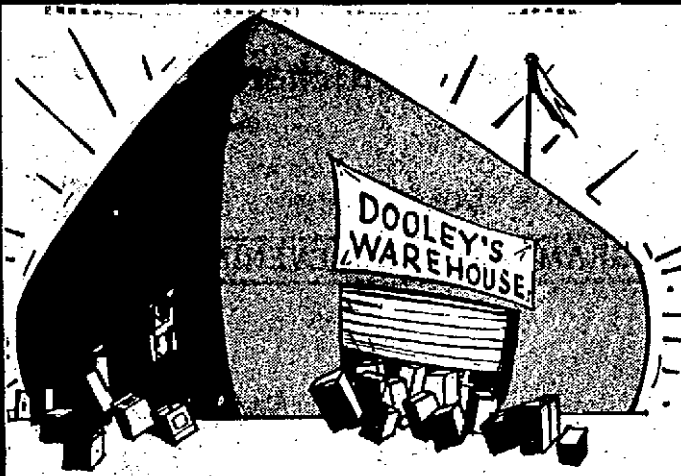

"THE MOST rewarding thing about traveling around the world is learning that people are the same the world over," reported Peggy, who is circling the globe these days on behalf of the NBC Television Network.

Soon after her special airs, Peggy will fly to Sapporo, Japan, to serve as a guest commentator during exclusive network coverage of the XI Winter Olympics Feb. 2-13.

"Wherever I go, I always feel this tremendous responsibility to be a good representative of the United States," continued Peggy, who was such a "good representative of the United States" during the 1968 Winter Olympics in France, Switzerland and Germany.

Peggy was asked if she taught Andy how to skate for the special. "Andy practiced skating in California before leaving for Europe," she answered. "But I helped him in Europe. Andy is a quick learner and the greatest sport in the world." Part of the special was filmed in Grenoble, France, where Peggy was the only American Gold Medal winner in the 1968 Winter Olympics. This was her first time back since the notable event. Miss Fleming was enthusiastically received in Europe where people treat Olympic stars the way Americans regard football heroes — especially in Switzerland. In Davos, a school holiday was declared to assist in the filming of "To Europe With Love," Peggy explained. "The mayor closed the schools in three districts to permit hundreds of children to participate in one scene to fill two acres of ice with skaters."

Also in Switzerland, Peggy became a chimney sweep for her special, joining four others in working atop a two-story house in Sertig. "Swiss chimney sweeps get around by bicycle, riding along even on snow while balancing their ladder and long broom," she marveled.

IS BETTY WHITE's show, "Pet Set," off the air? We always enjoyed her show and will miss it. How come they don't ask the public what shows they like before they take them off? So far the new shows are silly...

Betty Brown,

(The show has been off Ch. 9 for about a month. An Allen Ludden Productions spokesman says the show is off the air because it does not now have a sponsor. It is not in production but if a new sponsor is found production will resume.

ALMOST came to blows with my wife while watching the (recent) basketball classic between the Lakers and Milwaukee. She said, "What's happened to the sound?"

Of course, I, like many others, turned off the TV sound and tuned in Chick Hearn's commentary on radio KABC.

Everything was synchronized perfectly except the commercials... It was eerie listening to an Arco Supreme commercial and having a Trac-2 razor starting at us.

I AGREE 100 per cent with the letter by T. Gehrl (Pan & Fan, Jan. 9) about George Putnam.

We think he is the most conceited, and worst newscaster on the air.

When he was on Ch. 11 we turned to Ch. 5, and now that he's on Ch. 5, we turned back to Ch. 11. Anyway, we don't have to watch him — so we can be thankful for that.

Mr. and Mrs. E.B. Olson,

SOME friends and I are interested in seeing the taping of shows before they are put on television. How might we obtain tickets to shows such as Carol Burnett, Glen Campbell and various other network programs? Could you supply addresses...?

P.R.,

THE ABC-TV special on the invasion of the American individual's privacy was a waste of time. Those of us who are aware of, and concerned about, the problem — a very small minority in America — learned nothing new. The vast majority of Americans, who either agree with this invasion or who think it will never hurt them personally, did not receive enough hard and shocking facts to make them at least begin wondering about the magnitude of the problem and its potential danger.

BOB HOPE, Ch. 4, Jan. 17; FUNNY PAPERS, Ch. 2, Jan. 16; AFRICA'S MZIMBA, Ch. 4, Jan. 16; EMERGENCY, Ch. 4, Jan. 22; SIXTH SENSE, Ch. 7, Jan. 5; SANFORD & SON, Ch. 4, Jan. 14; DON RICKLES, Ch. 2, Jan. 14.

Bob Hope took over the NBC channels Monday night with the annual report on his Christmas tour entertaining American soldiers overseas. It looked like a carbon copy of Hope Christmas shows a year ago and the year before that. It will be, as usual, one of the most popular television programs of the year. It is certainly one of the most unusual. The stars are the audience.

More a report of a trip than a formal TV entertainment, much of the time the screens were filled with shots of the audience, what many tuned in to see. The cameras panned around acres of men, frequently moving in for closeups of one or more of them enjoying the show and forgetting war for a few minutes.

Hope twirled his golf club, appeared in strange costumes and made a lot of funny cracks. Jim Nabors and Charlie Pride sang. Jill St. John walked around the stage to wolf whistles. It was all very light-hearted and very familiar.

"THE FUNNY PAPERS" had Racquel Welch in a blonde wig crying "leaping lizards" and Carroll O'Connor playing Daddy Warbucks. Altogether it was a short, ill-conceived bore.

"THE MYSTERIOUS Spring: Africa's Mzimba" was shot in Kenya at a watering hole attracting everything from hippos to snakes. There were some unusual closeups of beasts and birds and the usual lecture on ecology and the chain of life.

"EMERGENCY" is a Jack Webb product about a paramedic team working through the Los Angeles Fire Department. It was, in the pilot, a long series of accident cases shown in closeup followed by treatment.

Viewers conditioned to the evening doctor shows and daytime soap opera may find it fascinating. Webb treated the pilot as a vehicle to plug paramedical teams. This was a worthy cause, no doubt, but soapboxes fit awkwardly

Richard Boone may do U.S. Marshal series

By VERNON SCOTT
United Press International

Big Richard Boone may return to the little screen next fall playing a deputy U.S. marshal in the not-so-old west.

It all depends on the success of a two-hour television movie Boone is doing titled "Heck" as in Hector Ramsey, patterned after an historical character who captured felons for a hanging judge in Oklahoma.

If Universal Studios and a network deem "Heck" a potential winner, Boone will be back in harness this spring.

His track record is good. Two of three of his past series were hits. As Dr. Conrad Styner in "Medic," and Paladin in "Have Gun, Will Travel," Boone enjoyed extraordinary success.

He blew it in his final series, "The Richard Boone Show," an anthology proving once again that home viewers prefer to see their video heroes in the same role week after week.

BOONE furrowed his jagged face in thought when it was suggested he was the first pure television dramatic star, an actor who hadn't already established himself on radio, movies or in the theater when he tackled "Medic" back in 1954.

"There was Jack Webb," he mused, "but Jack had done his show on radio. Lucille Ball was a movie star. To be honest, I'm not sure."

"I sure as hell wasn't known to the public before 'Medic,' so maybe I was the first actor to become a television star without having proved myself in one of the other mediums."

SINCE leaving the tube as a regular in 1964 Boone has appeared in a number of motion pictures and, for a third generation Californian, has shown a disaffection for the Golden State.

He moved to Hawaii seven years ago, bought a home, a huge boat and placed his son, Peter in what he considers the finest school in the world, the Punahou school in Honolulu.

As abruptly as he departed Hollywood, Boone fled Hawaii.

"I left because the place was becoming less beautiful every day, thanks to the land developers," he said sourly. "They are leveling all the natural beauty out there for all kinds of developments."

"There's a cynical attitude in the people in power and the government in Hawaii. I couldn't take it any more."

"Anyhow I'd accomplished my purpose over there. I lived in paradise for a while and my son got a great education. Now Peter is at Stanford where I was graduated."

AND NOW Papa Boone is living in his new home St. Augustine, Fla., population 9,000.

St. Augustine? "My wife, Claire, comes from there," Boone said, grinning. "It is one of the most beautiful towns I've ever seen. It's off the beaten path. No smog. Peaceful."

RICHARD BOONE

"We live less than 200 yards from a swamp sanctuary with wild life all around us. It's got a dock on the inland waterway and I'm thinking of buying another boat. I may have to postpone that if this show becomes a series."

Boone will not be able to commute from St. Augustine to Hollywood and southwestern locations for his projected hour-long series. This troubles him.

"Maybe we won't have to film it in California," he said hopefully.

NIGHT IN JAIL, Day in Court (2), 10 p.m.
— A CBS Report, filmed on the streets and in the jails and courts of Indianapolis, follows the cases of two young men, one black and one white, accused of crime — and their encounters with the American judicial system. The BIBLE Says Question: What is repentance?

Repentance is NOT something mysterious and incomprehensible, for what God requires and commands, men can understand. It is NOT something God does for men, because the Bible says God commands men to repent (Acts 17:30). Repentance is NOT synonymous with faith, for the Bible speaks of repentance as something distinct from faith (Acts 20:21). Repentance is NOT simply fear, for some have been fearful of being lost while remaining impenitent (Acts 24:25). The Bible says godly sorrow "works" repentance, so repentance is NOT sorrow, but something produced by sorrow (2 Cor. 7:10). Repentance is NOT reformation of life, but something that causes reformation (Acts 26:20).

Repentance involves a changing of the mind and will. It is the mental act of changing one's mind by resolving to turn from sin to God. Godly sorrow, fear, love, God's goodness, and a recognition of the true nature of sin, are things that produce repentance, then that repentance results in reformation of life.

The Bible says, "God . . . now commandeth all men every where to repent" (Acts 17:30). Repentance is NOT all sinners must do to be saved, but it IS a command that cannot be disregarded with impunity. Those who will not repent will be damned (2 Pet. 3:9; Rom. 2:5).

into action shows. And even action shows must be discreet in showing blood, gore and death if the viewer is expected to keep coming around. This show had casualties that started with an electrocution and ended with a tunnel cave-in. The accident scenes were painfully realistic; the characters were like cardboard figures.

"THE SIXTH SENSE" is dedicated to the theory that there is something to extrasensory perception. In the initial program, a professor of parapsychology and his friends kept glimpsing a ghostly figure. It turned out to be the mind of a prisoner of war in Vietnam who wanted to find a way to escape from his Communist captors. It was not only a bore and far-fetched, it was a little on the shoddy side.

THE KINDEST way to comment on "Sanford and Son" is to say that it is not even a pale carbon copy of "All in the Family," made by the same producers.

The story of a father-and-son partnership in a Los Angeles junk business, it lacks the comedy values and the shock values of the older program.

"THE DON RICKLES Show," while constructed of the familiar situation comedy material, indicated in its premiere program Friday that it was molded by professional hands. It had some funny lines scattered through it and generally seemed to be the best of the new crop of programs. That may be because we know the situation so well — middle-class suburban family consisting of wise wife, mature kid and idiotic father. Don Rickles' insult humor has been muted, which helps too.

INSIDE THE TUBE

Emily McLaughlin of 'General Hospital'

By BILL MAHAN

Daytime TV is seriously viewed and vicariously lived by a great many people, not all of them dreaming housewives. "General Hospital" is said to have over 12 million avid viewers and Emily McLaughlin, as Nurse Jessie Brewer, receives approximately 250 letters a month. Half the mail comes from teen-agers.

While I was talking with Emily in her dressing room at ABC a messenger brought a large wrapped box addressed to her. She opened it and was amazed to find a set of sterling for eight, plus the gravy bowl, butter dish and other serving accoutrements, as well as a beaded, silk-lined cashmere sweater. All this largesse from a retired nurse who had written several times before.

THERE IS also an Emily McLaughlin fan club that is sending a girl through nursing school at Los Angeles County General Hospital. Her name is Barbara Breithoff and she gave up a career as a model to become a nurse. Emily and several members of her fan club called the head of the nursing school and asked for a recommendation as to which girl to pick, and Barbara received the nod. ABC even had Barbara on the series once.

One afternoon a friend of Emily's called to tell her some mutual friends of theirs had a serious problem. The husband was in the intensive care unit of one of Los Angeles' major hospitals, and his wife wasn't allowed to see him.

Emily rushed to the hospital and talked to the wife in the waiting room. Then she walked over to the head nurse, who recognized her at once as Nurse Brewer. Emily was immediately allowed to enter the intensive care ward. The wife still couldn't get in.

"GENERAL HOSPITAL" is the longest running Hollywood-based continuing drama. It is aired in many parts of the world. Emily receives mail from as far away as Australia, and those letters she finds hard to answer. Australia is running shows that were shot five years ago, and it's difficult for Emily to remember what happened back that far when she's asked questions.

"As the World Turns" has always been the most popular, highly rated daytime soap opera. Nothing has been able to catch up with it. Now, however, "General Hospital" is not only catching it, but has beaten it out several times. Something no one thought would even happen.

Besides playing Nurse Brewer, Emily McLaughlin has starred in the old "Kraft Theaters", "Studio One", "Bus Stop", "Twilight Zone", "Sam Benedict" and others. She started as Nurse Brewer in 1963, when "General Hospital" made its debut, and doesn't plan to ever leave it. The only additional thing she would really like to do is get back in legitimate theater for awhile, but shooting "General Hospital" five days a week doesn't leave time. And judging from the intensely emotional response of her fans, Emily doesn't need legitimacy — she has immortality.

22 ANSWERS FOR YOUR PEACE OF MIND

Q. What is Med-Income?

A. A revolutionary insurance policy that pays $100 a week up to 100 weeks ($10,000 total) direct to you when you're hospitalized.

Q. Will I collect even though I have other health insurance?

A. Positively! Med-Income pays direct to you regardless of what other policies you have.

Q. Will I collect even though I have Medicare?

A. Absolutely! Med-Income pays in addition to Medicare and can be used for all those many items not covered by Medicare.

Q. Do I need Med-Income even though I have hospitalization?

A. Yes. Med-Income pays direct tax-free cash to you, which you can use for house payments, groceries, credit bills, salary loss, etc. And Med-Income can pay for all those hospital items not covered by a hospitalization policy.

Q. Do I need a physical examination?

A. No. No physical exam is needed to be issued a Med-Income Policy.

Q. How long will I be paid?

A. For up to 100 weeks or $10,000.

Q. Do I have to use the Med-Income money on hospital bills?

A. No. This $100 tax-free money is paid directly to you for use as you see fit. Pay rent, bills—anything. Or put in the bank!

Q. Do I have to pay taxes on the Med-Income payments to me?

A. No, your payments are absolutely tax free!

Q. What about a health problem that may occur again?

A. Even pre-existing conditions are covered by Med-Income after your policy has been continuously in force for two years.

Q. What is NOT covered?

A. Hospitalization for nearly every imaginable sickness and accident is covered except hospitalization caused by mental and nervous disorder, or when confined in a veterans, or government hospital that makes no charge for services. Certain heart diseases specified in the policy are fully covered if the loss originates after the policy has been in force for six months.

Q. When does my Med-Income Policy go in force?

A. On the date your application is approved in our office. Accidents are covered on that day. After 30 days in force, the policy covers you for sicknesses.

Q. If I'm hospitalized, when do I start receiving benefits?

A. You get $100 a week ($14.28 per day) paid directly to you from the very first day you go in the hospital from an accident. When hospitalized for sickness, you will be paid $100 a week after a three-day waiting period.

Q. Why the three-day wait?

A. To lower your policy costs. By starting benefits on the fourth day of hospitalization from sickness, Med-Income eliminates the small one, two-and-three-day claims that run up your cost. Consequently, these savings are passed on to you in the form of a lower rate for this policy. Of course, benefits are payable from the first day if hospitalized from an accident.

Q. May I have more than one Med-Income Policy?

A. Because of the exceptional nature of the policy, we are forced to limit the number each person may have to two.

Q. Does Med-Income pay in any hospital?

A. You are covered in any lawfully operated public or private hospital except nursing homes and government hospitals that make no charge.

Q. As I grow older, will my benefits be reduced?

A. No. Never! Everyone paying adult rates gets the same benefits—regardless of age.

Q. Will my claims be handled quickly?

A. Yes! When you get your policy you will receive a simple, easy-to-use Claim Notice. Your claims will be processed quickly and your checks sent directly to you.

Q. Can I save by paying in advance?

A. Yes, almost 10 per cent. If you pay 11 times your monthly premium, you will receive credit for one full year.

Q. Why are premiums so low?

A. Because we only sell through the mail. We pay no salesman's commission. It is on a volume basis, our costs are lower and so we pass the savings on to you.

Q. Why should I enroll now?

A. You risk nothing—not even a postage stamp, because there is absolutely no risk on your part and delaying could cost you $100 a week. Send your application now. If in any way you are not completely satisfied, you may return the policy within ten days. You've lost nothing. So fill out the self-addressed card now.

Q. Will a salesman call on me?

A. No, that's why we can offer such low premiums.

Q. Is Industrial Life Insurance Company licensed in my state?

A. Yes, this old line legal reserve company is licensed to do business in your state.

They March to Different Drummers
Walter Knott is 82. Peter Max is 33. And it might be difficult to imagine two more dissimilar men. But even they have some things in common: both are millionaires, both add joy to the lives of many — and the stories of both make interesting reading. Don Merry, I, P-T staff writer, presents a profile of Knott, the conservative, patriotic founder of Knott's Berry Farm. Freelancer William T. Noble writes about Max, the artist who revolutionized design and advertising.

14 It's the Nuts! ... and Bolts, and Screws, and Wire and Whathaveyou

One man's junk is another man's treasure. Leonard Melsha of South Gate proves this regularly as he turns pieces of junk into works of art with a welding torch and other tools. Donnell Culpepper, I, P-T outdoors editor, writes about the unusual artistry of Melsha, who also happens to be a fishing nut.

20 A Fortune in Cookies
Fortune cookies, a hit product in this country since 1912, have been used to debut politicians, movies, cars and even debutantes' parties, as well as to provide an after-dinner sweet — and often a laugh — to millions of diners. They also have made a fortune for some of their manufacturers. Frank Anderson, Independent city editor, dishes up necessary ingredients in the fortune cookie story and hopes you get the message.

OUR COVER

Bill Buerge, art director of Southland Sunday, did the color drawings of Walter Knott and Peter Max, contrasting personalities who have been unusually successful in their own ways.

It works like a cigarette holder works.

The tip of a Parliament works like a cigarette holder works.

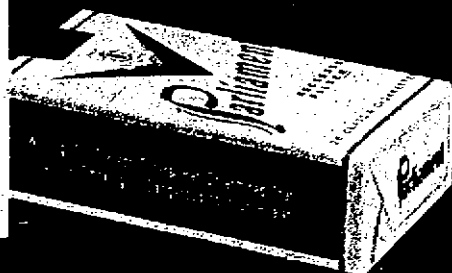

It has a sturdy outer shell that keeps the filter tucked back from your lips. Neatly recessed.

So you never taste filter. Just good clean Parliament flavor.

Man in Space

If you find a psychologist or two of your acquaintance staring at you when they think you aren't looking, one of the things they may be checking out is your concept of personal body space. I mean, I don't actually expect you'll find them staring at you. Psychologists are pretty careful about that sort of thing, especially among their personal acquaintances. It's not just the ethics of the situation. There's always the punch in the nose to consider.

And, of course, if you do catch them staring at you, they might be speculating on almost anything from signs of ambidextrous confusion to the size of your bra cup.

But, still, they just might be interested in how you place and space yourself in relation to other persons and objects. There is a theory currently intriguing a lot of scientists that every individual appropriates a certain amount of space around his body, which he carefully but unconsciously keeps between himself and other objects and persons.

When you're down standing in line at the bank or the Department of Motor Vehicles, check and see how much space each person keeps between himself and others.

Shy, introverted people tend to need more body space than outgoing, extroverted people. The amount of space a person considers proper will vary with circumstances. Two people at a party who obviously don't like each other but have to preserve the amenities by exchanging a few words, will keep a lot of space between them. On the other hand, a man at the same party lighting a cigarette for a beautiful woman will suddenly find he can get along with a lot less body space than he thought he could.

You can see why psychologists are interested in body space. It enables them to get grants from industries not otherwise noted for patronizing the sciences, such as supermarket chains who are open to suggestion as to the width of store aisles and checkout lanes. It also enables them to light cigarettes for a lot of beautiful women.

In an exhaustive seven-and-a-half minutes of library research on the subject, I failed to discover if psychologists have yet linked a person's concept of his personal body space to the way he drives his car. It is well established that the way a person handles his automobile reveals a lot about his personality. My own observations indicate drivers handle automobile space the same way they handle their body space.

The Cadillac owner, for example. When he goes to a restaurant for a luncheon meeting, he parks his car by straddling the white line between two marked spaces. Keeps the dents out, he says. In the restaurant, he insists on sitting on the outside of the booth. Let the other guys squeeze in. Nobody's going to corner him.

The Volkswagon owner pulls into the same lot, sees the Cadillac taking two spaces and is furious. He parks so close to the Cadillac that its owner won't be able to get into the driver's side when he returns. On the open road, the Volkswagon owner is a great tailgater, and at office parties he comes up and stands eyeball-to-eyeball with the boss and tells him a few things he maybe didn't know about the way the company is operated. Nobody is going to ignore him.

In Long Beach particularly there is a curious sort of driver addicted to what I believe is called the "haywagon turn." He cannot turn either left or right without first cutting his wheels sharply in the opposite direction, going out of his lane and then cutting back sharply in the direction he wishes to turn.

Out of his car, the haywagon turner walks the same way he drives. He bobs from side to side in an Iowa lope. When you come up behind him and tap him on the shoulder, he whirls in the opposite direction and is dumbfounded when he finds no one there. The haywagon turner may have been born in the city, but he is still a country boy at heart.

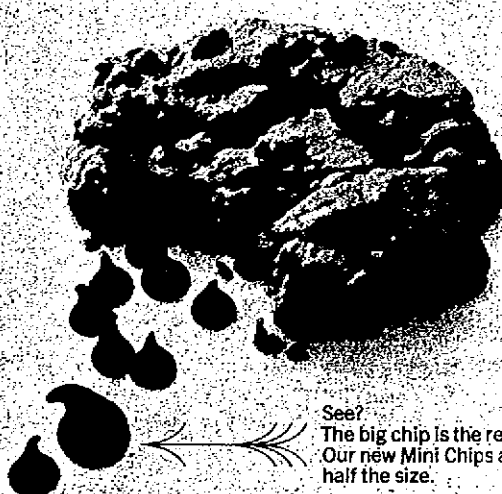

Then there is the woman driver who goes shopping with the woman next door. She gets on the freeway, takes the inside, fast lane, settles down to a speed of 45 miles per hour and proceeds to gossip with her passenger. She can concentrate on her conversation without having to worry about driving. The lane ahead of her is clear for at least three miles. She is oblivious to the line of cars behind her and to the irate drivers swinging out and passing her on the right.

This is the same woman, who at an overcrowded cocktail party blocks the doorway to the bar, or perhaps the bar itself, chatting with her companion and oblivious to the thirsty guests lined up waiting for her to move. Even saying "excuse me" and squeezing past her won't move her or cause her to drop a syllable of her conversation. The only remedy is to spill a drink on her.

Of course, the worst drivers of all are columnists. They drive as if all the space in front of them were their own personal responsibility and they have to fill it by deadline. □

Q: Is Audrey Hepburn going to make another movie? I saw a photo of her looking like a scarecrow. Is she sick or something to be that skinny? — Constance C., Edmonton, Alberta.

A: No. Miss Hepburn has always been thin. "At age 16, I was just a stick!" she once admitted. In '45 when the British liberated Holland from the Nazis the teen-ager suffered from malnutrition and weighed only 90 pounds. Married for almost three years to Dr. Andrea Dotti, nine years her junior, the actress (who won an Oscar in 1953 for "Roman Holiday") has achieved her ambition — to be a housewife. She's happy raising two boys in their Rome home. One is 10-year-old Sean (his father was actor Mel Ferrer); the other is Luca, not quite two years old. The only way she'd think of making another movie, she said recently, was "if I could come home for lunch every day."

Q: From fan magazine snapshots I've seen, it's difficult to tell Johnny Carson's first wife from his second — and now from what may be his third. Is it a psychological quirk of some kind? — Gracie Rameraz, Los Angeles.

A: I'm afraid Johnny'd have to lie on a psychiatrist's couch to answer that one. Also — coincidentally, their first names, like his own, all start with a J. First there was Jody, then Joanne and now — another Joanne (Holland). Maybe Johnny just doesn't like to change the monograms on the family linen.

Q: I saw heavyweight champion Joe Frazier in his nightclub act and wondered — are those diamond rings he wears real or phony? — Danny S., Reno, Nev.

A: Real, all $22,000 worth of them. What is phony, in Frazier's opinion, is Muhammed Ali. "Ali," he said flatly to confrere Jimmy Cannon, "is a phony man. I'm black, too. I know what a brother is. I have to laugh about him and the ghetto. He goes there just to say bello. I was raised there."

Q: With his longer hair and mod clothes, has the conservative Pat Boone gone all the way over to rock music, too? — Cathy Harkness, Pittsburgh.

A: No. About R & R, Boone stands pat on his feelings: "It bothers me that kids — including my own — are addicted to the radio. It wakes them up in the morning. It puts them to sleep at night. They've got earphones stuck in their ears all day long. What they're hearing is a steady diet of pop music, some of which openly promotes drugs, rebellion and sexual promiscuity. These can't help but have a harmful effect on young people." Boone's been a star for so long, you sometimes forget he's only 37. And with four teen-age daughters getting into the act, he doesn't mind their calling him "the old man" as long as they say it lovingly.

Q: Who was it who said, when asked whether he read a certain best-seller — "I read part of it all the way through"? — Mrs. Selma Johnson, Seattle.

A: That was a classic Sam Goldwynism.

Q: How do you feel about the ex-steward on the Onassis yacht blabbing the most intimate things about Jackie and Ari in the new book, "The Fabulous Onassis"? Is that cricket? — Heather S., Oakland.

A: The name of the game isn't cricket. It's bingo for big stakes. While I don't go along with that kind of disloyalty and duplicity, the flamboyant way in which the couple lives invites being victimized by fortune hunters. Such embarrassing incidents never happened with their friends, the Raniers. Because movie actress Kelly has the Grace to conduct herself with dignity and restraint.

Walter Knott is 82 now. It is a figure which does not lie but Walter Knott walks with the short, purposeful, upright gait of someone who is, say, 72 ... his shrewd, perceiving, analytical mind gauges the world of business with the capacity of someone who might admit to 62 ... and he thirsts and hungers for new avenues into which he can channel his ambitions with the zest of someone 22.

And he would not admit to any of the above except, doubtlessly, his age.

As the owner, founder and paternal protector of Knott's Berry Farm, Walter Knott has been besieged by change since he first opened a tiny, roadside berry stand in 1920. Knott's has grown from a nickel-a-basket or 3-for-a-dime operation into a $26 million enterprise spread over 150 acres in Buena Park.

Knott, the entrepreneur, has kept smartly in step with the times. So much so, in fact, that the words "berry farm" are misnomers today. No berries have actually been grown on Knott's acreage in seven years. But Knott, the man, has steadfastly resisted change from within.

He remains the same modest, self-effacing gentleman he was 52 years ago when he planted his first crop beneath 20 rented acres. His humility still borders on the ludicrous, his fierce patriotism is perhaps exceeded only by his charitable contributions and he still opts for any challenge which can be overcome with simple hard work.

At 82, Knott has reached an age where most of his contemporaries have long since cleansed their hands of day-to-day business pressures and have meandered into retirement to reminisce about the past. Knott lives for today and plans for tomorrow.

He would also have you believe the encroachments of age have reduced him to merely a figurehead but others say it isn't so. "Mr. Knott," confides one employee in a tone approaching reverence, "is still the boss."

It was 10 a.m. on a clear, crisp day, just about the time Knott's begins to stir in anticipation of the hours ahead. Walter Knott had been sitting behind the desk in his conventional office for more than an hour and now he was answering questions about himself while a photographer prowled about the room waiting, searching for candid expressions.

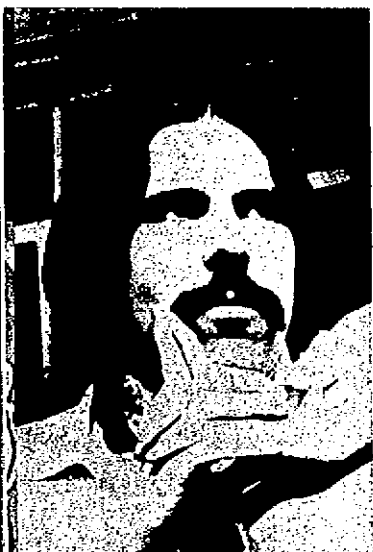

Knott's hands were folded tightly on the desk top and his gaze often drifted deliberately and suspiciously on the camera, exposing a slight uneasiness. He does not yearn for the limelight and would much prefer to be the artist rather than the subject.

He talked of his age and his present involvement, accentuating the former.

"At 82," he smiled, "you have reached the age where a birthday is no cause for celebration. You don't handle many of the details, either. I've left most of that for the next two generations. We even have grandsons running departments and we've given them a relatively free hand. We've found out that's the best way for them to learn."

The fact remains Walter Knott arrives at his office, situated a convenient 20 paces from the

Y MARCH TO DIFFERENT DRUMMERS

By WILLIAM T. NOBLE

There's something about his eyes. Almost like strange obsidian diamonds that cut quickly past the hellos and bore into your soul to try and seek out the real you, not the persona. He could probably hypnotize you if you'd let him stare at you long enough, and carry you away into his polychrome cosmos of winged messengers streaking across a star-filled sky.

He is Peter Max, 33, the artist, designer, sculptor, who singlehandedly revolutionized design and advertising not only in the U.S. but other parts of the world.

Peter Max people wear funky clothes and float through purple clouds past planets and a setting sun. They are always smiling and carrying huge bouquets. Not people of this world. They are the residents of his special world. But young America loves them, and the euphoria they generate.

His serigraphs, acrylics and sculptured pieces, priced at $125 up to $5,000, sell by the thousands.

"He is America's bestselling artist," says Mrs. Barbara Schuster, who with her husband Eugene owns the London Arts-Detroit Inc., and handles the world-wide sale and distribution of Max's graphics and acrylics. "Sales are in the hundreds of thousands of dollars," she says.

Yet the fine arts facet of the Max career is small compared to other enterprises.

For example: He designs shoes that have smiles on their soles ("to spark a smile in the wearer's soul," says Max); women's hosiery so colorful it almost diverts a man's eyes away from the mini-skirted thigh; belts, scarves, shirts, ties, towels, umbrellas, tea trays. You name it and Max's cosmic trademark will be on it somewhere. He also designed the 1970 New York Yellow Pages book and painted a big smile on the front of a city bus.

So Max, the Libra, is filling his zodiac scales with gold mined from his version of the sky. His art nouveau approach made him a multi-millionaire. But probably one of the most unique millionaires in the U.S.

His offices and workshop on East 75th are like the cave of a well-heeled Indian guru.

Sitar music and mantras (ritualistic prayers) float softly through the building. And silently from another room glides a beautiful barefoot sari-dressed girl with a large red dot on her forehead.

"Who was that?" you ask B.J. (Max's secretary who wants to be known only as B.J.). "and what does that red dot on her forehead mean?"

"Oh, that's the wife of Bhagavan Das," says B.J., "he's the one playing music and chanting. The red dot is her third eye of consciousness."

On the walls are samples of Max's posters, and triumphs, a merger of American commercialism and Indian mysticism.

Max, dressed in scruffy clothes and wearing a khaki knapsack, strides out of the elevator. He was a few minutes late and he apologized.

"But it's lunchtime and you must be hungry. Let's go to a little spot around the corner. We can talk there."

It is in the friendly closeness of the narrow living room of his home, at 9 each morning and will busy himself until 4 or 5 in the evening. Then, as has been his life-long custom, he will return to his private sanctuary for a couple of hours each evening. He has long championed the rewards of hard, honest toil but dismisses inquiries into his work habits with a subtle shrug of the shoulders and a characteristic "it isn't really much" attitude.

"Twenty years ago, it used to be 8 in the morning until whenever you got through at night," he said. "Now it's rare if I'm here that early. After a while you get to the point where you really don't accomplish very much. I spend most of the day answering mail and visiting with people who come through the door. I was asked if I had slowed down a half-step. I'd say I've slowed quite a few steps since I passed 75."

Knott continues to write "about 10 letters" a day between appointments, unannounced visitors and conducting farm business. Although he has detached himself from routine administrative work, he maintains a close watch on the books and can quote facts and figures about the previous day's or year's activities when he wants to.

Approaching a man who would prefer to be unobtrusive, businessmen and total strangers are amazed at the ease and convenience with which they are given access to Knott.

"I like to meet people," he confessed, "and I try to learn something from everyone I talk to. You know, quite a few drop in unannounced — like friends, customers and visitors to the farm — who just want to meet the fellow they suspect is the boss. It could be a desert rat or a college president, and I find each as interesting as the other."

And he will more readily discuss his shortcomings than he will his successes. Those early evening hours of quietude in his office are spent reading. ("I like history, autobiographies and historical novels.") Sitting rigidly in his chair — Knott's attention to posture would make a man half his age envious — he leaned forward and fondled a magnifying glass.

"I use this now," he said emphatically, "because my eyes cause me a little trouble. I'm a miserable reader . . . dreadfully slow . . . I've been slow all my life and now I'm even slower. The first thing you should do for your child is encourage it to become a good reader."

It is a more difficult proposition to have him expound upon his achievements because Walter Knott is not given to boastful proclamations. His is an American rags-to-riches saga in the purest form but he regards it in an "oh, gosh, anyone could have done it" manner.

But it is highly unlikely that "just anyone" could have survived three and a half desolate, disappointing years on the Mojave Desert trying to cultivate a grape crop or staved off economic ruin during those first lean years in Orange County when depression struck.

Walter Knott and his wife of 62 years, Cordelia, are millionaires. It is not a yardstick by which he measures the stature of a man. He is almost apologetic about his personal gain — but not quite because of his heavy investment of labor and an insatiable desire to attain a difficult goal.

"You reach one goal," he said, "and you set another one for yourself . . . a little bit bigger . . . a little bit higher."

In 1971, more than five million people booth that you hear the intimate secrets of Peter Max's life, his present life, and the past one. It was more than 450 years ago, he says, that Max was an Indian swami, living in a cave with his wife and helping his followers solve the mysteries of life.

He is medium height. His black hair is shoulder length and his moustache droops in scraggly strands below his lower lip. His voice is soft like the gentle mooring of a sacred Indian animal. And his teeth are China-white and very large.

His fantastic success, he says, came shortly after his discovery of Yoga.

"I found peace and with this peace I discovered myself and what I must do to bring peace to the world. I want to make millions of dollars with my enterprises and set up youth cultural centers and schools to teach the science of Yoga. The United States is ready for what I believe will be one of the most fantastic movements in history. This country will be Mecca. There will be peace and we will lead the way."

This frantic search for himself and peace of mind started in 1965 and dashed him from the pinnacle of artistic and financial success to near poverty.

In 1962 with partner Tom Daly, Max opened a graphics art studio and in association with Madison Avenue ad agencies they created art designs for books, record covers and ads. Within two years the Daly-Max zoomed to the top of the New York advertising world, winning in that time more than 60 awards for typography.

"It seemed as though everytime we produced a design," says Max, "we won an award. But to me it was an empty, unrewarding life. Someone would want a tire ad or a jello coupon, and they'd outline what was desired. We did it and everyone loved it except me."

So Max severed virtually all connections with the frantic New York scene and holed himself up in a Riverside Drive apartment overlooking the Hudson.

"I didn't give anyone my phone number or address and just sat in the apartment thinking new things."

He started reading I Ching, a mysterious system of divinations, and pondering the life of Chinese Buddhist monks whom he came to know so well during his childhood spent in Shanghai and Tibet.

Coupled with the arcane philosophies he was reading, was his interest in astronomy that he acquired when he moved in 1950 with his family to Israel. And out of the cauldron of his churning mind that had been purged of things he considered irrelevant, exploded rainbow colors, stars, planets and happy people winging their way through the chromatic void. No more tires, no more jello.

He defied the rules of art by combining lurid purple, pink and orange and rolled back the years by painting his figures with Teddy Roosevelt moustaches and the old look of buggies and unicycles. His women looked like the models of 1920 Vanity Fair magazines, many with iron perms or curly ringlets of hair and wearing flowing gowns spangled with stars. His posters and canvases were color bombs that burst like fireworks that boggled the eye.

"I guess I painted about 12,000 things like that," recalls Max, "and I got so low on money I visited Knott's Berry Farm and while it represented a mild decrease from the previous year, gross earnings of $26 million constituted a farm record. It was also the year the Knotts introduced their latest attractions — the 2,150-seat John Wayne Theater and the Gypsy Camp, built at a combined cost of more than $3 million.

This, of course, followed such earlier successes as the Chicken Dinner Restaurant, Ghost Town, Fiesta Village and Independence Hall, not to mention his curious and fortuitous marketing of the new, hybrid boysenberry in 1932.

Walter Knott is not overly impressed with it all. He sat back in his chair a moment and searched his mind for the proper words.

"It really isn't such an amazing story," he responded. "It has taken 52 years to do it. Some could have done it in half the time, even a quarter of the time. Disneyland did more in one year than we did in 35. I have no ideas of grandeur or importance and I can sympathize with those who are poor and hard up today or those who haven't accomplished a great deal yet."

He placed great emphasis on the word "yet." "Success," he continued, "is such a relative thing. I am very well acquainted with the owner of a filling station who certainly hasn't made a million dollars, but he is doing what he wants to do and he is very happy doing it. He is well liked in his community, has a world of friends and is a fine citizen."

"He is what I would call a success. On the other hand, I've known men who've made a million rather quickly but I wouldn't consider them to be successful because they are not happy or necessarily a credit to their community."

How does he evaluate himself?

"I like to think I have lots of friends and I think I render a service in the community. But one never should sit down and be satisfied with his lot. I'm not. My goals right now are for my family to grow in capacity and stature and for the farm to grow."

Walter Knott is not an imposing figure. He is a small man and now in the twilight of his years appears almost fragile. His voice is not powerful and resonant but rather quietly persuasive with a slight authoritative ring. His hair, and there still remains a handsome crop, is snow white. He carries himself with an unfettered dignity — a small man to be looked up to.

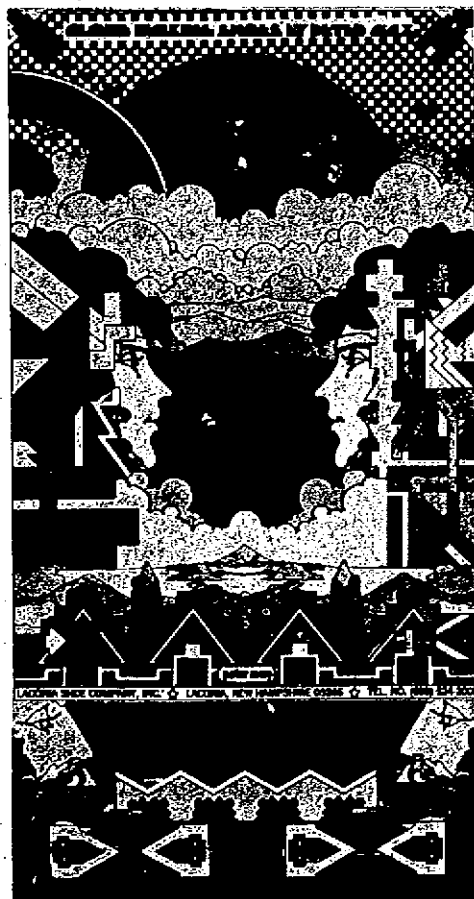

His office reveals other facets of his character. Immediately behind his desk and mounted prominently on the wall is a large wood cut of an American Eagle. Just to the right, as the visitor looks on, reposes a large pole to which is attached an American flag, still and stately. Other smaller eagles and other smaller flags are positioned delicately throughout the room — a room full of the artifacts of Knott's heritage and political convictions.

Against a side wall rests a television set. Not a 23-inch color console but rather an 8-inch portable. Its owner does not dabble in ostentation. He has not surrounded himself with the luxuries of life.

Knott's well-documented reputation is one of strident conservatism and passionate loyalty to his country.

"A fierce patriot?" he repeated a question, "I wouldn't object to that label. After what it has done for me, it would be hard not to be a fierce patriot. I'm proud of my country but I don't consider myself a flagwaver, not in the derogatory sense, anyway. But I can't see couldn't even pay the rent. So I decided I would have to sell some of them.

"I took them to people and they said: Beautiful, Max, different, but what are you going to do with them? That's too far out. Nobody will buy things like that."

"They were a year ahead of time. Suddenly everyone wanted them."

Today Max firmly believes he is the reincarnation of Toulouse-Lautrec, a fact he believes accounts for his great success as a poster maker. He believes it is the ghostly hand of the crippled genius that moves his brush today.

"Yoga has made it possible for me to dwell in my own joy," he says. "Petermaxness is really a platform to bring forth peaceful vibes, messages of wisdom and various methods of enlightenment."

He believes petermaxness, something he describes as a happening of peace and joy to which people are drawn, will proliferate and attract more young people to Yoga. Which will be all for the good of America.

"The American people are the most generous and among the wisest in the world," says Max, "and that's why this country is so blessed."

He believes that when people see his shoes that smile, and dresses with smiling happy designs, there will be more smiles and the streets will be filled with joyful people.

Petermaxness took off like a rocket proving mysticism could be marketed on a scale that even impresses Wall Street. It encouraged thousands of imitators.

They do not worry Max because he is the original. But he does hope the thousands of anything wrong with waving a flag at the proper time."

When he feels so inclined, Knott can wave considerably more than a flag. Although not a dynamic man who gesticulates freely when he speaks, there is a spark of electricity in his soul when he mentions the exact replica of Philadelphia's Independence Hall which he had built on his farm. The structure, dedicated in 1966, is Knott's tangible "thank you" to his forefathers and the free enterprise system.

It is his pride and joy — he once described it as "the most exciting thing I've ever done" — but he will not bismirch it by revealing the cold, hard monetary outlay it involved. "It was just something I felt needed doing," he said with typical off-handedness and avoided inquiries into its cost by announcing, "I don't like to think of our business strictly in terms of how much we can make. I'll just tell you that it took two years to save for and that it was not built for monetary gain."

Independence Hall is a dramatic and magnificent token of Walter Knott's appreciation but he shows his pleasure and approval by other means too. Each Christmas, for instance, he distributes 40,000 cards to people he has personally selected for membership in an organization he has entitled "Keepers of the Flame."

"It's my own private designation for people who have done something I approve of during the preceding year," Knott revealed. "There are young people seeking truth will adopt the stern life style of a true yogi as did his friend Bhagavan Das, a North American, who at 17 went to the Himalayas and remained eight years to study the mystic cultures.

"He returned with their songs and chants," says Max, who is encouraging and helping Das to record his music for all to hear.

"He has a single seed sprouting now to help and heal humanity," says Max. "And there will be more doing the same."

When he became a millionaire Max bought a Rolls Royce, decorated it with flowers and symbols and was chauffeur-driven to his workshop.

"I thought this unusual sight would start people thinking peaceful thoughts. But I had to give it up," he says.

It started them thinking. But more about the man sitting in the back seat.

"When we would stop everyone would bend down to peer through the windows to get a look at me. It got embarrassing."

Now he commutes by anonymous cabs, or lopes down the streets, his knapsack flying.

It was an act of fate that preserved Max and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Max, from possible death in Hitler's gas chambers.

Born in Berlin, Oct. 19, 1937 (Libra), Peter shortly thereafter was taken by his parents to Shanghai.

"Hitler was sending the Jews to

The first time I met Leonard Melsha, I knew he was a nut — a fishing nut. When he told me he never used anything stronger than one-pound-test nylon thread for stream and lake fishing, I knew he fitted into my own jigsaw of screwball fishermen who try everything.

So I went to visit Melsha at his home, 8416 San Carlos Ave., South Gate, where I discovered fishing is just one of his "nutty" hobbies. His entire garage and part of his house are filled with all kinds of nuts. Yes, nut nuts. Plus bolts, springs, tubes, pipes, brass cans and several dozen other hunks of junk.

They're the tools, the materials, the inspiration for his unusual, dramatic, award-winning artistic pursuits.

Never have I seen such artistry. His house is full of objects he has welded together. He never has sold anything but has given many of his creations to friends. His son, Ron, who lives in Belmont Shore, has a small collection. And the owner of Egyptian Pharmacy in Belmont Shore would like to display every thing Melsha has made.

Melsha didn't know anything about acetylene or electric welding before he retired from Pacific Telephone in 1957. He had been an installer and repairman in the central office and knew how to make those automatic machines work properly when somebody reported constant dialing failures.

However, he had been a handyman around the house all his life. His garage, for instance, has a work bench and tool cabinet that would make the average hobbyist drool with envy.

There are about 12 dozen little numbered drawers along one wall. He has compiled an indexed catalog and can find any size nail, screw, bolt, nut, washer, etc., within minutes.

He taught himself the art of acetylene and electric welding and creates almost anything that comes

IT'S THE NUTS!... and bolts, and screws, and wire, and whathaveyou

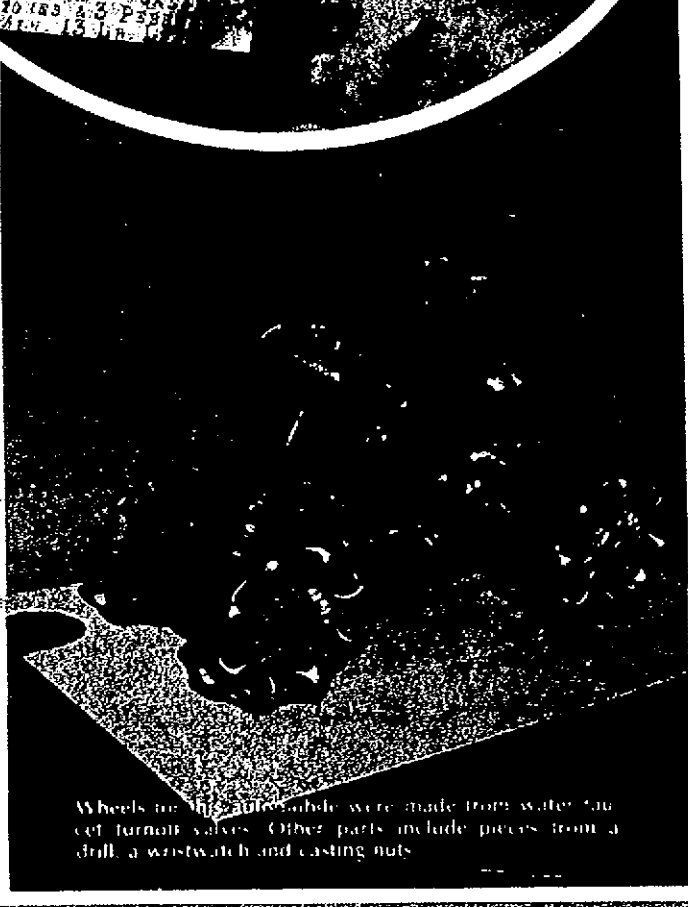

This is the motor that was made by the Wright brothers — from junk. An electric drill hinges and parts of a lawnmower machine were among things that went into construction.

A discarded staple gun from a cobbler's shop supplied most of the parts for this angler chasing a man.

Two hippies ride a chopper in this intricate bit of whimsy.

Wheels for this auto cycle were made from water faucet turnoff valves. Other parts include pieces from a drill, a wristwatch and casting nuts.

to mind. He never throws anything away. In fact, he picks up every piece of junk in sight. One of his favorite hangouts is the McDonnell Douglas salvage store in Long Beach.

Some of his art appears along with this story, but let's take a look at the way these and other Melsha objects were created:

THE ARCHER — Melsha took a long thin screw for the arrow; a discarded drawer handle pull for the bow, used an old-fashioned door-handle plate for the base, fine wire for hair, welded, then brazed the whole thing and applied a protective covering for the brass brazing. Result: A figure that appears to be made of gold.

AUTOMOBILE — Motor made with the armature of a small power drill; steering column, quarter-inch gate valve; wheels, turnoff handles for outside water faucets; wristwatch, a bearing; headlights, casting nuts.

CHOPPER — A most intricate bit of work, showing two hippies riding in it; flatiron for the base, magnum shells for the mufflers; CO-2 cartridge for the gasoline tank; magna wire for hair and tool reamers for the body.

MARLIN — Made from a jackknife, can opener, screwdriver and a bunch of nuts and bolts.

NURSE — He used a dresser drawer pull, a .22 rifle shell for the small hypo needle and an Army rifle shell for the big hypo needle, a wing nut for her cap, plus some other odds and ends.

AIRPLANE — The Wright Brothers should be alive to see this one. He used an old electric drill for the fuselage, tension adjusters from an old sewing machine for the wheels, hinges for the tail section. For the man starting the engine's prop, he took another piece out of a sewing machine; for the prop he used spoon handles. The man in the plane is wearing a seat belt. What was that? An old wristwatch band!

FISHERMAN — Sardine can for the boat, spark-plug for the outboard motor, a grease gun fitting for the reel, toggle bolt for anchor, aluminum shavings for the water (he colored that blue) and an old ice cube tray for the base. The swordfish the man is battling is a piece of a keyhole saw blade.

ALLIGATOR CHASING FISHERMAN — Mostly a discarded staple gun from a shoe cobbler's shop, some aluminum shavings, plus the usual nuts, bolts and springs.

BOXERS — One that is very self-explanatory when you study it, except that steel shavings were taken for the hair and special type of nuts were used for the boxing gloves.

BIG-WHEEL BIKE — An old tubing gauge with a base of an old door latch plate, plus other odds and ends.

When Melsha finishes a creation, he admits frankly he could never duplicate it, so he starts on another idea. He brazes everything in brass and sprays that finish so it never tarnishes.

He is retired, but never has a spare moment. His art is his work, fishing his recreation. He has taken three first-place ribbons and one certificate for "best of show" at the Huntington Park Chamber of Commerce annual Arts and Crafts Exhibition. And those first places were from among 1,200 entries.

His wife of 40 years, Marjorie, and the neighbors keep him busy with odd jobs when he has a spare hour or two. He has rebuilt his home, room by room. It is not large, but a dream house for a couple who love life for what it offers. □ many whom I do not know personally but I want them to know I support and believe in their efforts. They've done something which has pleased me and I want them to know about it."

A man with firm convictions — unbending and unyielding — Knott does not belittle or downgrade those with divergent views or philosophies. He has found it difficult, however, to construct a bridge across the generation gap ... to fathom some of the actions of the young.

"I can't be too critical of the habits of others," he said, "but I think those who are trying to tear down are forgetting there can be no freedom without responsibility. I am disturbed about the younger generation growing up and feeling no responsibility to their country and trying to solve their problems with drugs instead of a little good, hard work.

"But the drug problem seems to be lessening. Perhaps the people who were roaming around aimlessly are finding it an uncomfortable way to live. Yesterday's hippies are starting their own services and businesses. Maybe it's the plain comforts which are driving them back into the mainstream of society. Maybe they're finding out the establishment wasn't so bad, after all."

Knott's disenchantment with the restless, nomadic faction of the now generation stems from the fact he was forced to establish admission gates at the Farm four years ago.

"We were being overrun by rude, dirty, filthy-talking kids who would just come here to concentration camps," says Peter, "and my parents were desperately trying to get out of the country. There wasn't much hope until one day a very strange and sad thing happened.

"One of my father's friends had purchased steamship tickets to Shanghai. I think it was about the last boat that was able to leave.

"But one night this man's wife came to the house and asked my father if he wanted the tickets. Her husband, she said, had been seized by the gestapo and she would not leave without him. Take the tickets and get out, she told him. They bundled me up and we sailed for China, a country my parents knew nothing at all about. But it was a haven."

Max grew up among the great pagodas and met the monks. His interest in art was stimulated by the pagoda treasures.

His parents prospered as merchants and in 1952 they went to Israel, Paris and Rome, eventually coming to the U.S. The elder Max now is a prosperous pearl importer.

Peter, the 450-year-old swami, picked listlessly at his cheese and then abruptly realized he now was a New York businessman who must make more millions to build a chain of Integral Yoga Institutes. The prototype is in New York.

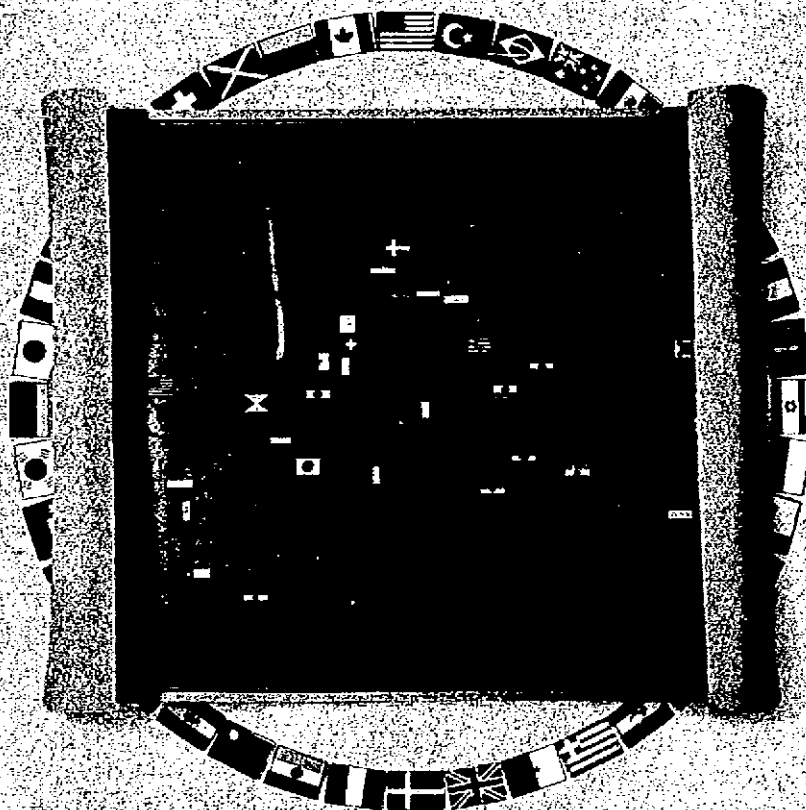

"I am running so late for appointments, I must go."

He reached across the table and so gently squeezed my hands goodbye.

harass people ... insulting women and the like. But now we've found that they behave very differently when they're inside."

Three pictures adorn the walls of the comfortable but hardly lavish waiting room immediately outside Knott's office. They are portraits of President Richard M. Nixon, Governor Ronald Reagan and Sen. Barry Goldwater. Knott will disperse 30 per cent of his earnings to charity and he is a heavy contributor to the Republican party.

He has been a delegate to three national conventions and was a national finance chairman for Goldwater's 1964 presidential campaign. He will be a staunch supporter of Nixon in this year's election, but his once furious political pace is waning. He will not seek reelection to the Orange County Republican Central Committee when his term expires later this year.

"I have to delegate most of the political activities to the younger people on my staff," he explained. "It's time for youth with more vim and vigor to take over. I definitely won't be out giving speeches. When I reached 80 I found myself groping for words in front of the microphone. It became a difficult chore so I got out completely. I've seen good, honest, entertaining people try to continue when they shouldn't have and I didn't want to fall into that category."

His conservatism includes his mode of dress. On this occasion Knott was wearing a dark brown business suit, blue shirt and those ever-present high top lace shoes, relics from another time which have become his trademark.

"You know," he said with a rare, wry smile,

"you can't walk into any shoe store and order these. I thought Teddy Roosevelt and I were the last to wear them — it's about the only thing Teddy and I had in common. Guess I'm alone now. But I get aggravated about these kind of shoes. They're harder to break in ... not as pliable as they once were."

The only jewelry he wears is a ring which was given to him several years ago by his employees on the farm. It is part gold and was made on the Farm and its insignia is a miner's pick and shovel.

"I'm too proud not to wear it," he claimed. Otherwise, he wouldn't.

Knott employees are included in a profit-sharing plan. "I like to see them do well," he said. "I like to see them with bigger and better cars than me." When it comes to the material things in life, Walter Knott is not that difficult to keep pace with.

He used to drive elderly Fords, but recently graduated to the Oldsmobile class. "The partnership (Knott has 20 per cent of the farm, the remaining 80 is divided among his son Russell, his three daughters and their families) furnishes me with a car," he recited sheepishly. "It just happened to be the kind they put in the garage one day."

Sometimes, he admitted, the family attempts to persuade him into doing things up on a slightly grander scale.

"Russ bought a new Cadillac one day and wanted me to ride around the block with him so he could test it out and show me its finer points," Knott recalled. "I finally explained to him that I thought it drove almost as nicely as my Ford."

The garage of the Knott home is attached to the same building he built for his family in the late 1920's. Only three years ago did he add air-conditioning, reasoning that "at my age you have to take all the comforts you can get."

"Through the years we've lived unpretentiously," he said, revealing the obvious. "Maybe today the kids feel a little guilty about it, but if Cordelia and I moved away nobody would be able to run the kitchen. (Cordelia, despite an operation for cancer two years ago, continues to help with kitchen duties in the Chicken Dinner Restaurant every day.)

"It's more convenient for us to stay here. It might be more difficult for us to entertain but we're happier here than we would be if we had to drive to work."

The clock struck 12 noon and Walter Knott, as always, reached for his grey felt hat, which would be tipped mechanically to each passing lady, and headed for his mid-day meal at one of the farm's dining areas where he would stand in line with the tourists and chat to the employees who religiously refer to him as "Mr. Knott."

Maybe Walter Knott's calling card summarizes the man best. It reads:

"Whatever we VIVIDLY imagine ...

ARDENTLY desire ...

SINCERELY believe ...

And ENTHUSIASTICALLY act upon Must INEVITABLY come to pass."

Words Walter Knott lives by. □

A FORTUNE IN COOKIES

By FRANK ANDERSON

An ancient Chinese philosopher wrote that the most precious thing a man can have is a good horoscope.

No doubt he made this observation after biting into a particularly fortunate fortune cookie.

The Democratic Party wasn't biting in 1960 when Lyndon Baines Johnson contracted with the Hong Kong Noodle Co. in Los Angeles for a batch of fortune cookies to be delivered to national convention delegates. The convention got the message about LBJ's presidential candidacy and threw it away in favor of John F. Kennedy.

And that's one way the fortune cookie crumbles in politics, as Adlai Stevenson discovered when he tried the same method of promotion.

A luckier office seeker was Los Angeles Superior Court Judge Kathleen Parker, whose electioneering via fortune cookies was digested by the voters. Her campaign workers donated the cookies to Chinese restaurants in Los Angeles, and the pluralities poured in like soy sauce on chow mein.

Never underestimate the power of egg whites, sugar, salt, melted butter, flour, chopped almonds and one-half teaspoon of vanilla. George Cheng doesn't — and, as president of the Hong Kong Noodle Co., he should know.

George Cheng has seen more than 66 million fortune cookies flow out of his factory at 950 S. San Pedro St. He's watched a phenomenon introduced to this country by his late father, Canton-born David Jung, become big business.

Jung, whose son Anglicized the family name to Cheng, began in a modest way in 1912, when he served little tea cakes to diners to tide them over while their food was being cooked.

It was a treat to ponder the meaning of such messages as "You will overcome obstacles to achieve success" or "Human happiness is a frail thing" or "One who is contented is always happy."

A restaurant patron who could look forward to the bliss and good luck promised by the fortune cookie didn't fret if his order failed to include egg roll.

There have been changes since 1912. The fortune cookies now are served at the end of a meal. And other companies have risen to challenge the Hong Kong Noodle Co. But there are only a score of fortune cookie manufacturers in the North American continent. Six are in Los Angeles, three in San Francisco and three in Canada. The others are scattered.

While George Cheng says the fortune cookie custom was a spinoff of tea cake ceremonies in old China, there is wide disagreement on the history of the cookie.

John K. Yee, who operates Kam's restaurant in Santa Ana and several other Southland eating places, contends the fortune cookie was invented by two professors at Columbia University. Their names have escaped his memory. Yee also says the fortune cookie has utility beyond the area of horoscopes.

"The cookie is sweet, a necessary counter to the saltiness of Chinese food. I might liken the cookie to an after-dinner mint. Its purpose is the same, to soothe the digestion."

But James Kim, general manager of Jan-U-Wine Foods Inc., the only canner of fortune cookies, argues that the fortune cookie is purely an American phenomenon. A native of Korea, he says he never encountered the fortune cookie in the Far East.

Enter the Chinese scholars with another version. The story is that in ancient China the upper classes found diversion in writing contests. The contestant was given pen and paper and told he would find his subject inside the tea cake served him. The writer of the essay adjudged best was the winner.

If the learned men of old China were not the first to author fortune cookie messages, then Dr. Lin Yutang and his fellow intellectuals are in error.

The Mandarin class did not monopolize the field, the scholars say. Peasants also utilized tea cakes to carry messages of births and deaths. The cakes were delivered to the houses of friends and relatives with much bowing and ceremony.

No matter, George Cheng is secure in the fortune cook-

"Made by Hong Kong Noodle Co." Mr. Cheng uses his noodle for more than soup.

Fortune cookie messages are edited for taste. Double meanings are weeded out. Death and disaster are never predicted. The note is upbeat.

George Cheng and his lawyers read over each and every offering. Jim Kim eyeballs the master sheets from the printer for Jan-U-Wine. His company, like Cheng's, directs that no fortunes be unhappy or derogatory.

Most patrons accept the fortunes in the spirit in which they are delivered. A few complain that the tomorrows projected for them are hardly what they had in mind.

George Cheng's response is to supply the complainer with paper and pen and tell him to write a do-it-yourself fortune. The results are interesting, often surpassing the professionals, all of whom are unpaid. Cheng's latest samples include these:

"Eat Chinese food for 100 years and live a long life."

"It is possible to give love even though one's feelings are numb."

"To gain the whole world and lose your integrity is tragedy."

Many Chinese of the Taoist persuasion believe the impulses of Ying and Yang provide an alternating current of fortune — that bad luck brings good, and good luck bad.

As explained by British journalist Dennis Bloodworth, an old China hand, "The unceasing change in the cosmos is due to the interaction of two opposite forces, Ying and Yang."

"Ying is earth, feminine, negative, passive, dark, weak, even, moon. Yang is heaven, male, positive, active, light, strong, odd, sun."

"There is no left without right, no good without bad, no heaven without earth."

Translate the Ying-Yang principle into fortune cookie prognostications and we have this Hong Kong Noodle Co. gem:

"Sunshine will soon dispel the gloom which envelops you."

That's light out of darkness, the triumph — however transitory — of Yang over Ying.

Whether they realize it or not, the objective of fortune cookie writers is to keep Ying at bay. The devices are varied — a letter, a lover, a new friend with money and philosophy that seems to be a distillation of the best of Norman Vincent Peale and Ben Franklin.

Every human being is a philosopher to start with, and doubly so when presented with an opportunity to be enshrined within a fortune cookie. Marie Raine of Fullerton is a literary, cookie cousin to business forms salesman Dale Clarke of Los Angeles, freelance author Jerry Tune of Honolulu and the members of San Francisco's far-out Society of Fortune Cookie Scribes.

These people and unsung others write most of the fortunes that form the caboose of fried rice, won ton and sweet-sour pork. If disappointed in your fortune, throw the tea leaves at them — first removing said leaves from the cup.

John K. Yee, perhaps calling on the wisdom of the ancients, was not at a loss for an answer when a woman patron at Kam's complained that her fortune cookie slip was blank.

"You have so much good fortune you don't need any more," Yee said diplomatically. What he didn't tell the patron he told me:

"The original intention of the fortune cookie has changed. We've gone from the profound to bad jokes. And certainly there are more than enough bad jokes around."

But that's only one man's opinion. Who's going to argue with an estimated 100 million fortune cookies? Certainly not George Cheng and the state's most widely read author, Marie Raine.

Considering the prosperity of the industry, no one is rushing to free the message writer who implored: "Help! I'm being held prisoner in a Chinese fortune cookie factory."

Take it from an old fortune cookie fancier. That prisoner never had it so good. □

ARNOLD VANN
Meaty Prime Rib Bones

Most of the better restaurants around town have their "image." Some are steak houses. Some specialize in sea foods. And some, such as the Tenderloin, 4363 Atlantic Ave., emphasize tender, juicy prime rib of beef.

For a number of years Arnold Vanni, owner and host at the Tenderloin, offered a steak-lobster combination. It was quite popular, but not as popular as some of his other entrees.

Last summer he decided to try a prime rib-lobster combination instead. It was an instant hit with the public and has continued to be extremely popular. "It sort of proves that people believe in our image," says Vanni. "They come here because we are a prime rib specialty house and that's what they love to order."

The combination ($4.95) is a gourmet presentation including a larger than average slice of prime rib with the bone in, plus three mini-lobster tails from Hong Kong. The lobsters are little gems, tender and sweet, accompanied by a small metal cup of hot drawn butter. The prime rib is accompanied by a metal cup of hot au jus.

The accompaniments include all the delights of the Tenderloin dinner — handsome salad with croutons and delicious dressing, hot garlic toast served on a napkin — covered silver tray, baked potato with cheese sauce, lots of butter or sour cream and tender string beans prepared from special recipes.

Of course, the entree for which the Tenderloin is most renowned is its regular prime rib dinner, which is remarkably popular. The price is merely $2.50, amazing when you realize that the Tenderloin is a top-class house with fresh linen tablecloths and napkins, immaculate settings and a posh lobby and lounge.

Despite its fashionable personality, the restaurant is friendly and casual. People drop in wearing any informal apparel. They wish — sport shirts and slacks, house dresses or hot pants. Equally welcome are

The Tenderloin is such a plush-looking place that newcomers sometimes can't believe their eyes when they find several $1.95 dinner entrees on the menu. One of the most popular at that price is the prime rib bone entree. It consists of three huge bones, each adorned with large amounts of tender beef. The low price includes a tangy barbecue sauce as well as all the dinner courses. Sometimes the Tenderloin runs out of prime rib bones; so if you want some, you should try to arrive early.

Closed Mondays, the Tenderloin serves luncheon daily, featuring a hot dipped prime rib sandwich, $1.10.

I HAD A PHONE call the other day from a man who identified himself simply as "Mac." He sounded as if he were in his 40s or 50s and he was knowledgeable about good food and dining out.

From things he said, I gathered that he is an executive who travels a lot, often visiting the better restaurants of San Francisco, Chicago and Miami Beach.

"Mac" had a problem. While on vacation about 10 years ago in Long Beach, he and his wife went for a drive. They'd found a winding road which led up a fairly steep hill. At the top they discovered a restaurant that served steaks and prime rib which Mac said were: "Really terrific."

REED WILLIAMS
Easy to Find
Camaraderie by Larry LaVioie

For the past year or so, Mac and his wife have been living in Santa Ana. They've driven to Long Beach several times and have tried to find the restaurant they discovered so long ago. Each time they set out with high hopes, but fail to locate it.

"We're so frustrated about this," he said, "that we're beginning to wonder if there is such a place. Maybe we just imagined it."

When I asked if he'd tried driving up Signal Hill, "Mac" replied quickly: "Of course. That was the first place we went, but the winding road just pooped out and didn't go anywhere."

I told him I was pretty sure the restaurant was the Hilltop Steak House and Star Room atop Signal Hill, but that he's probably made a wrong turn somewhere. I explained that there are two easy routes up: (1) from Cherry Avenue via 23rd Street or (2) from Pacific Coast Highway via Temple Avenue to 23rd.

The Hilltop Steak House is at 2300 E. 23rd in a prime view location where the street curves along the south crest of the hill. Once he understood my directions, "Mac" agreed completely, saying there was no longer any doubt in his mind.

I haven't heard from him since, but I'm sure he and his wife were delighted with what they found up there. Though over 40 years old, the Hilltop has been kept in perfection condition by its owners, band leader Reed Williams and his wife Maxine. The place is now more popular than ever before in its history, thanks to the quality of its thick juicy steaks, prime rib and sea foods, from $3.50 on bountiful dinners. The top sirloin, $5.25, is a magnificent cut; the prime rib sandwich, $3.95, is equally glorious.

Closed Mondays, the Hilltop serves from 6 p.m. on. Reed's trio, really outstanding, plays for dancing nightly.

Medicine & You

By BEN ZINSER
Medical-Science Editor

All of us have a touch of mental retardation or cerebral palsy, suggests a Harvard medical school physician, Dr. Abraham Towbin.

His contention: The cause is the stress at time of birth or stress prior to birth.

In a report in the Journal of the American Medical Association, Dr. Towbin reminds that birth "is the most endangering experience to which most individuals are ever exposed."

He continues:

"The perinatal period has a death rate greater than any other time of life. The birth process, even under optimal controlled conditions, is a traumatic, potentially crippling event for the fetus.

"Compressed and forced through the birth canal, the fetus is subjected to rapid, often turbulent alterations in environment and is required to make complicated changes in circulation, respiration and other system functions."

He goes on to say that the brain is the most "sensitive target" in the body during this period of stress.

Earlier, the fetus faces many hazards, he says.

Thus gestation and birth form an "inexorable leveling" mechanism.

"With the brain marred at birth, the potential of performance may be reduced from that of a genius to that of a plain child, or less. The damage may be slight, imperceptible clinically, or it may spell the difference between brothers, one a dextrous athlete and the other an awkward child."

Many doctors and nurses are upright about new liberalized abortion laws, according to a report from Chicago researchers.

Drs. John R. Wolff and Paul E. Nielson observe that the assumption that the obstetricians-gynecologists will readily accept the role of performing abortions may not be true.

The doctors remind that these doctors enter their specialty primarily with a desire to deliver babies.

The doctors, who are affiliated with Rush Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center and the University of Illinois at Chicago, report that they found "a general sense of uneasiness" in all personnel caring for patients requiring a therapeutic abortion. They found resident physicians attempting to avoid assignment to participate in abortion procedures.

"Negative feelings toward a therapeutic abortion are frequently expressed in seminars and corridors by experienced gynecologists and trainees alike," they state.

The doctors say the tendency to avoid abortion-type surgery is due to "concern with the issue of causing a death."

They add: "It is evident that with the present sociolegal climate, medical personnel will be forced to come to grips with this problem."

The report is in the American Journal of Obstetrics and Gynecology.

Coronary patients are subject to heart standstill on exertion, so physical exercise for such persons should be carried out under appropriate supervision.

Two University of Washington doctors say that these patients should be warned of the potential hazard of engaging in strenuous activity while unattended.

If these patients exercise, there should be oxygen, a mask and a defibrillator (electric-shocking device) nearby.

Cardiac arrest occurred in two patients during exercise testing and in five during exercise training, report Drs. Robert A. Bruce and Wolfgang Kluge of Seattle. All seven responded promptly to a single shock of a defibrillator, according to a report in Modern Medicine.

Is coronary artery disease in younger men on the decline?

Two Arlington, Va., doctors think that it is.

Drs. William F. Enos and James C. Beyer, in a report in the Journal of the American Medical Association, say they have noted a decrease in the past eight years among medical examiners' autopsies.

Their observation matches an earlier study which compared Vietnam autopsies with those done in the Korean conflict. The Vietnam study suggested that there is a meaningful downward trend in the incidence of coronary artery disease in younger men.

The Virginia doctors suggest that changes in diet may be part of the explanation.

Nylon underwear can give a computer amnesia, according to the journal New Scientist.

In other words, women in nylon underwear may build up enough static electricity to shock the computer.

Also, a secretary wearing a woolen sweater could generate enough static electricity to stop the computer, or cause an error, should a metal switch on the console be touched.

What does this have to do with health? Well, mainly it concerns the mental health of computer personnel.

Airport radar, as well as underwear and sweaters, is also a problem.

Cited is the case of radar within a few hundred yards of a computer. It erased Internal Revenue Service computer tapes. An investigator blamed the episode on inadequate grounding of metal shielding.

Q. I understand that President Nixon plans to replace Robert McNamara as President of the World Bank with Maurice Stans. Any truth to that?—Dan Root, Aspen, Colo.

A. Maurice Stans (I), one of Nixon's chief political fund-raisers (over $40 million in the 1968 campaign), was rewarded with a Cabinet job as Secretary of Commerce. Nixon will again use Stans to raise campaign funds from big business in 1972. Should Nixon win reelection he most probably will pay off Stans with a distinguished position in 1973, which is when McNamara's appointment expires.

Q. Who is the richest black entertainer in the U.S.A.?—Johnnie Glover, Shreveport, La.

A. Four possibilities: Lionel Hampton, Harry Belafonte, Lena Horne, Sidney Poitier.

Q. When Henry Kissinger went to Peking, who was his language interpreter? Wasn't she an attractive American girl from San Francisco, part Chinese and part American?—T.T.R., Berkeley, Calif.

A. Not true. Kissinger in Peking used Chou En-lai's interpreter, Mr. Chi Chao-chu, 40, who entered Harvard in 1948, left soon after to return to Hong Kong, then to mainland China.

MARILYN MAXWELL, BOB HOPE & BARRY GOLDWATER.

Q. Whenever there's a dinner for Bob Hope, or he's given some award, Marilyn Maxwell always seems to show up. What's between these two? Were they ever married?—Elsie Goodrich, Burbank, Calif.

A. They were never married, just played together—in films.

Q. Cindy Birdsong of the Supremes—has she, like Diana Ross, married a white man? Why is it that almost every black chick who makes it in show biz ends up with whitey?—Richy Morgan, Detroit, Mich.

A. Yes, Cindy Birdsong is married to Charles Hewlett, white businessman. Many female entertainers of the black race use their white husbands as business managers, press agents, advisers, and status symbols.

Q. I have seen photographs of former President L. B. Johnson wearing a hearing aid. How did he manage to keep this a secret while President?—William J. Schreiber, Berkeley Heights, N.J.

A. Mr. Johnson's hearing difficulty is progressive. It was not nearly as bad when he was in office. All Presidents like to project the image of vitality, alertness, and good health in their physical appearance.

Q. How old was Thomas Jefferson when he wrote the Declaration of Independence?—Maude Thurgold, Newark, N.J.

A. Age: 33.

Q. Has the true story of Chou En-lai's illegitimate German child ever been revealed?—Jane Sutherland, Boston, Mass.

A. Yes, many times, most recently in Stern, a German weekly, which revealed that in the early 1920's, Chou (above) had a sweetheart in Göttingen named Kunigunde Staufenbiel. She worked in a pension, on the second floor of which Chou rented a room.

PREMIER CHOU EN-LAI

He was then 25, a student at the University of Göttingen, majoring in geology and languages. In 1923 he and Kunigunde, then 19, became lovers.

She bore Chou a son out of wedlock on April 26, 1924. The boy was named Kuno Staufenbiel. Chou never married his chambermaid-sweetheart. He journeyed to Berlin, then home to China where he married Teng Jing-chao who became head of the Chinese Women's Communist Organization.

Kunigunde Staufenbiel subsequently married a bricklayer who looked after Chou's son, Kuno.

In 1940, Kuno, by trade a waiter, joined the German Army, was sent to the Russian front where he lost an eye. Released from the hospital, he was assigned a job in an officer's club, began dating 18-year-old Kathe Findeisen.

On Oct. 15, 1944, Kathe gave birth to an illegitimate son. Unlike his own father, however, Kuno married the mother of his child. A few months later he was ordered back to the Russian front where he was killed on Feb. 4, 1945.

Today, Kunigunde Staufenbiel, sweetheart of Chou En-lai's student days, is 67, and her grandson, Wilfried, is 27. Wilfried works in an auto-body shop in Zittau, East Germany. "Everyone here," he says proudly, "knows that Chou En-lai is my grandfather."

CHOU EN-LAI'S SON KUNO STAUFENBIEL AND KATHE FINDEISEN WERE MARRIED IN DECEMBER 1944

ENKEL WILFRIED STAUFENBIEL, CHOU'S GRANDSON WITH HIS OWN CHILDREN, SIMONE AND ANKE.

NUMBER ONE MISTAKE The role of the U.S. in the India-Pakistan War is the single worst foreign policy mistake committed by the Nixon Administration.

It ranks with the costly blunder John Foster Dulles pulled in the Eisenhower Administration when he refused to help Egypt build the Aswan Dam, thereby throwing Nasser into the waiting arms of the Soviet Union and giving the Soviet Navy access to Mediterranean ports.

This time by supporting Pakistan against India, instead of remaining benevolently neutral (a policy which the U.S. State Department advocated), Nixon and his foreign policy adviser Henry Kissinger chose to back the loser.

The Soviet Union, on the other hand, flew arms to India, promised military action against both the U.S. and China if they intervened on Pakistan's side. The Soviets also promised Mrs. Gandhi that in the event China sent troops pouring into India across the Himalayas, the Soviet Union would open a diversionary action in Sinkiang where the Chinese manufacture their nuclear bombs. The Soviets further promised that they would not allow the U.S. Seventh Fleet to intervene in the war.

The result of the tragic Nixon-Kissinger mistake is that today the Soviet Union is admired by a grateful India, the Soviet Navy has access to Indian Ocean ports, and American influence has sunk to a new low. Not only in India but throughout Asia.

The sensible goal of U.S. foreign policy should have been to maintain India's position as a balancing power in Asia between Russia and China.

Instead we denounced India as the aggressor without ever publicly reproaching the West Pakistanis for slaughtering the East Pakistanis. The latter had earned some measure of autonomy at the polls more than a year ago only to see their educated elite imprisoned and their people butchered. The massacre caused the massive flow of some 10 million Bengalis into an India which could not support that impossible burden.

It is all too sad, because up until the India-Pakistan war, the Nixon-Kissinger foreign policy had proved little short of brilliant.

TASTE REFLECTIONS Can a man be judged by the movies he likes?

Several weeks ago the American Film Institute asked a group of politicians and Washington celebrities to nominate their all-time film favorites.

Vice President Agnew chose Gunga Din. Ethel Kennedy selected The Nun's Story. Sen. George McGovern said Viva Zapata was his favorite. Henry Kissinger selected Les Enfants du Paradis. Sen. James Buckley chose High Noon, and Alice Roosevelt Longworth decided upon Orphans of the Storm.

NO FACES, PLEASE: FEMALE SECRET SERVICE AGENTS ARE SWORN IN BY EUGENE ROSSIDES.

WOMEN SECRET SERVICE

For the first time in its 106-year history, the Secret Service is accepting women for the position of special agent, starting salaries: $7000 to $9000.

EXODUS Last month the exodus of Soviet Jews bound for Israel reached the unprecedented number of 100 per day.

Most came from Georgia, Josef Stalin's home province. The second largest group emigrated from Latvia and Lithuania where anti-Semitism is rampant, and the third from the cities of Odessa and Kiev in the Ukraine.

Why have the Soviets suddenly changed their emigration policy for Soviet Jews?

The obvious answer is fear of foreign opinion, heightened by Brezhnev's visit to France and Kosygin's visit to Canada.

When these two top Soviet leaders returned to Moscow after their trips last year, they ordered detailed emigration rules to be posted to various trade unions, party locals and government agencies. Officials were ordered to treat Jews who desired to emigrate with fairness and decency.

These regulations fell on open and welcome ears at offices of Aeroflot, the Soviet airline, and the Soviet Transport Ministry, both of which have yearly quotas to fill, and thus were anxious to help.

Soviet Jews arriving in Tel Aviv explain that Dutch Embassy officials who represent Israel in the Soviet Union were also helpful in preparing their complicated exit papers.

To depart from the Soviet Union, a prospective emigrant must first receive an invitation from a relative in Israel or the Government of Israel. He then must obtain a character reference from his employer and fill out a lengthy application which is forwarded to the foreign office. If the foreign office approves it, he takes it next to the State Security Committee (the KGB).

He pays the KGB $555 for renouncing his Soviet citizenship and 400 rubles for an exit visa.

From the KGB he goes to the Netherlands Embassy which issues his visa to Israel and to the Austrian Embassy for a transit visa to Vienna.

Nor is that all. At customs he is checked to see that he is taking out no more than $44 in rubles, one radio, one sewing machine, one vacuum cleaner, one engagement ring, one pair of earrings, and one ring with a precious stone.

Emigrants at Moscow who violate these regulations have their undeclared possessions confiscated. Excess items, once declared, are returned to next of kin. Soviet customs is less strict about mortal remains of relatives which some emigrants ship for reinterment in the Holy Land.

At the current rate of emigration, approximately 120,000 Jews of the 3 million in the Soviet Union, may leave that country by the end of the year -- providing, of course, Soviet officials do not suddenly monkey-wrench the exit pipeline.

TO NAME SOURCES

The Washington Post is the first major U.S. newspaper to pinpoint publicly the sources of information received from government officials.

"We are convinced that we have engaged in this deception and done this disservice to the reader long enough," Post Executive Editor Benjamin Bradlee explained recently, after a dispute with the White House on information distributed to newsmen on a non-attribution basis.

Bradlee declared that the Post policy is "to get this newspaper once and for all out of the business of distributing the party line of any official of any government without identifying that official and that government."

Under the long-existing ground rules, newsmen are pledged not to identify "a White House spokesman, a government official, a highly-placed authority" who does not want to be identified for any of several reasons. Most frequently in this administration, the unidentified "government spokesman" has been Henry Kissinger.

Government press secretaries and spokesmen usually generate a sense of priorities which holds that first loyalty goes not to the public whose taxes pay their salaries, but rather to the men who hired them.

Press secretaries are more interested in building up or protecting their superiors than they are in revealing truth. Some press secretaries hide, lie, evade, color, tell half-truths. Others, when they seek to curry favor with the press, release information on a non-attribution basis. Almost always such exercises are self-serving.

The American public obtains its most truthful information, not from its government, but from its free press.

That is a point no administration, Republican or Democratic, ever seeks to make clear. But no American should ever forget it.

FACT-OF-LIFE Approximately 14,400,000 persons in this country are on the welfare rolls receiving approximately $1.5 billion in monthly public-assistance payments.

JANE FONDA AND DONALD SUTHERLAND: THEIR ANTI-WAR REVUE WILL BE A MOVIE.

"FREE THE ARMY" The Jane Fonda-Donald Sutherland troupe which has been touring the Far East, kidding the U.S. Army, will soon offer a motion picture based on the 13-skit revue.

It will probably be entitled F.T.A. (Free The Army).

The revue, which the Pentagon has banned from Army posts, has met with a great deal of success in cities near such military installations. The film is being produced by Vidtronics, Inc., whose chairman, Harold Goldman, says he is gambling on the public's curiosity to make it a success.

"So many people have heard about the controversial show," he says, "and so few have seen it that I believe it's got a good chance."

The best man for the job in Davenport, Iowa, turned out to be a woman.

Earlier this month, Kathryn Kirschbaum was sworn in as mayor. Her victory spotlights an emerging arena of female power: municipal government. Across the country women are getting out of the kitchen and into city hall.

Eleven U.S. cities with populations of more than 30,000 now have women chief executives. Ten years ago there were only four. Today, Oklahoma City (pop. 367,856) is the largest municipality with a woman mayor. Davenport (pop. 98,469) is the second biggest.

A survey of the women who presently may be addressed as "honorable" yields these observations:

The typical woman mayor was a civic-minded housewife who managed to become the first woman ever elected to her city council. After one or two outstanding terms as an alderman she was elected mayor. She is an older woman, married or widowed, and more often than not, a grandmother. The credentials which seem to count most with the voters are maturity, not novelty; and respectability, not sex appeal.

She has two sons

Kathy Kirschbaum, Davenport's new Democratic mayor, fits most of this pattern. At 40, she is younger than most women mayors. Her image, however, is that of a happily married wife and mother. She and husband Ray, a mechanical engineer, have two young sons: Mike, 11, and Steve, 9.

Motherhood for a female candidate is a plus at the polls. Prettiness may not be. Yet Kathy Kirschbaum—like John Lindsay of New York City—is an easy-to-look-at politician.

So far Mrs. Kirschbaum has found being a woman in politics fairly smooth going. But she does recall a few rough moments. For instance: "During my first year as alderman a joint dinner meeting between the city council and city planning zone commission was scheduled. Several fellow aldermen advised me I'd find it boring and urged me not to attend. Then I decided to go anyway. And I discovered by 'boring,' they meant a stag party at the taxpayers' expense."

Laughable memories

On other occasions, councilmen who opposed Alderman Kirschbaum on municipal issues tended to slip into anti-woman prose. The new mayor laughs off such memories. And understandably, she is reluctant to predict what special problems may snipe at her as the woman in charge at city hall. PARADE queried incumbent women mayors to find out about their experiences. Welcome, Kathy, to the mayorship. Here is what your sisters say you can expect:

A Woman's Place Is in City Hall

by Ilene Barth

Winner: Kathy Kirschbaum, Davenport's new Democratic mayor, younger than most women in such jobs, but otherwise typical of housewives in city politics.

"When I first became mayor," reports Florence Douglas, Mayor of Vallejo, Calif., "each of the other six council members (all men) thought to himself: 'If a woman could get elected mayor, I could have been elected.' I had to deal with six would-be chiefs."

Mayor Douglas, now in her third term, sounds a second warning: Beware of unholy alliances. "Men," she sighs, "tend to make agreements with each other which can be very hard for a woman to break. They rely on the words of official and pressure group spokesmen, a trap usually avoided by women who are naturally more independent and curious."

"You wouldn't ask me so much about myself, if I were a man," Mayor Lois Jackson of Longview, Tex., indignantly told PARADE. "That's the difference—people always want to know personal things about a woman politician and her family. I don't mind being classified as motherly," explained Mrs. Jackson who has raised three sons and one niece, and is now grandmother to six. "But that is not the extent of my ability."

"As a woman I brought a broader view to the council. The men were interested in paving and sewage, but I also cared about the esthetic. I saw to it that a new park was created.

"A woman can do new things," Mayor Jackson concludes. "Just tell Kathy to stand firm on her ability."

"A woman must discuss any issue as if she knew the gentlemen were already aware of the facts," stipulates Mayor Adelina Gregory of Baldwin Park, Calif.

Men are jealous

A woman mayor must be extraordinarily tactful, according to Mrs. Gregory. "Men who become jealous of [a woman's] small successes and competency will always regard her voice and what she is saying—no matter how valid—as nagging."

Fortunately, Mayor Gregory is a woman who enjoys coddling men. She wants her husband to "believe he has a dutiful, thoughtful, full-time housekeeper for a wife." To accomplish this sleight-of-hand she rises at 5 a.m. to prepare his breakfast. Then before she departs for the office she tidies their house and does their laundry.

Mayor Kirschbaum does not need to be such a practiced illusionist, since her husband cheerfully shares the housework with her. Balancing household management with a job may, of course, shred the energy of any working woman. But when the working woman is a mayor, a couple's housekeeping arrangements can become a public issue. Ray Kirschbaum reports he tells men "who pan me as the guy with the apron: 'Brother, I don't know what your hang-up is, but I don't have it.'"

Just get elected

Despite the diversity of pitfalls women mayors have encountered, none was termed serious by the mayors reporting them. And they all agreed being a woman in office had one main advantage. "The fact that I'm unusual makes people more interested in talking to me," says Mayor Patience Latting of Oklahoma City, summing up for the group. "By the time a woman gets to be mayor the real hurdles are over."

Mayor Kirschbaum hopes Mayor Latting is right.

Mayor Florence Douglas of Vallejo, Calif., is now in her third term as her city's chief.

Mayor Adelina Gregory of Baldwin Park, Calif., says that a woman mayor must be tactful.

Mayor Patience Latting of Oklahoma City says winning the office is toughest part of job.

Mayor Lois Jackson of Longview, Tex., believes women can give an esthetic lift to city.

I went on the warpath and lost 55 pounds.

By Shirley Paul—as told to Ruth L. McCarthy

At 180 pounds, you grin and bear it. Or you make up your mind to do something about it.

Potato chips, pop, pizza, layers of lunch meat between fat slices of bread—these were just a few of the stuffers that filled my evenings. And made my days miserable. For when you're 22 years old, five feet two, and 180 pounds, the world is a pretty dreary place.

"Shame fat" is what I used to call all that extra weight I carried around. I don't know whether it's a Hoosier expression or not. But I come from Gaston, Indiana, and when I used to cook for my husband and three children, I'd just make much too much. Then I'd feel ashamed to waste such good food, so I'd eat it. And that became my "shame fat."

Actually, I had learned to cook enormous meals during my teens. I had come from a large family of seven where everybody had big, big appetites. After I married, I just couldn't get used to cutting down on the quantities I cooked. So I'd make enough to feed an army. Why, I got so heavy, each time I became pregnant, I had to wear maternity clothes in my second month.

I must say that my husband, Steve, never made nasty remarks about my size. Maybe because he was gaining, too. But deep inside I'm sure my looks must have bothered him. For instance, when we were going some place, and I'd finish dressing, he'd just say: "Are you ready?" when I really wanted him to say: "You sure look pretty."

Still I did nothing about my weight. On the contrary, each time I thought about it, I'd make a stack of sandwiches and eat myself into another pound. Even my sister got on me about the way I looked. But it was not until a friend of my husband made a snide remark that I finally decided I had to reduce.

You see, I carried much of my weight from the waist down. As a result, I could never find panty hose to fit, no matter what size I bought. So I wore regular stockings with the fat bulging over the top. And with short skirts, I'm afraid it was there for all the world to see.

Well, one night at a party, this fellow turned to his slim wife and said: "Why don't you wear hose that lets people see your legs?" It was a sick kind of humor. But it hurt enough to jolt me into action. I have Cherokee blood in me and I'll tell you this. That crack put me on the warpath against fat.

Luckily, I remembered that my mother had used those reducing-plan candies, Ayds®, and that the plan had worked for her. So I picked up a box of the vanilla caramel kind at a drug store and I started on the plan.

Incidentally, I was glad to see in the folder that Ayds contain no drugs. So I took two before each meal like the directions say—with a hot drink—and that actually helped me cut back on what I was eating.

I had plenty of meat and fish and I ate my vegetables bare. No butter or seasoning or anything like that. And I began to lose. As for those sandwich snacks, I took Ayds instead. They have only 26 calories apiece, so I was way ahead.

The Ayds plan kind of became a family project, for both me and my husband. Because when he saw how well I was doing, he started taking Ayds, too. The butterscotch fudge kind. They're terrific.

Another thing. Since we both like to dance, we did that for exercise. And we discovered a whole new life together. As a matter of fact, by the time I had gotten down to 130 pounds, Steve had gone from size 42 trousers to size 36. I'd show you a picture of him, but he wants to get to size 34 before bragging.

I'm working on taking off 10 more pounds myself. Then I'll be satisfied and completely free from the late-night sandwich trap. Ayds takes care of that craving just fine.

Smoking. What are you going to do about it?

Many people are against cigarettes. You've heard their arguments.

And even though we're in the business of selling cigarettes, we're not going to advance arguments in favor of smoking.

We simply want to discuss one irrefutable fact.

A lot of people are still smoking cigarettes. In all likelihood, they'll continue to smoke cigarettes and nothing anybody has said or is likely to say is going to change their minds.

Now, if you're one of these cigarette smokers, what are you going to do about it? You may continue to smoke your present brand. With all the enjoyment and pleasure you get from smoking it. Or, if 'tar' and nicotine has become a concern to you, you may consider changing to a cigarette like Vantage.

(Of course, there is no other cigarette quite like Vantage.)

Vantage has a unique filter that allows rich flavor to come through it and yet substantially cuts down on 'tar' and nicotine.

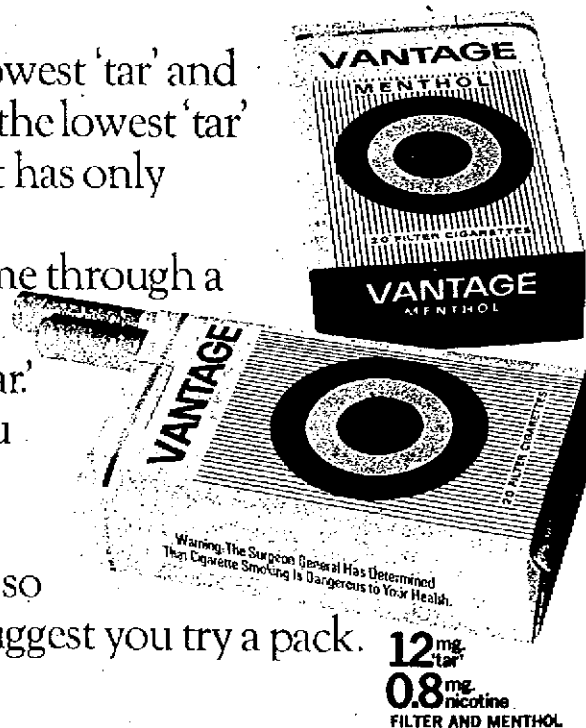

We want to be frank. Vantage is not the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette you can buy. But it well may be the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette you will enjoy smoking. It has only 12 milligrams 'tar' and 0.8 milligrams nicotine.

The simple truth is that smoke has to come through a filter if taste is to come through a filter.

And where there is taste, there has to be some 'tar.'

But Vantage is not a 'hernia' cigarette. You don't have to work so hard pulling the taste through it that all the joy of smoking is lost.

And it is the only cigarette that gives you so much taste with so little 'tar' and nicotine. We suggest you try a pack.

Filter and Menthol: 12 mg. "tar", 0.8 mg. nicotine—av. per cigarette, FTC Report Aug. 71 (Menthol by FTC method).

The Cochrans: America's Number One Ski Family

by Paul Gillette

Americans have always had a knack for doing things in family groups—witness the flying Wrights, the musical Dorseys, the baseball DiMaggios, the political Kennedys. Now make way for the skiing Cochrans.

Not since Andrea Mead Lawrence won two first places in the 1952 women's alpine championships at Oslo, Norway, has an American claimed the ski world's top prize, a gold medal in the quadrennial Olympics. The 1972 games begin Feb. 3 at Sapporo, Japan, and aficionados are looking to the Cochrans to put the United States back on the winner's platform.

Four chances

"If anyone comes back from Sapporo with a gold medal," says Suzy Chaffee, who represented the U.S. in the 1968 Olympics, "odds are it'll be a Cochran."

Odds certainly are, for the Cochrans have not one, not two, not three, but four chances. They're named Marilyn, Barbara Ann, Bobby and Lindy.

Should they all show up at Sapporo they'd set two all-time records: most members of a single family competing in the same Olympics and most girls from the same family competing in any Olympics. But people who know the Cochrans know that they won't stop there.

Marilyn Cochran, at 21 the oldest of the clan, seemingly came out of nowhere to win the World Cup Women's giant slalom championship. (There are three races in alpine skiing: slalom, run between closely spaced poles; giant slalom, in which the course is longer and the poles farther apart; and downhill, a long and hazardous near-vertical descent of a mountain.) By season's end she had five second-place finishes, each a mere fraction of a second behind the winner. When the season's total points were tallied, Marilyn's overall times were better than anyone else's.

She lost the title in 1970 but garnered a bronze medal for third place in the women's combined championships—overall performance in slalom, giant slalom and downhill. Then, last year, after winning a first in slalom on the World Cup circuit, she went to France for that nation's championships. It was the first year in which the confident French, long-known for their powerful women's ski team, had invited non-French to compete. Marilyn handily won the slalom and giant slalom and finished fourth in downhill; her combined performance won the championship.

U.S. champion

Brother Bobby, at 19 two years Marilyn's junior, started no less spectacularly by winning a place on the U.S. National Team when he was only 16. He achieved no World Cup laurels that year—1969—but came back in 1970 to win the United States men's slalom championship. Last year a badly injured ankle sidelined him at the beginning of the season, but he returned at the season's end to take the coveted combined title for the U.S. National Championships at Aspen, Colo., with a first in downhill and giant slalom and a just-missed in slalom.

LINDY

At 18, lacks World Cup experience, but she's catching up fast with siblings.

With their father Mickey, who had them on skis at the age of 4, Marilyn (left) and Barbara Ann go over some fine points on slope behind house in Richmond, Vt.

THE COCHRAN FAMILY

—who could stand a chance against competition like that? Watch for sister Barbara Ann, 20. After skiing in Marilyn's shadow for several years, she won two World Cup races last year. And in races off the circuit, she has finished ahead of Marilyn often enough to raise both spectators' eyebrows and her older sister's hackles.

Bobby recalls a race last year at Heavenly Valley, Calif., where Marilyn confidently sped across the finish line only to find her performance topped a few minutes later by Barbara Ann. Marilyn, who is the soul of graciousness and magnanimity off skis—but one of the fiercest and most dedicated competitors on them—was flabbergasted. "She was so upset," remembers Bobby, "that she couldn't go over to Barbara Ann and shake her hand to congratulate her. She went out and bought one of those novelty greeting cards and put it under Barbara Ann's door that night. It read, 'Congratulations! You made me feel inferior again.' "

"I think Barbara Ann's the best skier of all of us," observed Marilyn in a more tranquil moment early this winter. "She's a technician, while Bobby and I are more aggressive, more wild. Technically, I think, Barbara is one of the best skiers that there is."

Getting better

Last but by no means least in this family of superskiers is Lindy, 18. Though her racing experience has thus far been limited to a single season on the World Cup circuit, she was named last year to the U.S. National Team. Observers give her at least an odds-on chance of catching up soon with her more celebrated siblings. "She's better at 18 than I was," says Marilyn candidly, "and I think she's going to just keep on getting better."

member is a top competitive skier are not exactly rare. Brothers and sisters who learn together frequently go on to burn up the slopes together. The colorful McCoy's of California—Pancho, Peanut, Penny and Candy—have long been prominent figures in ski racing, as have the Werners of Colorado—Buddy (killed in a ski accident), Skeeter and Loris. More recently, the Chaffees of Vermont, close friends of the Cochrans, made their mark: Kim, 28, was a competitive skier before retiring to form the Student Ski Association; Suzy, 24, competed in the 1968 Olympics and now is a New York-based actress and model; Rick, at 26, is the grand old man of the present U.S. Men's Team and one of the top-ranked contenders this winter at Sapporo.

What makes the Cochrans stand out even among these standouts is that so many of them are competing at the very top echelon—and all at the same time. There have been junior races in which Bobby finished first among boys and Marilyn, Barbara Ann and Lindy first, second and third among girls. It would surprise few people if more than one of them wins a medal at Sapporo.

How did they get so good? Not surprisingly all four children have been skiing for as long as they can remember. Their parents, Mickey and Ginny Cochran, had Marilyn and Barbara Ann on ski-skates by age 3, on regular skis by 4. Bobby and Lindy were on regular skis by 3.

"I don't remember not knowing how to ski," Marilyn recalls. Bobby adds: "It's always been as natural to me as walking. You'd walk in the summer, ski in the winter."

Mickey Cochran not only made his children's first skis from Army surplus, he made them their own ski mountain: the family left Cornish, N.H., where Mickey taught science and coached skiing in high school, and settled in Burlington, Vt., where he went to work as an engineer with General Electric. He bought several hundred acres of hillside on the outskirts of nearby Richmond and put in a rope tow.

The competition never let up.

How does it feel to lose to a brother or sister? "Certainly a lot better than losing to someone else," says Bobby.

White House visit

Last year Mickey Cochran enjoyed a tribute few coaches ever receive: his team was invited to the White House.

What does the future hold for the Cochrans? Bobby, whose idea of fun as a child used to be leafing through an encyclopedia, plans a career in medicine. He presently is pursuing a pre-med degree at the University of Vermont. Marilyn and Barbara Ann are also enrolled at UV, though career plans have not been firmed. Lindy plans to enroll in college next fall.

Meanwhile, there's Sapporo and all those gold medals just begging to be won.

Following Marilyn's victory in the French championships, the Cochran family met with Pres. Nixon. From left: Marilyn, Barbara Ann, Lindy and Bobby in White House.

Car blazes after an accident on an interstate highway and, before the fire is out, an investigative team of engineers, mechanics, lawyers will arrive to seek the cause.

A New Team Finds Out Why Accidents Happen

by E. D. Fales Jr.

A team of investigators sometimes beats the ambulance to the scene of auto accidents, thanks to an ambitious new federal program.

The program, sponsored by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA), borrows techniques which have made airline travel the safest in the world. Its purpose: to investigate the causes of individual accidents. Already, its specialists have established that many of our notions about highway safety are wrong.

The teams include engineers, mechanics, perhaps even a lawyer and a psychologist. Some are paid, but most are dedicated experts who work for free. All are on 24-hour call and wear radio-controlled "beepers." Sometimes their beepers sound on college lecture platforms, and they rush from their classes. They have been summoned from ball games, from theaters, even from their bathtubs.

Recreating the wreck

They try to arrive at the crash site almost before the wheels stop spinning. The engineers immediately measure skid marks and inspect the damage. Often they radio their facts to a computer right from the roadside. Within minutes the computer cranks out a motion picture, recreating the wreck exactly as it occurred. Afterward, lawyers, doctors and psychologists interview survivors, friends, even distant relatives.

Twenty-five hundred accidents have been analyzed since the program was launched two years ago, by teams functioning in 15 U.S. cities. From these, the government is assembling its first Team's on-the-scene survey includes measurements and extensive interviews.

Some drivers set out consciously to kill—arsenal of facts, including some surprises.

For instance, many drivers die because they skid into obstacles they could easily avoid. The reason: they don't know the simple trick called "steer-out." "Steer-out" means pumping the brakes instead of holding them down, which locks the wheels and makes the car uncontrollable.

Braking error

Another mistake made by frightened or ignorant drivers is to apply the brake and the gas simultaneously: sometimes so hard that the imprint of the pedals is found on the victim's shoe soles.

Utility poles and construction sites rank among the major death traps. So do many "safe" curves on our super-highways. The problem with these curves, says TSA investigators, is that they are sharp enough to demand a driver's entire attention. Yet many also contain bridges, entrance ramps, or blind hills, or else require fast lane-changing for exits a short distance ahead. "Drivers just can't cope with it all," the investigators report.

Engineers have also discovered bent tail pipes that pump poisonous exhaust into cars, accelerator pedals that jam, and tires whose rims snap off for a second, releasing air, and then snap back on again.

But the most interesting discoveries of all pertain to the drivers.

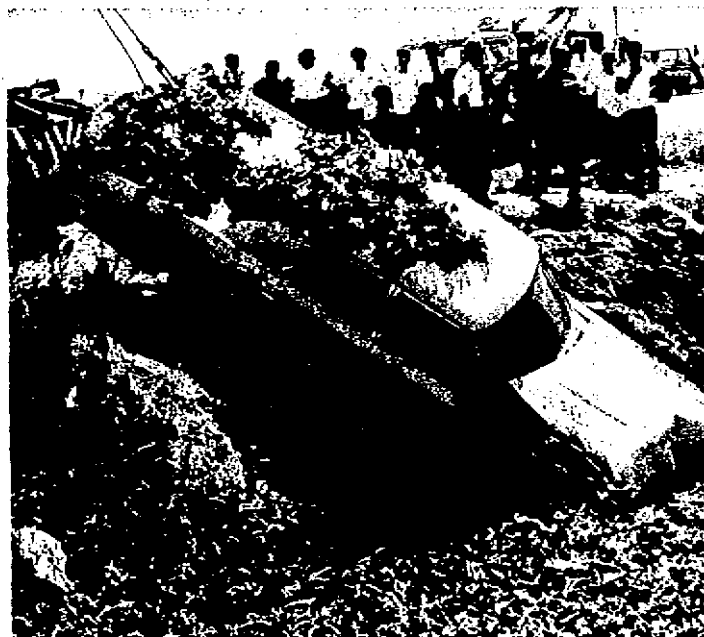

Some come from disaster-prone families, long plagued by tragedy: accidents, serious illness, even murder.

Suicide by car

Apparently some set out, consciously or unconsciously, to kill themselves. A few had threatened relatives: "If I don't come back, you'll find me on the highway." In one particularly bizarre incident, a driver slammed head-on into a stone wall—a year to the very hour after his best friend had perished in the same manner and on the same spot.

Often it is the driver's close relatives who are emotionally disturbed. They cite instances in which wives have exclaimed, almost triumphantly: "Well, I told him it would happen!" A mother, informed of her son's death, cried out: "What did he go and kill himself for? Now he can't take care of me." Another insisted that her son couldn't be dead, because he was sleeping in the next room. Then, with a look of dawning awareness, she added, "Well, he's snuck out before. If he did it this time, I'll kill him." Experts conjecture that the tensions that arise in these families could provoke accident-causing behavior.

Another oddity is the driver who,

Drivers in new cars present a particular kind of hazard. They can worry about the first scratch so that they fail to see danger coming and wind up in a ditch.

having caused a wreck, sulks in his damaged car.

"They won't come out," says Miami sociologist Carole Haviland, "not even to help the people they've hurt. Maybe they're just morally afraid to face them."

Drugs are taking their place among the major killers on the highway. Police have known for some time that narcotics are often a factor in accidents. But it remained for a Miami investigating team to discover just what drugs—even marijuana—can do.

Alarmed by "drug-wreck" calls, the team enlisted the aid of the culprits themselves. In one test, two young men kept a record of their experiences on the road. "One," says Dr. Haviland, "tried to set his speed at 20 miles an hour without looking at his speedometer. But when he called out 'Twenty!' his car was going 60." Another time, he veered to avoid a dog that ran into the road. Upon examination, the "dog" turned out to be a dirty rag. The other man, meanwhile, complained that he was having difficulty because he was "driving upside down."

The biggest hazard, though, is alcohol. "We knew it figured in a lot of accidents," one engineer says. "But not until we started answering crash calls did we realize that it's a factor in almost all bad accidents. We rarely get a call that doesn't involve alcohol."

"We find bottles in almost every wreck," another volunteers. "We even find them embedded in steering wheels. Evidently a lot of drivers are actually drinking when the crash comes."

Other hazards include low ceilings (drivers bump their heads on rough roads, losing control); potholes; untrained, over-excited rescuers who inadvertently shove broken bones through lungs, or pull spines apart; heavy medication, which dulls reflexes and distorts depth perception; lenient judges who allow dangerous drivers to go back onto the roads.

New car hazard

New cars present a particular kind of hazard. "Drivers," says Cornell University's Dr. John Garrett, "worry about the first scratch and don't see danger coming." One man, upset by a parking lot dent, failed to notice another vehicle. His shiny new car was cut in half and he was killed. Another driver heard something rubbing and looked away from the road to trace the sound. He too was killed.

The Cornell team insists that accidents come in waves. "We go two weeks without a single bad wreck, then we get 14 calls in 12 hours." The phenomenon puzzles them. But Connecticut state police have noted that when brisk, clear air starts floating down from Canada, "drivers start going faster and faster."

Of what use are the findings?

For one thing, TSA alerts Detroit within hours—sometimes minutes—after discovering a major defect. When a Southern team found a steering problem in one American car, Detroit dispatched an engineer that very day to change the design. And when an Atlanta, Ga., team attributed a fatal Alabama school bus crash to faulty brakes, 10,000 new school buses were recalled for refitting.

Lessons learned

Instructors in driver education courses also benefit from TSA information. For instance, young drivers should now be taught the split-second "stah-and-steer" steer-out technique. Also, teachers must forget the old rule: "Stay one car length behind the vehicle ahead of you for every ten miles of speed." Steering-out requires the driver to remain at least two car lengths back.

The more we know about why accidents happen, the more we can do to prevent them. Thanks to TSA, the causes are being spotlighted, as in a high beam on a darkened road.

ANTI-HAZARD PROPOSALS

● The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration has come forward with a pair of proposals to reduce road hazards. One is to impose a built-in speed limit of 95 miles an hour on all automobiles except police cars, together with audible and visual warnings which would activate between 81 and 85 miles an hour.

● The other, in an experimental stage, is to install polarized headlights, thereby reducing glare while increasing the range of vision. If the experiment proves successful, cars would be equipped with special lamps and plastic devices which the driver could attach to the windshield. (Or, he could wear treated sunglasses.) The desired effect is produced when the light is filtered through the plastic.

● The built-in speed limit scheme has already generated considerable controversy, with drivers about evenly divided. Women drivers, though, were overwhelmingly in favor—as were insurance companies and police. Opposition has come from auto clubs and auto manufacturers.

● The polarized headlights have already been tested on a 40-mile two-lane road in Texas. A spokesman for the Safety Administration described the test as highly successful. Next step is a mass experiment, possibly encompassing all of Canada's Prince Edward Island. Feelers have already been extended to the Canadian government. The new devices would be inexpensive, the spokesman said.

WHY PLANT

A GROUND COVER?

In many areas and situations, ground covers are more appropriate and more satisfactory than turf. They are able to grow and thrive in sun OR shade, and in poor soil.

On steep slopes where mowing is difficult, ground cover is much more effective and much less laborious to maintain than grass. Ground covers hold the soil as well as turf and the textures are far more interesting.

Small areas of grass are a continual chore to keep mown and trimmed but ground covers require almost no care. They are excellent protection and soil conditioners. They hold the fallen leaves from blowing away, thus helping to add annually to the humus content.

WHY CREEPING RED SEDUM?

One of Sedum's most valuable assets is its full time beauty. Lush foliage begins in early spring, and star-shaped scarlet flowers delight the viewer from late June through September. The attractive semi-evergreen foliage lasts well into winter, maintaining its rich green and bronze color nearly all year round.

Besides being one of the loveliest of the ground covers, Sedum also rates high on the other requirements. It is hardy, grows well in sun or partial shade, in sandy soil, clay soil, or good soil.

Its thick foliage and root system hold the soil on slopes or banks. The neat 3-4" cover forms a dense perennial mat to bring green and scarlet beauty to slopes, borders, rocky areas, anywhere beauty and durability are needed.

Each plant will easily and quickly spread to fill one sq. ft. Sedum spreads evenly, maintains its uniform smooth beauty at all stages of growth. Unlike some other ground covers, Sedum, also called "Dragon's Blood", stays where you put it—does not straggle out into places where it doesn't belong. Sedum is almost indestructible, enduring and persisting against heavy climatic and nutritional odds.

Now is a Good Time to Order
RED SEDUM!

Your young Sedum plants will establish themselves and begin to spread a few days after planting. In a month or so they will already be 3-4 inches in diameter. They may lose their foliage as the first winter progresses but will leaf out again in early spring. During a long growing season they may reach 12" in diameter, always maintaining their neat regulated shape.

Keeping Up...With Youth

Wanted: GI's For Bill

The most sought-after student in the U.S. today is the Vietnam veteran.

The Veterans Administration reports that only 28 percent of veterans eligible for the GI Bill are currently taking advantage of their benefits. Why? Especially when the unemployment situation is as bad as it is? Are the veterans ignorant of their options? Too poor to exercise them? Or simply lacking in college preparation?

Colleges and universities all over the country are actively recruiting GI's, encouraging them to take advantage of their benefits, and offering them financial and educational assistance.

One of the most active GI programs is Wayne State University's Center for the Education of Returning Veterans (CERV) in Detroit. CERV provides counseling, tutoring, help in obtaining part-time jobs and loans.

The high cost of education is probably the main obstacle for many veterans. The GI Bill pays a monthly subsistence allowance, starting at $175 for single vets, but it does not provide for tuition. Some states, however—Massachusetts and Illinois are two—exempt their GI residents from tuition payments at state universities.

If a GI is deficient in college preparation rather than cash, there is help for that, too. U.C.L.A. runs an intensive 12-week college preparatory course designed to provide veterans with the necessary skills for college. Other schools, such as the University of Massachusetts, will waive certain admission requirements and accept GI applicants with SAT scores as low as 450.

If you are a veteran, unemployed or undecided about your future, check the Veterans Administration or your local state college for the educational options open to you.

Bobby Bleeps

Bob Dylan, who first achieved fame with his controversial songs of protest—"Masters of War," "The Times They Are A-Changin'"—has done it again.

After years of singing country western and folk rock, Dylan a few months ago returned to political protest with a single on the death of Soledad Brother George Jackson.

The song, recorded and released last November, immediately aroused controversy—more for its profanity than its politics. The original Dylan lyrics include a common four-letter word of the barnyard variety:

They killed a man I really loved
Shot him through the head
Lord, Lord, they cut George Jackson down

He wouldn't take . . . from no one

He wouldn't bow or kneel
Lord, Lord, they hated him
Because he was just too real

Radio stations all over the country have banned the song. Some stations play it, bleeping out the offending word. One San Francisco DJ compromised by cutting the word out of the tape and re-inserting it backwards, thus producing a non-sense sound.

"The record is selling well all over the country," reports a Columbia Records' spokesman, "in spite of the boycott by the radio stations.

"It's certainly not the first instance of profanity on record," the spokesman continues. "Why did it arouse such a controversy? Well, because he's Bobby Dylan and because he says it so loud and clear."

Campus Lecture Circuit, 1972

Radical politics are "out" and nostalgia is "in" on the 1972 campus lecture circuit.

Ralph Nader still draws capacity crowds and big fees, but radical and "movement" speakers are no longer in demand for appearances on America's campuses. When Black Panther leader Bobby Seale spoke at Stanford recently, the hall was less than half full. Bookings for Abbie Hoffman and Jerry Rubin are fewer and farther between. Dick Gregory continues strong, but more on the strength of his humor than his politics.

The "in" speakers this year are TV stars of yesteryear such as Buster Crabbe, who brings along his Flash Gordon flicks, and Pinky Lee, who explains slapstick to his former child audience, now grown up.

"The students really enjoy seeing someone who was important to them when they were children," explains a campus booking agent.

Glorifying the Stew

by Beth Merriman
PARADE FOOD EDITOR

Carbonade of beef is usually a stew made with beer, onions, brown sugar and seasonings. In our recipe we have used the beer and onion, but we changed the brown sugar to molasses and made these ingredients into a marinade which later is made into a sauce. Then we sprinkled the meat with a new product which gives it a crusty brown top and baked it briefly in a hot oven. When cut on the diagonal in thin brown-edged slices, the beef is tender, juicy and most appetizing. Serve it with baked potatoes, winter squash and a salad of green beans vinaigrette.

Baked Beef Carbonade

- 3 pounds top round or sirloin, cut 1 to 1½ inches thick
- 1 garlic clove, cut into thin slivers
- 1½ cups (12 oz.) beer
- ¼ cup molasses
- 1 medium onion sliced
- 1 teaspoon grated orange peel
- Brown 'n' Season
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 2 tablespoons flour

Cut slits in the meat; press garlic slivers into slits; place in shallow pan. Combine beer, molasses, onion and orange peel; pour over meat.

Let stand 2 hours, turning once. Remove meat from marinade; drain well. Sprinkle both sides evenly with Brown 'n' Season; place in shallow baking pan; bake at 425° for 25 minutes (medium-rare) or to desired degree of doneness. Meanwhile, remove onion slices from marinade. Melt butter in saucepan; blend in flour. Stir in marinade. Cook and stir over medium heat until thickened and smooth. Slice meat on an angle into ¼-inch slices. Pour some of the sauce over meat; serve remainder separately. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

My Favorite Jokes

by Morty Storm

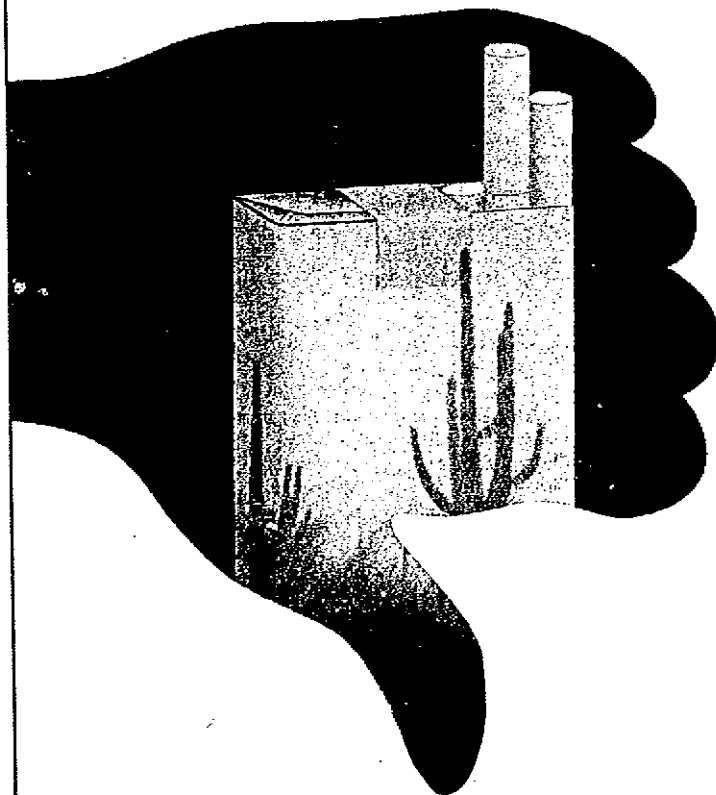

EDITOR'S NOTE: Morty Storm, III, delights in contradictions. He's a "man of the streets," descended from a long line of men of the streets. Utilizing an earthy Brooklyn accent in projecting his comic character, Storm is the man of the streets as he surveys culture. It allows him to poke fun at rich and poor alike.

Storm has appeared on television with Jackie Gleason and on the Carson and Douglas shows. He's worked at the Sands Hotel in Las Vegas and at resorts in New York State.

Storm was a Marine on Iwo Jima when the flag was raised. Following the war he had a plan—how not to work: get culture on the G.I. Bill. He went from school to school, as some of the following anecdotes describe:

At the Drama Workshop I had a famous Russian teacher. She was teaching the Stanislavsky method and she suggested that I become an orange, and I said: "With pits?"

'Don't get mad if your neighbor plays the radio at 2:30 a.m. Call him back at 4 and tell him how much you enjoyed it.'

Down with hot taste.

Come up to KOOL.

Then I took up tap dancing just to keep from having to work. I'm basically very clumsy. My teacher said: "Listen, I'm looking at your feet. The way you're dancing they'll be sending up steam if you keep hitting the floor so hard."

So I took up the piano. My hands are not surgeons' hands. The teacher was very mild mannered. He said: "I don't want to hurt your feelings, but your hands look like feet."

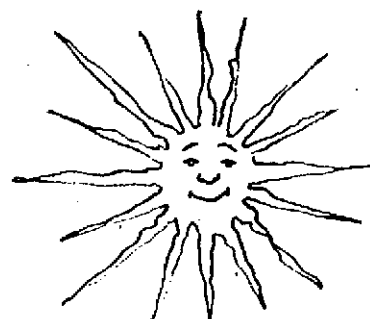

Now this wealthy girl I was going with, she hated her parents, she went with me to embarrass the family. I walked into the house and the butler said: "Cocktails is being served in the library." I—like an idiot—run all the way downtown.

Then we went to a museum. Now everything in the museum is old or broken. I walk inside, I see a statue, no head, no arms, and one leg. Underneath it is written, "Victory." Tell the truth I'm scared to look at the loser.

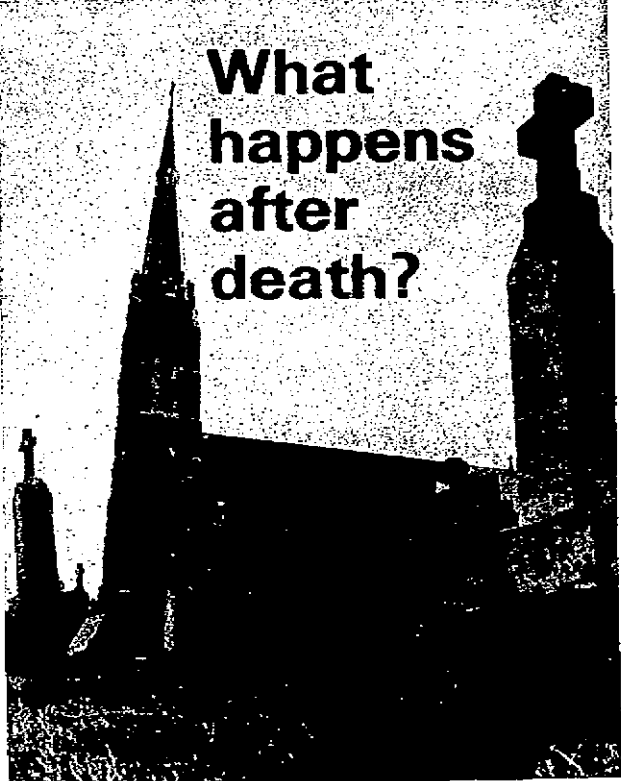

Then I figured I'd get myself a publicity agent, and get my name in the papers. This guy, he's got trouble getting the Vietnam war in the papers.

Did you ever really read the ads in the newspapers. One says: "If you are deaf, tear out this ad." So I tore it out. I still can't hear so well.

What happens after death?

At the instant of death, are we plunged into black, mindless oblivion, our existence snuffed out forever? Or do we awaken fully conscious into a new life beyond human imagination?

You'll learn the Catholic Church's belief on this and other similar questions which have troubled man since the beginning, in our booklet entitled, "What Happens After Death?"

In this booklet you'll read how reason itself suggests that man possesses an undying spirit... and how it argues, too, that each of us shapes his own everlasting reward or punishment according to the way he lives on earth.

You'll learn the Church's thoughts on such questions as "What happens to those who have earned neither Heaven nor Hell?"... "What are Heaven and Hell like?"... "How could an all-merciful God permit an everlasting Hell?"... and "What will Christ's Second Coming mean to those already dead?"

Write today for Pamphlet No. 14. There is no cost, no obligation. And nobody will call on you.

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.

Children used to build model airplanes and model cars. Now they can utilize the same energy and skill to construct a model guillotine, a model hypodermic needle, and a model torture chamber—just three of the plethora of new sadistic toys flooding the market.

In 1970 Congress passed the Toy Safety Act which banned from store shelves toys with sharp edges, hot wires and removable parts that could be swallowed. Today, parents want the law amended to ban playthings which are psychologically as well as physically harmful to their offspring.

John L. Burton, a California assemblyman, is the author of a bill banning torture toys in his state. He offers in evidence a mix-and-match set of eight monster scenes, "rated X for excitement" by its manufacturer.

"I've collected a number of these toys," he explains, "which depict mad scientists dismembering and wounding young women with racks, hot coals and guillotines. There are other similar toys which encourage youngsters to create various experiments and scary scenes, imaginatively using the torture equipment on their victims.

Great harm cited

"Evidence from competent psychologists," Burton continues, "indicates that making such activities as torture and death commonplace or enjoyable objects of play, could do great harm to a child's psychological well-being."

"The Godfather Game" costs $15 and comes in a box shaped like a violin case. Players can make book, engage in extortion, be a loan shark or hijack goods. Object of game is to take over as many neighborhoods as possible.

CHILD'S PLAY CONTINUED

Italian extraction, would like to see removed from the marketplace is the recently issued "Godfather Game." It costs $15, comes in a box shaped like a violin case, and to date has sold more than 100,000 units.

The game, inspired by the Mario Puzo novel, consists of a monopoly-type board of Manhattan divided into such neighborhoods as Harlem, Little Italy, the Lower East Side.

According to the instructions provided by the manufacturer, ironically named "The Family Games, Inc." of Cambridge, Mass., "The object of the game is to take control of a racket—bookmaking, extortion, loan sharking or hijacking—in as many of the neighborhoods on the board as possible."

The player who earns the highest score in this life of crime becomes the Godfather.

Ethnic protests

While some parents and teachers object to the "Godfather Game" because it casts children as vicious gangsters, the most vociferous opposition emanates from Italian-Americans who consider it a vehicle of demeaning ethnic prejudice against themselves.

Congressman Mario Biaggi of New York's 24th District, himself a former member of the New York City Police Department, complains that the "Godfather Game" is "a particular piece of prejudicial propaganda which continues the stereotyped impression that the rackets are the sole province of Americans of Italian descent.

"In this game," he told his colleagues in the House of Representatives, "a child can make book, engage in extortion, be a loan shark, or hijack goods without any fear of punishment for these illegal acts."

The Godfather Game was created by Jody and David Porter, enterprising brothers in their late 20's, who first approached Paramount Pictures last year with their idea.

Explains Jody Porter, a jack-of-all-trades: "We knew that Paramount had bought all rights to The Godfather from Mario Puzo and we didn't want any copyright trouble, so we thought we had best cut them in.

"Paramount was most anxious," Porter continues, "until they got in trouble with Joe Colombo and the Italian-Americans who objected to the use of such terms as Mafia and Cosa Nostra in the screenplay. Then they copped out, so we went to Urban Systems, Inc., up in Cambridge, Mass., and they arranged to manufacture and distribute the game. We get a 5 percent royalty on the wholesale price which is $7.50. To date, my brother and I have earned around $35,000."

Ecology specialists

Urban Systems, Inc., a company some of whose associates are on the faculties of Harvard University and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, specializes in ecology. It not only serves as a consultant to the federal government but manufactures ecology games for children.

This past December, Massachusetts Attorney General Robert H. Quinn labeled two ecology kits produced by Urban as "extremely hazardous" and declared he would seek an embargo on their sale. Quinn said the kits contained potassium chromate and silver nitrate which could blind and kill. The kits were designed for testing the chloride content of water, and no injuries to children had been reported at the time Quinn ordered Urban to cease distributing them.

California Assemblyman John L. Burton is author of bill to ban torture toys.

Bronx Representative Mario Biaggi is outspoken critic of "Godfather Game."

Pressure from parents caused maker to discontinue this torture "toy" (above).

MARK TRAIL

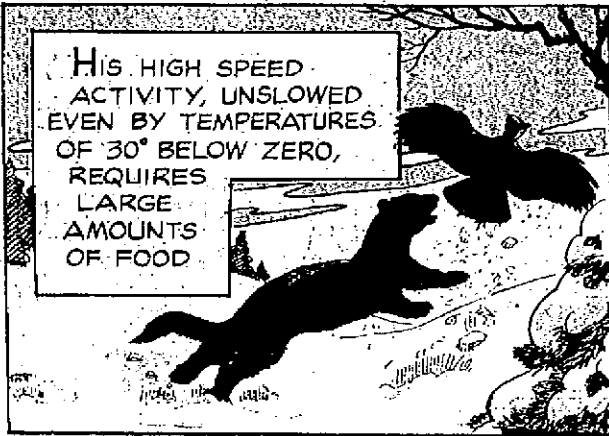

by Ed Dodd and Tom Hill

ONLY WHEN HE'S SLEEPING IS THE PINE MARTEN STILL

THE REST OF THE TIME HE MOVES SWIFTLY ABOUT IN SEARCH OF PREY

HIS HIGH SPEED ACTIVITY, UNSLOWED EVEN BY TEMPERATURES OF 30° BELOW ZERO, REQUIRES LARGE AMOUNTS OF FOOD

SO HE PERMITS NONE OF HIS KIND TO ENTER HIS TERRITORY WITHOUT A FIGHT...

AND THE PIRATES

by GEORGE WUNDER

THE DRAGON LADY CONTACTS THE LEADER OF THE CONVICTS.

THERE, HOOJ, IS IT NOT A COMFORT TO KNOW THAT EVEN IN THIS PRISON COMPOUND, WE ARE AMONG FRIENDS?

IN HIS TRAVELS ABOUT THE SEAMIER SIDES OF THE WORLD'S CITIES, THIS GENTLEMAN HAS LEARNED TO RECOGNIZE THIS CHOP. IT CARRIES WEIGHT IN MANY CIRCLES, HOOJ.

PERHAPS HE ALSO KNOWS THAT THE DRAGON LADY IS GENEROUS TO THOSE WHO SERVE HER WELL.

I AM HASSAN, AT THE LADY'S SERVICE.

GOOD! THEN THE CONVICTS' GRAPEVINE HAS TOLD YOU THAT I HAVE SEEN THE GATHERING OF DISTINGUISHED PERSONAGES INSIDE THE DEAD CITY?

THE COOKS HAVE SO INFORMED ME, NOBLE LADY.

AN ODD SIGHT! DICTATORS, RULERS OF PETTY STATES—AND ALL ORDERED ABOUT BY A EUROPEAN WHO SEEMS TO BE IN CHARGE.

I HAVE HEARD HIM CALLED ONLY "COMMISSAR," LADY.

AND WHAT OF THEIR MEETING, HASSAN? WHAT IS DISCUSSED? HOW LONG HAS IT BEEN GOING ON?

SOME OF THEM WERE HERE WHEN I FIRST CAME TO THIS PLACE TWO YEARS AGO.

THEY CAME, SINGLY OR IN PAIRS BY HELICOPTER, THEIR HEADS WRAPPED IN BANDAGES. LATER THERE WOULD BE A NEW, NOTED FACE IN THE GROUP.

HASSAN, YOU LIE! MANY OF THESE MEN HAVE BEEN REPORTED AT PUBLIC FUNCTIONS ONLY RECENTLY!

I SWEAR IT IS THE TRUTH!

IMPOSSIBLE! UNLESS? HOOJ, DOES A HIGHLY IMPROBABLE THOUGHT OCCUR TO YOU?

MADAM, DEAL, IF YOU THINK I FEEL BETTER BECAUSE THESE ARE ONLY THE DOUBLES OF POWERFUL MEN, YOU ARE MISTAKEN!

"WE OUGHT NEVER TO FASTEN OUR SHIPS TO ONE SMALL ANCHOR, NOR OUR LIFE TO A SINGLE HOPE" — EPICETUS.

PSST!! PROF... HOW COME WARBUCKS GOT ALL THIS LOOT WITHOUT EVER STEALIN'??

PROF. CREEPY (MASQUERADING AS HONEST TOM'S FATHER) IS CASING THE WARBUCKS MANSION...

THIS DISH IS OF SOME VALUE, I PRESUME, MISTER WARBUCKS?

IT'S INSURED FOR A HALF MILLION, SIR!

ONE CAN ALMOST HEAR THE GREEDY WHEELS OF PROF. CREEPY'S BRAIN WHIRLING AND RECORDING ALL OBJECTS OF VALUE IN THIS HOME!

HE IS UNAWARE THAT SAHIB WARBUCKS IS FULLY AWARE OF HIS SHABBY LITTLE PLOT TO STRIP THIS ROOM OF ITS TREASURES!

I AM A HUMBLE MAN, MISTER WARBUCKS, RAISED IN THE TRADITION THAT HONESTY IS INDEED THE BEST POLICY! OH, HOW I HAVE STRIVEN TO INSTILL THE SIMPLE OLD-FASHIONED VIRTUES INTO MY SON'S MIND!

THAT'S ONE T'ING YOU GOTTA ADMIT ABOUT MY OLD MAN... HE NEVER GIVES UP TRYIN'!

IS SOMETHING WRONG?

I... (GASP)... FEAR IT IS A SEIZURE! THE DOCTOR WARNED ME IT COULD... (GROAN)... STRIKE AT ANY TIME...

MISTER WARBUCKS, IF YOU WOULD PERMIT ME TO REST HERE AWHILE... EVEN... OVERNIGHT! I AM SURE I WILL BE IMPROVED BY THE MORNING!

OF COURSE YOU'LL SPEND THE NIGHT HERE! AND YOU, TOO, HONEST TOM! I'M SURE YOU'LL WANT TO BE NEAR YOUR FATHER IN HIS... AH... HOUR OF NEED?

IT WON'T EVEN TAKE AN HOUR... I MEAN... SURE, WHAT'S A SON FOR IF HE CAN'T GIVE HIS OLD MAN A HELPIN' HAND T' CARRY... I MEAN... T' CURE WHAT'S AILIN' HIM!!

I'M SURE I'LL FEEL VASTLY IMPROVED IN THE MORNING! I SHALL NEVER FORGET YOUR CHARITY, MISTER WARBUCKS!

WHAT THAT OLD CROOK'S FORGETTIN'... IS THAT CHARITY BEGINS AT HOME!
